Roosevelt and Muscle Shoals.
One Old Man.
He Killed His Lions.
Money Is a Puzzle.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

GOV. ROOSEVELT'S visit to Muscle Shoals power plant with Senator George Norris and others will produce results.

The President-elect promised a crowd of 25,000 that Muscle Shoals, built with the people's money, shall no longer remain idle, in obedience to power gentlemen that object to any competition that they cannot control AND CAPITALIZE.

That Gov. Roosevelt intends to let the people own, operate and profit by the plant that public money built cannot be doubted. He said:

"The program I propose will link up agriculture, industry, forestry and flood control, in addition to power development."

THAT WOULD be too big a job for private exploitation, especially with an enlightened, thoroughly robbed public no longer waiting to buy watered stocks and swallow losses.

The public should never forget the fight made by Senator Norris, of Nebraska, for public control and use of its own property at Muscle Shoals. It delighted the gathering to hear Gov. Roosevelt say to Senator Norris:

"This should be a happy day for you, George."

Senator Norris replied:

"Yes, I see my dreams coming true."

Norris, a Republican, supported Roosevelt for President.

When he is forsaken,
Withered and shaken,
What can an old man do but die?

Robert Spence, seventy years old, decided that Thomas Hood was about right. He had been a successful buyer for thirty-five years, had a wife and one daughter. Buyers getting old are not so useful. If they find themselves at seventy, their money gone, it is, in the sympathetic language of the day, "just too bad."

Spence was "laid off" a year ago, and since could find no work.

Today, he needs no work. He turned on the gas in his bedroom.

THE WESTERN gentleman has succeeded in killing his lions, in spite of the beasts' desire to be friendly. The Associated Press tells about it. One of the two lions, dumped out on an island in the Mississippi, was shot by the owner, who needed big-game excitement. As it lay helpless in the grass, the owner's fourteen-year-old boy shot it to death.

THE SECOND lion, seeing its companion butchered, retired to a hummock, and was shot to death by four riflemen, after "Indian Joe" had prodded it in the ribs vigorously with a stick. Both animals were killed within 200 feet of the cage that had held them. The title "king of beasts" now belongs to man.

A STRANGE thing is money. Every day you wonder whether anybody really knows anything about it.

Recently, as you may have read here, New Zealand deliberately inflated its currency by twenty-five per cent, making four dollars into five dollars. "Best minds" of the U. S. A. brand would have told you:

"There they go, no hope for them now."

BUT WHAT happens, a boom develops in New Zealand values of stocks and products go soaring. We ought to believe what our best minds tell us, even though they have not been brilliantly successful of late. But it is all most puzzling.

And Canada is planning to do the same. They are not exactly "crazy radicals" in Canada, a land free from bank failures, while we have thousands of them.

REAL DISSATISFACTION begins to show among farmers. There will be no revolution, but if men in cities acted as farmers do in the national "bread basket," Nebraska, Iowa, the Dakotas and other wheat states, our "best minds" would be disturbed.

A LAWYER in Iowa telegraphs the insurance company that hires him to foreclose farm mortgages:

"These farmers are going to hang me if I can't raise our bid on this farm."

The head of the farmers' "holiday movement" in Nebraska announces:

"If we don't get beneficial services from the Legislature, 200,000 of us are coming to Lincoln, and we'll tear that new state capitol building to pieces."

And 2,000 farmers cheer wildly.

FARMERS ANNOUNCE their determination to reduce interest rates, scale down mortgages, stop foreclosure and tax sales, and generally defy the rights of capital and government.

All this interests Eastern financial concerns that hold mortgages for more than two thousand million dollars on farms in Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota alone, to say nothing of the other states.

Repudiation of debts is not exactly revolution, but accompanied by threats, it is disturbing. Men can stand just so much, and then they do something.

It might be a good idea for Congress to add some definite action to the flood of talk.

36TH STATE APPROVES CHANGE

Defeated Legislators Eliminated From Government

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The twentieth amendment, eliminating defeated legislators from participation in the government henceforth and hastening inauguration of President and meeting time of each new Congress, became today a part of the Constitution of the United States.

Submitted to the states by Congress on March 3 of last year, it was ratified in near-record time, the state of Missouri winning the distinction of being the thirty-sixth and last-needed state to approve this modernization of the federal machinery.

EFFECTIVE OCT. 15

The amendment will become operative October 15 next.

After that each regular session of Congress will begin on January 3, every year, with no fixed adjournment date, and each new President will be inaugurated January 20.

Had it been in force now, Franklin D. Roosevelt would have been President since last Friday. The new, overwhelmingly Democratic Congress would have been in session since January 3, instead of the filibuster-ridden and nigh helpless present short session, which must adjourn March 4 and cannot possibly dispose of its big tasks in that time.

The amendment will cut 43 days of Roosevelt's term, even though he may be re-elected for a second term four years hence. He loses time because, although he goes into office March 4 like his predecessors, he steps out January 20, and every President after him will do likewise. Representatives and Senators lose two months, as their terms will expire January 3, instead of March 4.

VICTORY FOR NORRIS

The ratification was victory climaxing 10 years of patient effort for the veteran independent, Senator George Norris, of Nebras-

Delay Sentencing Of 'Prince Mike'

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Sentence of Harry F. Gerguson, whose most widely-known alias is "Prince Michael Romanoff," was postponed today until next Monday.

Gerguson pleaded guilty last week to indictments charging him with illegally entering the country, with evading immigration inspectors and with perjury. The postponement was ordered to permit federal officers to look further into Gerguson's record.

John Galsworthy Dangerously Ill

LONDON, Jan. 23. — (AP.)—The novelist, John Galsworthy, was ill today at his Hampstead home suffering from anemia following a chill contracted last month. A member of the household said:

"Mr. Galsworthy is very ill. We believe it is the result of two or three years of overwork."

Defending Male Attire

MARLENE DIETRICH . . . STARTING HOME FROM THE STUDIOS

Miss Dietrich, the German star in U. S. films, in the type of dress she affects for nearly all Hollywood occasions. She wears it because (1.) it's comfortable; (2.) it's better-looking on her than dresses; (3.) styles don't change. And so she's starting a fad.

'33 AUTO SHOW OPENS TODAY

Marked achievements of engineering skill and an industry's progress featured the annual Pittsburgh automobile show, which opened today in Hotel William Penn to be the mecca of tri-state district motorists for a week.

The luxurious streamline bodies, innovations in automatic controls for comfort driving and new design in spacious interiors vie for the spectators' attention. The assortment in size, color and price form fascinating pathways through the Chatterbox and Exhibit Hall.

Before the visitor reaches this scene, exhibits in auto accessories and parts, shop equipment, radios and refrigerators draw inspection in the lobby and corridors. This latter display is free to the pub-

Mrs. Tunney to Have Another Operation

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Mrs. Gene Tunney is in Presbyterian Hospital today being prepared for another operation, it was learned today.

She is believed to be suffering from an abscess behind one of her eyes. Her condition is reported excellent.

STAR DEFENDS MALE ATTIRE

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.—(Universal.)—Reason No. 1—They're comfortable. Reason No. 2—She thinks she looks better in them than in dresses. Reason No. 3—They don't go out of style.

These three arguments advanced by Marlene Dietrich to explain her fondness for wearing masculine clothes have found so many women in agreement, according to fashion creations and designers, that department stores here are making prominent displays of trousers, shirts, ties and sweaters for women.

But today, Miss Dietrich amplified her argument with a note of warning. She said:

"Only those women who look well in men's clothes should wear them, and not all women do."

The actress believes that broad shoulders and slender hips are required, but the style arbiters in the stores hold that even the "stylish stout" may have her man's suit, if it is tailored to fit her and worn with good taste.

The new style is declared to be a logical development of the trousered fad that started with pajamas and progressed through slacks and sweaters for beach wear, popular with scores of movie stars.

Late for 'Work,' Bandit Pair Misses $500

If the young men who are studying banditry ever expect to get anywhere in their chosen profession they'll have to learn to be on time.

Take the case of the two young men, sporting the latest in clothes and revolvers, who happened into the Quality Laundry at 4732 Penn avenue, today.

Mrs. Mattie Dessery, the cashier, was there. Mrs. Dessery told them she couldn't open the safe. So they took the strong box and departed. The strong box was empty.

But five minutes earlier the manager, J. J. Fox, had left for the bank to deposit $500.

AMERICANS FLEE JAP MENACE

Women Quit Consulate In Yokohama For Safety

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The anti-American feeling among Japanese workmen reached such an acute stage in Yokohama over the week-end that it was found necessary to evacuate the wives of consular officials from the American consulate, Ambassador Joseph Grew advised the State Department today.

The women were escorted to safer abodes Saturday night, following a warning from the police that 400 members of the Japanese Federation of Labor planned to attack the American consulate during the night. Quick action by the police is believed to have averted the attack.

A heavy cordon of police was thrown around the consulate and 145 suspected ring leaders of the planned attack were arrested.

TOKIO DEMONSTRATION

TOKIO, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Demonstrations against the American-owned Singer Sewing Machine Company spread from Yokohama to Tokio today when a delegation of strike leaders called at the United States embassy.

Outcome of the visit could not be learned. In the past, strike leaders had confined their visits to the consulates at Yokohama, Kobe and elsewhere.

The latest riotous incident in connection with the strike of Japanese Singer employes occurred yesterday when a group of more than 350 workers staged a demonstration in front of the Grand Hotel, next door to the Yokohama consulate.

Police dispersed the rioters after arresting 45 alleged ringleaders.

Squire, Constable Waive 'Fix' Hearings

Justice of the Peace Henry Williams, Constable George J. Burkhart and two clerks in Williams' office in Stowe Township, Ellis McDaniels and Charles E. Duncan, waived hearing for court today before Alderman Thomas A. Flannigan on charges of conspiracy growing out of alleged acceptance by Williams of $50 to "fix" a motor law violation.

Willims and Burkhart also face charges of false pretense and misbehavoir in office. They furnished $10,000 bond each, and the two clerks, $2,000 each. District Attorney Andrew T. Park avers that the books in Williams' office show that more than $5,000 was collected on phantom cases.

FORD ARREST THREATENED IN SUIT

Bench Warrant to Be Asked as He Ignores Leland Subpena

International News Service.

DETROIT, Jan. 23.—Arrest of Henry Ford was threatened today by Kenneth M. Stevens, attorney for the Leland family, foes of the Fords in a long legal fight over the Lincoln Motor Company.

Stevens said he would ask Judge Guy A. Miller for a bench warrant for the multimillionaire unless Ford honors a subpena served on him by Wilfrid C. Leland, Jr.

The subpena ordered Ford to appear at 9:30 a. m. before a notary public for a hearing in the latest skirmish of the litigation. At 1:30 p. m. the motor magnate had not appeared.

The hearing is for taking the depositions to be sent to Philadelphia, where a case originally started by the Fords against the Sweeten Automobile Company, agents for the old Lincoln company, is pending.

Earlier in the day Ford's attorneys in Philadelphia withdrew their petition for a writ of supersedeas staying execution of the subpena.

Young Leland, son of one of the two motor pioneers who founded the Lincoln company, served the subpena on the multimillionaire by "crashing" one of Ford's famous "old-time" dances at Dearborn.

BROWN KILLING ARREST NEAR

PALMYRA, N. J., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Ellis Parker, chief of Burlington County detectives, said today he believes the mysterious death of Bradway Brown, socially prominent young business executive, will be solved tomorrow and that the solution will be "startling."

Parker, who until Saturday night maintained the case was one of suicide, reversed his earlier statements and said he was convinced Brown had been slain. Asked if there would be an arrest, he said:

"It's not at all unlikely."

Meanwhile the search for two Negroes reported to have been seen near the Brown home the night the body was found in the toy-littered living room of his home, was continued.

Two chances for a speedy solution of the perplexing case, Parker had said, lie in the establishment of the ownership of the pistol found beside Brown's body and the hat found in the garage a short time after the discovery of the body.

Spring-Like Weather To Stay — Brotzman

Spring-like temperatures which have caused peach buds to swell and other fruits and flowers to show signs of new life are expected to continue, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said today. There is no indication of real winter weather, Brotzman said, although the mercury is expected to drop to near freezing tonight.

A high wind last night broke wires of the government weather bureau's instrument for recording its velocity. The anemometer at the County Airport recorded an average velocity of slightly more than 30 miles an hour between 4 p. m. and midnight, with occasional gusts reaching 45 miles an hour. No damage was reported.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Prince Lennart, of Sweden, who has been plain "Mr. Bernadotte" since he disobeyed the King and married Miss Karin Nissvandt, a commoner, last year, was reported today to have applied for a job as radio announcer with the Swedish Broadcasting Company.

MAUG AND 2 AIDES ADMIT MURDER OF OFFICER

Confess Many Holdups In Court; Blonde in Jail as Accomplice

BULLETIN.

The three confessed murderers ers in the Maug mob today escaped possible electrocution for the killing of Constable Moses when Judge Moore fixed their guilt at second degree murder. The maximum punishment is 20 years' imprisonment.

The Maug mob started for the "Big House" today.

The cool, calculating "boss," John Maug, 31, and two of his mobsters, without a show of emotion, confessed in Criminal Court today to the murder of Constable Vernon (Port) Moses.

Charles Moyer, 30, and Edward Turpack, 29, followed their leader in a confession of guilt—a confession that spells the doom of a mob that plundered and killed with the help of women.

CONFESS MANY ROBBERIES

Before they pleaded to murder, Maug pleaded guilty also to 18 charges of robbery and Moyer and Turpack to four similar charges—all based on stickups.

While they were pleading, Maug's sweetheart, Gladys Jackson, 23, a platinum blonde, paced her cell in the county jail, herself arrested as an accomplice in the mob's stickups. The police say she "cooked" dynamite for Maug's mob to use in blowing safes.

In the same jail were two other women, similarly charged—Mrs. Eleanor Stemmler, 24, of North Lincoln avenue, and Mrs. Edna Friedel, 23, of West Erie street—and a half-dozen men, accused of stickups.

Judge George V. Moore ordered testimony taken to fix the degree of murder.

HEARD DEATH SHOTS

First witnesses were pretty Armella Kim, 19, and her father, George E. Kim, who from their home in Perrysville road heard the shots that killed Moses last May.

Moses, apparently suspicious, had stopped the killers' car near the Keating carbarn to question the occupants. An argument and shooting followed.

After other eye-witnesses had testified, Maug's statement to the police was read, in which he said both he and Moyer had fired in an effort to shoot the gun out of Moses' hand. During the reading, the young wife of Turpack, sitting with her two little sons, wept.

Moyer's wife, dressed in a flashy black and white fur coat, remained in the corridor during the proceedings.

Three of the stickups which Maug confessed to were staged at the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company's East End garage, the Ingram car barns and the Bunker Hill car barns.

Moyer and Turpack also pleaded to charges of carrying concealed weapons and possession of explosives.

MOTHER-TO-BE TRIED FOR LIFE

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Shots fired November 26 in the Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, echoed today for a girl widow facing the two-edged hazard of childbirth and death in the electric chair.

The charge against 20-year-old Cecelia McCormick is first-degree murder. The state of New York, bringing her to trial today, seeks to convict her for the shooting to death of William McConnell, a keeper at the Raymond Street Jail, but it does not say she fired a shot.

Her husband the father of the child she expects to bear, died that November night, too, turning upon himself the gun with which he slew McConnell in a foolhardy break for freedom. He was Andrew (Red) McCormick, convicted thief.

The blonde Cecelia had no part in the gunplay with which the jail rang that night, but it was she, the state charges, who smuggled to her husband the pistol which cost the lives of the two men.

The story told police after the shooting was that she had brought her husband a gun, but that he had told her it was to be used for "self-defense" or, if the attempt to escape failed, for suicide.

Tug Races to Aid Of Rudderless Ship

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Frank C. Mosser, 61, former Mayor of Lancaster, was found dead in his garage today, a victim of carbon monoxide poisoning. Deputy Coroner J. F. Trexler said he had committed suicide.

Four Army Fliers Jump As Plane Crashes

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Four Army fliers narrowly escaped death today as their plane crashed on the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad tracks, six miles north of Wheeling, today.

Lieut. C. R. Hoffman was piloting the plane and those with him were Alfred Troy and W. T. Forner, privates, and Sergt. Andrew Antko. All are from Langley Field.

The accident occurred just across the state line, in Ohio, shortly after the flyers took off after picking up Sergt. Antko, who had been visiting a brother at Steubenville. As the plane came down, all four occupants leaped to safety just before it crashed. The plane was destroyed.

Lieut. Hoffman and the privates were returning to Langley Field from Dayton.

The fliers said only one of the twin motors was being used and it stopped suddenly and the plane descended, crashing from a height of about 150 feet.

Fire broke out and consumed the plane.

PINCHOT TO USE VETO IF P. S. C. PROBERS CURB EATON

GOVERNOR ASKS 'FREE HAND' FOR QUIZ

Chief Executive's Ax Poised Over Fund For Inquiry

BULLETIN.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—Wrangling for more than two hours on a course of future procedure, the Senate utilities investigating committee recessed to meet again late this afternoon and decide whether to continue the work of the present committee or to create an entirely new committee.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—Through the power of veto over any resolution carrying an appropriation, Gov. Pinchot intends to club the Senate utility investigating committee into activity unless the committee voluntarily shows signs of life after it reorganizes today.

A resolution has been prepared authorizing $90,000 for expenses of an investigation, the committee appropriation of $100,000 having been tied up by court injunctions after $10,000 had been spent. Without this money the committee will be unable to fight the injunctions obtained by Public Service Commissioner S. Ray Shelby, former Commissioner James S. Benn and subsidiaries of the Associated Gas and Electric Company.

ASKS SHOWDOWN

The Governor must be assured that the committee means business, and intends to permit its attorney, Oliver K. Eaton, of Pittsburgh, a free hand, before he will approve the appropriation.

One of the principles upon which he will insist is that Eaton shall be given broad power to issue subpenas, as he was when the inquiry began last summer. At that time former Senator William S. Rial, then chairman of the committee, handed Eaton a sheaf of blank subpenas, and no restrictions were placed upon the committee counsel in summoning witnesses.

This procedure was far from popular with some Republican organization Senators, and predictions have been made that the same authorization would not again be granted. Eaton's hands would be tied to an extent greater than he would relish, it is understood, and the result might be a split in the committee.

EATON IN CAPITAL

Eaton was in Harrisburg today for the reorganization meeting. He is prepared to proceed at once with the investigation, calling witnesses not protected by injunctions, if an appropriation is furnished, and if he is given a free hand in subpenas.

Senator Thaddeus Krause, of Philadelphia, will be named chairman of the committee when it meets today, replacing Rial. Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware, had been suggested to head the committee but Republican leaders decided on Krause despite the fact the Philadelphian is at odds with the leadership of William S. Vare.

Krause first was put farword by Senator James J. Coyne.

CUT OF STATE COSTS FACES ASSEMBLY

Blue Law Changes to Be Considered in House

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Bent on reducing the cost of government, the Legislature starts its fourth week tonight with consideration of ways and means of lowering taxes.

A sub-committee of the House Committee on State Government at 3 p. m. begins considering the Turner bills providing a $4,500,000 slash in state government costs.

These bills would make statutory all salaries over $4,000 and would provide salary cuts ranging to $3,000 for the Governor. They also would eliminate a number of bureaus and curtail the work of numerous departments.

Consideration of economy legislation on the floor of the Legislature starts tonight with the Senate's final action on the Reed bill reducing legislators' salaries from $3,000 to $2,500, effective in 1935. The saving would be $129,000.

In selecting its personnel last week the House and Senate each lopped off 23 jobs at a total estimated saving of $33,000. Elimination of unnecessary articles from the so-called "loot" packages saved $22,000 more.

On Tuesday the House Law and Order Committee considers the various measures before it to legalize Sunday sports and amusements, with a view to reporting one of the measures for passage.

After the busiest week in 20 years the Legislative Reference Bureau has prepared 200 bills for introduction this week. Added to the 400 already introduced, the Legislature will have before it more than one-fourth of the 2,600 introduced in the 1931 five-months' session.

'B. F.' Pleads Guilty

GLADYS JACKSON, 23 . . HER SWEETHEART PLEADING GUILTY

Miss Jackson, who today heard in her jail cell that John Maug, leader of the mob broken up by police, plead guilty to the murder of Constable Vernon (Port) Moses. She, too, has been held for court—as an accessory to many stickups and as the police-styled "gang cook" (the one who cooks nitroglycerine for cracking safes).

BEER APPROVED BY SENATE COMMITTEE

Dry Act Modification Gets First Sanction In Upper House

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—For the first time since enactmentact of prohibition, the Senate Judiciary Committee today favorably reported a bill proposing to modify the Volstead Act by legalizing light wines and beers.

The committee approved the Blaine bill, legalizing beer, porter, ale, wine, fruit juices and other malt or vinous beverages containing not more than 3.05 per centum of alcohol.

The vote on reporting the bill was eight to six.

REPLACES HOUSE BILL

This measure was substituted for the Collier bill recently passed by the House, which would legalize 3.2 beer.

It was the first time in 13 years of prohibition that any committee of the Senate has recommended a relaxation of the prohibitive features of the Volstead Act. Both the Judiciary and the Manufactures committees have rejected beer bills in the past but the Manufactures Committee three weeks ago recommended submismission of prohibition repeal to the states.

Before reporting it the committee adopted two new amendments. One, offered by Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, would prohibit the sale of even these beverages to minors. The other, proffered by Senator Dill (Dem.), of Washington, would forbid advertising of beer and wines in dry states.

A real contest developed in the committee over adoption of the 3.05 per cent limit. Senator Bratton (Dem.), of New Mexico, proposed the limit be made 2 per cent. His amendment was defeated by a vote of 6 to 8. No attempt was made to restore the 3.2 per cent limit authorized by the House.

The beer bill was offered in the Senate by Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, but at the request of Senator Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, it was referred to the Senate Finance Committee for consideration of its revenue features.

U. S. CONSULATE THREATENED

blamed in a report the assembly is expected to render in accordance with paragraph 4, article 15, of the League covenant, a foreign office spokesman said today.

The League's Committee of 19 decided Saturday that efforts to find a basis for conciliatory settlement of the Sino-Japanese conflict had virtually ended and that it would begin immediately preparing a report with recommendations for dealing with the controversy.

Paragraph four of article 15 stipulates that when other methods have failed in settling a dispute "the council shall make and publish a report containing a statement of the facts of the dispute and the recommendations which are deemed just and proper in regard thereto."

The foreign office spokesman asserted that a test of the League's attitude will come when the Japanese army proceeds into Jehol, the province between China proper and Manchuria.

LEAGUE COMMITTEE

GENEVA, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The League of Nations committee of 19 appointed a sub-committee of nine members today to draft a report on facts and recommendations for settlement of the Sino-Japanese dispute over Manchuria.

The drafting committee consists of German, British, French, Italian, Belgian, Czechoslovakian, Swiss, Swedish and Spanish delegates, with the German chairman.

The nature of the report was fully discussed, showing a sharp divergence of views. The British wished merely to adopt the Lytton report. (This report concluded last October 2 Japan had not acted in legitimate self-defense in Manchuria and that Manchukuo was not accorded popular support in Manchuria.) Smaller states, however, wanted a more comprehensive treatment of the subject with the facts brought to the present date.

'LAME DUCK' BILL RATIFIED

ka. He hailed the outcome today with the statement:

"The enactment of this amendment is a great step toward placing control of our government in the hands of the chosen representatives of the American people."

He expressed confidence, too, that it will do away with filibustering such as has paralyzed the Senate for the last two weeks, pointing out that with no set adjournment date the tactics of delay can not finally succeed.

In ratifying as thirty-sixth state Missouri had to beat Massachusetts and Nevada, both ready to act today. The Missouri Senate having already acted, the House managed to meet ahead of the scheduled 2 o'clock convening hour so as to overcome the time zone advantage held by Massachusetts. The maneuver succeeded.

Honor of being first to ratify goes to Virginia, which acted last March 4, before even a copy of the resolution proposing the amendment had been laid before it. Pennsylvania was among the ratifying states.

PLAN NEW AMENDMENT

One more amendment is contemplated by the Constitution modernizers: Abolition of the electoral college, so that the people may vote directly upon the president, and the election shall depend upon a straight national majority. It is possible now for the man with less than half the popular vote to win.

Here is a thumb-nail history of the Twentieth Amendment ratified today:

First approved by the Senate February, 1923. Killed by the House.

Adopted again by the Senate March, 1924. Not considered by the House.

Third passage by the Senate, February, 1926. House failed to act.

Senate approved again January, 1928; House vote, March, 1928, showed majority but not the needed two-thirds.

Fifth adoption in Senate, June, 1929; House approved a compromise measure February 24, 1931. Died in conference committee.

For sixth time, approved by Senate, February, 1932. House approved with slight amendments same month. Final agreement, March 2, 1932, the proposal going to the states.

CABINET TOPIC OF ROOSEVELT

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Jan. 23.—(INS.)—President-elect Roosevelt's efforts to align the insurgent bloc of the Republican party behind his forthcoming Democratic administration apparently had taken a great stride today as a result of his first 24 hours in the "Little White House" here.

The President-elect came to this health resort for the purpose of finally formulating his administrative policies and picking a cabinet. His first callers, significantly, were Senators Robert M. La Follette (Rep.), of Wisconsin, and Bronson Cutting (Rep.), of New Mexico.

Following a Sunday night conference it appeared that Mr. Roosevelt was prepared to indorse, with some amendments, the La Follette measure to distribute half a billion dollars direct from the federal treasury among the needy.

Also, there were indications that Senator Cutting, a Republican who bolted his party in the last campaign, might become the next Secretary of Interior.

The other cabinet position rumored to be involved was that of Secretary of State. Mr. Roosevelt is represented as being anxious to appoint Owen D. Young, New York financier, to that portfolio because of his intimate knowledge of the foreign debt and reparations situation.

McFadden Makes Attack on Hoover

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—After two unsuccessful efforts to get a hearing in the House on resolutions impeaching President Hoover, Representative McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, today got the floor on a question of personal privilege and attacked Mr. Hoover and his war debt negotiations.

He refrained, however, from making a third impeachment move. On each of the earlier occasions he was cut off by motions to table the charges, both coming from the Democratic side of the chamber.

Sees Roosevelt O. K. on Shoals Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Senator George W. Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, this afternoon predicted President-elect Roosevelt will sign a bill providing for government operation of the $100,000,000 federal waterpower project at Muscle Shoals, Ala.

Norris made his forecast on his return here from an inspection trip to the project with the President-elect.

PINCHOT URGES RUSS TRADE

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot, in a letter made public today, asserted that "it is stupidity of the worst kind to allow European countries to supplant us in Russian markets simply because, with diplomatic channels closed, we lack the means of businesslike understanding."

He made this statement in a letter to Kirk A. Landon, of New York, executive secretary of the National Committee for the Recognition of Soviet Russia. Pinchot wrote:

"I have no sympathy whatsoever with Communism, but I am not afraid of it nor of the recognition of Russia by this country."

Insurance Poison Plot Trial Opens

Mrs. Mary Chalfa, 31, and Mrs. Anna Allas, 38, both of Munhall, today went on trial on murder charges in connection with an alleged "insurance poison plot." Selection of a jury was begun before Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County.

The two women are charged with administering poison to two stepsons of Mrs. Allas, Andrew, 16, and Steve, 12, to collect insurance. Both had been exonerated by a coroner's jury.

URGE PAY CUT FOR JUDGES

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—Whether the Supreme Court's ruling that judges are not "public officers" in the view of the Constitution, and can thus obtain salary increases during their terms, cannot be turned inversely as a weapon to bring reductions, is to be tested if the demands of some Senators prevail this week at a meeting of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Insisting upon economy, these Senators are pressing for favorable report on a bill which would cut salaries of Allegheny County Common Pleas Court judges from $14,000 to $11,500, and County Court judges to $8,000 from $10,000. Senators of this mind are insisting the bill shall stipulate that all judges be liable to the reduction, and not only those to be elected next fall.

The State Constitution prohibits any alteration in an official's salary during the term for which he is elected. However, some years ago when a judicial salary raiser was passed, and those already on the bench became eligible to the increase—and took it.

The decision caused much comment, and committee members desire to determine if the opinion works both ways. These Senators are displeased that judges have not voluntarily taken a salary cut to date.

In Allegheny County, if the bill did not apply to all judges, only three on the Common Pleas bench, Judges James R. Macfarlane, Harry H. Rowand and Ralph H. Smith or their successors, would be affected, as their terms expire this year. The only County Court suffered would be the appointee to the existing vacancy or the attorney elected for that place.

Bellevue Banker's Trial Continues

Stock brokers and bank examiners today resumed their testimony in the trial of Ansley D. Smith, former cashier of the closed Citizens Trust Company of Bellevue, on charges of embezzlement. The case has been on trial a week and probably will continue all this week.

DEBT PARLEY WIDENED

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The Anglo-American conference at Washington proposed by President-elect Roosevelt for early in March, has been widened in scope to such an extent, according to the British interpretation of an aide-memoire given by Secretary Stimson to the ambassador at Washington, that the British government has decided to devote the utmost care to preparations for it.

So important do Prime Minister MacDonald and his colleagues of the national government consider Mr. Roosevelt's proposals that it was decided at today's cabinet session not to give formal consideration to the American proposals until the individual cabinet members have had an opportunity to study the situation fully.

Linking debts to general world economic problems, as Mr. Stimson's invitation on behalf of Mr. Roosevelt does, is considered a major development in Anglo-American problems.

Electric Turbine Wrecked by Fire

BURLINGTON, N. J., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Accompanied by a detonation, fire today destroyed a high pressure steam turbine in the Public Service electric generating plant and considerably damaged a portion of the plant. No one was injured.

The oil around the turbine gave off dense billows of black smoke which blanketed the city, and the heat was so terrific it warped and twisted the steel girders in the building housing the turbine. Chief Ralph McKinley estimated the damage at not less than $200,000.

SENATE SPEEDS GLASS BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—With night sessions threatened to speed action on the Glass banking reform bill, the Senate today began consideration of the three remaining major controversial features.

These deal with separation of national banks from security affiliates, removal of the Secretary of the Treasury from the Federal Reserve Board, and creation of a federal supported corporation to liquidate closed banks.

Senator Long (Dem.), of Louisiana, opposed all three provisions, but he showed no inclination to delay action. He spoke only 40 minutes on the three proposals, obtaining unanimous consent to proceed 10 minutes longer than the debate-limiting agreement allowed.

Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, author of the bill, said he had a compromise to propose on the security affiliates section, but did not say what it was.

Meanwhile, Senator Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana, initiated another controversy by serving notice he would offer as an amendment his bill to remonetize silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 with gold.

Jury Job Dodging Sets Low Record

A big slump in the number of persons seeking to avoid jury service was seen in Common Pleas Court today as all but five of 230 persons summoned for duty signified their willingness to serve.

One woman and four men asked to be excused. Two men said they had new jobs and didn't want to jeopardize them. The number of excuses was the smallest offered in the memory of veteran court attaches.

Avoid Hostile Family, Jobless Men Urged

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Unemployed husband are warned not to stay home too much and their wives are cautioned not to punish their anxious menfolk in a report on "What the Depression Is Doing to Family Life," issued today by the National Committee for Mental Hygiene.

It is compiled by George K. Pratt, M. D., under the title "Morale, the Mental Hygiene of Unemployment," and one section is devoted to family life. The report said:

"When the bread-winner loses his job there is often seen a tendency in the other members of the family to thrown blame on to the father. He usually reacts in one of several ways: Sometimes he gives in and adopts a hangdog air.

"In this case he often develops numerous symptoms of apparent physical disease for which, however, the most careful medical examination fails to disclose any adequate physical cause. However, this man does not deliberately manufacture such symptoms."

Sometimes he fights back. Sometimes he deserts the family. The report says:

"Perhaps father should not spend so much time at home."

Lion Hunt Organizer To Shoot 'Circus'

By JIMMY (TARZAN) CORCORAN

International News Service.

EAST PRAIRIE, Mo., Jan. 23.—Denver M. (Call Me Reckless) Wright is through with lions. Perhaps the lions are through with Denver, too, but that isn't the point.

After the balloon went up last Saturday on Yonder Island the home-brewed huntsman took a peek at the two deceased brutes and said:

"I am sorry that I had to shoot the two of you but you really brought it on yourselves. I did not intend to do any shooting until Monday. If you had only gone to the other end of the island it would not have been necessary to fire while you were practically in a sitting posture."

The lion hunt, as far as Huntsman Wright was concerned, turned out to be a huge "bust." What with truckage for lions and various addenda in the way of expense, the hunt such as it was cost him around $2,000. He declares that the fun he got out of his few pot shots wasn't worth the sugar expended.

And now you are wondering what Denver (Call Me Reckless) Wright is going to do next?

Well, don't be surprised at this one. If you can find a good circus for sale cheap—I mean one that has the full quota of elephants, lions, tigers, leopards, gnus, monkeys and clowns—he will purchase the same and cart it to another isolated island in the Mississippi.

Denver will allow the various members of the circus to frolic as they will for a few days and then with his son Charley (My Boy) he will pick off the individuals one by one.

CAPONE 'BIG SHOT' OF PRISON, SAYS FELLOW CONVICT

SPECIAL FAVORS AWARDED TO GANGSTER

Aside From Freedom, Gets What He Wants, But Rails at Fate

(Editor's Note—Following is the first of a series of three stories describing Al Capone's life in federal prison at Atlanta, where he is serving a sentence of 11 years for income tax fraud. The author is an ex-convict who worked in the prison shoe shop with the notorious gang leader. He has just been released after completing a sentence of 28 months for impersonating a federal officer. He was committed from Philadelphia. The facts as to his own case have been verified.

The fact that since Capone's incarceration no newspaper reporters have been permitted to see him, and virtually nothing about his life behind the bars is known to the public lends added interest to this series.)

By EX-CONVICT NO. 35,503
As told to International News Service.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 23.—Al Capone remains "The Big Shot."

He was "The Big Shot" in the years he dominated Chicago's racketeering underworld and he is still "The Big Shot" behind the gray walls of Atlanta prison—at least so far as his personal comfort and special privileges are concerned.

Outside of actually being permitted to leave the walls, he gets about what he wants over there in the big house, far more at any rate than the ordinary prisoner.

Plentifully supplied with money (although no other prisoner is permitted to have more than $10 at one time), he still wears the silk underwear that he boasts cost him $12 a suit, he wears suits tailored for him in the prison tailor shop and the specially-made shoes that he says cost him $25 a pair.

Other convicts wear the regulation prison issue garb.

VOLUMINOUS MAIL

He receives and sends a voluminous mail, although other prisoners are limited to writing two letters a week. Al apparently convinced the authorities that his "business" necessitated this mail, and on the ground that it is "business correspondence" much of it goes uncensored. I've seen him get lots of uncensored letters.

In the matter of visitors, too, he gets a fairly free hand. They're coming down here all the time from Chicago to see him, and Al persuaded the authorities to let him have a special room in which to see them. Other prisoners see their visitors in the regular visitors' room, separated by a table and with a guard present. There isn't any guard around when Al talks business with his friends. His wife and mother see him about as often as they want.

His "work" in the shoe shop is more or less a joke. He usually shows up for an hour or two in the morning to tack on some rubber heels. Then there will be visitors, or he goes over to the hospital for treatment, or plays tennis. He has special hours on the tennis courts.

LUXURY MATTRESS

Often he spends nights in the hospital, where there are regular mattresses on the beds instead of the straw ticks used in the cells. Those hospital mattresses are a lot softer than those cell bunks.

Sometimes he eats with the other prisoners. Sometimes he doesn't.

With his money, he can buy things from the commissary that are a good deal more appetizing than the prison grub, which isn't so hot, as they say. The food is all right until it hits the kitchen, but they murder it there.

But with all his money and his special privileges, Al Capone is a mighty unhappy man.

When he first came down to the prison, he cried on everybody's shoulder that would listen to him about how he had been "double-crossed" and "cheated" by the authorities in Chicago. He said he had distributed three hundred "grand" in Chicago to insure a light sentence, but they crossed him up, he said.

I've heard him put his head in his hands and say:

"Oh, why did I do it?"

I don't know whether he meant

LELGRADE, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—King Alexander of Jugoslavia and the Queen, accompanied by the King's personal adjutant and foreign minister, Boshko Jeftich, has left for Sinia where they will make a private visit with King Carol of Rumania.

Diplomatic circles, however, regard the visit as highly important in view of the present Italian-Jugoslavian situation and as a gesture to the world demonstrating the strength of the little entente.

Gandhi to Guide Paper From Cell

POONA, India, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—From his prison cell at Yeroda, Mahatma Gandhi will guide the policy of a new weekly newspaper to be published here, devoted exclusively to the removal of the stigma of "untouchability."

He is not to be the editor, for he realizes his limitations as a political prisoner.

Programs are heard in the Chatterbox and Exhibit Hall from this station housed in its own little building, 53 inches long, 22 inches deep and 20 inches high. The station, while broadcasting on 4-100 watt, is perfect in each detail with the city's large stations.

The show management has prepared every convenience for careful inspection. Sponsored by the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, the show is expected to draw thousands of out-of-town visitors and dealers.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—A famous international marriage came to an end today when Viscountess Furness, the former Thelma Morgan Converse, American society beauty, was granted a divorce on grounds of unfaithfulness.

Viscount Furness, British shipping magnate, did not contest the suit.

Lady Furness named Helen Griselain as co-respondent, charging her husband visited a Paris hotel with her in October, 1932.

Lady Furness is the twin sister of Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt.

MISS MARBURY, WORLD FAMED 'FAILURE,' DIES

Great Tribute Planned For Leader in Art, Politics, Welfare

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The metropolis prepared a notable funeral today for Miss Elisabeth Marbury, 76, who considered herself a failure.

A renowned leader in theatrical, literary, political and civic life, she nevertheless believed that any one of millions of obscure housewives was more successful than she.

When asked for her ideas about success for women, she would say:

"There is only one real success for women; that is to marry happily and have children and a home. In other words, to bring forth life as God intended a woman should."

NOTABLE FUNERAL

Because Miss Marbury had talents and went "out into the world," there will be a notable funeral tomorrow. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman is expected to head a huge gathering of distinguished people who will go to St. Patrick's Cathedral to pay tribute to the woman who died yesterday of a heart attack.

Most people would have said that Miss Marbury's was a full life. She was a member of the Democratic National Committee, agent for famous authors, adviser to young talent, war worker and woman leader.

In a book called "My Crystal Ball" she told of her dealings with poets, statesmen, dancers, generals, playwrights and politicians. She was play agent for Victorien Sardou and George Bernard Shaw. Oscar Wilde sent her "The Ballad of Reading Gaol" from his prison cell and she sold it here for $250.

KNEW NELLIE MELBA

She crossed the Atlantic 70 times, went bicycling with Nellie Melba in Brittany. She saw Paris in ruins just after the Prussian victory in 1870. She promoted the New York success of Irene and Vernon Castle and she established a highly moral dance hall on Broadway. She got decorated by several governments and founded women's clubs. She fought for Al Smith and against prohibition.

But, she would say, "there is only one real success for women."

BLONDE BANDIT HOLDS UP MAN

Police today were seeking a tall, willowy blonde, who totes a six-shooter, for holding up C. E. Murphy, 7073 Campania avenue, last night as he alighted from a street car at the end of the Lincoln avenue line.

The woman, who Murphy said was about six feet tall, approached him as he walked toward his home and demanded to know how much money he had, according to Murphy's report to police.

When he saw that she was holding a big gun, Murphy told her he had about $7.50. He turned the money over to her at her demand, police said. The blonde declared he should have had more money, police said.

After robbing him, Murphy said, the gunwoman entered a waiting automobile and was driven away by a male companion.

RUTH TO PLEAD FOR PARDON

By EDWARD LABOWITCH
International News Service.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 23.—Fighting to obtain a pardon from her death sentence, Winnie Ruth Judd, condemned "double trunk" murderer, today sought an opportunity to appear before the Arizona Pardon Board.

Before being returned to her cell in the state prison at Florence, where she is scheduled to be hanged February 17 for the murder of Agnes Annie Leroi, Mrs. Judd declared she hoped to plead her own case before the Pardon Board this week.

She has applied for a pardon, or commutation of her sentence. The state charged that after the murders the dismembered bodies of Mrs. Leroi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson were shipped in trunks to Los Angeles. She believed that she had established that she killed the pair in self-defense.

Meanwhile, the preliminary hearing of J. J. (Happy Jack) Halloran, accused as Mrs. Judd's accessory, was continued until tomorrow when Prosecutor Renz L. Jennings announced this morning he was not yet ready to argue on the motion of defense counsel for dismissal of the charges.

3 MEN ACCUSED AS BOGUS DRYS

The roar of a broken automobile muffler led to the arrest of three men who are held today while special agents of the United States Bureau of Investigation investigate alleged bogus prohibition agent credentials they are alleged to have carried, and the kidnaping of bootleggers in Ohio.

George W. Guthrie, 34, alias John L. Keith, who was said to have been dismissed as a pronibition agent at Columbus, O., in July, 1931, and Elwood L. Moore, 35, alias G. L. Osborne, were arrested in Creighton by Police Chief Jack Hepler Saturday night. They pleaded guilty before a justice of the peace to a charge of violating a borough ordinance in having a faulty exhaust muffler.

Chief Hepler searched the automobile and found three sets of credentials for prohibition agents, he told federal officers. Guthrie and Moore were turned over to the federal authorities. Warren Wertz, 38, was arrested at the New Kensington railroad station.

COUNTY HEADS SLASH BUDGET BLINDLY

In Dark on Revenue; Renewal of Woodside Feud Planned

As the Board of County Commissioners moved into the final 10 days' budget session, apparently blindly slashing into the 1933 budget with nothing on which to hazard a guess as to the revenue for the year, the groundwork was being laid for the "second battle of the resignations."

County Solicitor J. P. Fife today sent a letter to Attorney A. W. Powell, counsel for County Controller Robert G. Woodside, suggesting they meet tomorrow and make plans for the continuation of last Thursday's hearing on the controller's charges against the Board.

AWAIT ASSESSMENTS

The county real estate and personal property assessments, upon which the entire current tax revenues for 1933 depend, have not been announced by the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, and Chairman C. C. McGovern declared he has not yet seen the figures for the total assessments.

Several weeks ago, it was announced unofficially the county's total real estate assessment would be $1,825,967,240, an increase of $8,000,000 over last year. This figure was not definitely confirmed by George E. Meyers, head of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes.

Meyers did reveal that a number of properties had been found in the county, some of considerable value which had not been assessed. Any increase over last year, according to Meyers, will be due to equalizing assessments and not to a general increase.

EQUALIZATION SOUGHT

McGovern has declared there will have to be a general equalization of assessments in the next triennial year, 1934. Parts of the downtown district have been getting away too easily, he says, and the man with the small home has had to pay for it.

Until this year's assessment figures are available, McGovern says it will be impossible to say definitely how much must be cut from the printed budget to maintain the present 8⅜ mill tax rate or to cut under it.

PEGGY SEEKING FILM CAREER

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Peggy Hopkins Joyce, four times married, was taking no chances in Hollywood today.

She admitted that she had not brought many of her famous jewels to Hollywood. She said:

"Just before I left New York I had a mysterious phone call from a man who warned me—'you'd better watch your step—don't take any of your jewelry to Hollywood with you.'"

A pair of husky Hollywood detectives met her when she stepped from the train at the Pasadena Railway Station.

But her bodyguard, Miss Joyce admitted, had nothing to do with men.

The blonde actress, here to film one picture—in which she will "play herself," and possible other pictures, declared emphatically that romance had nothing to do with her present venture.

She said:

"Married four times? Sure, but my career today is strictly in the movies.

"Me stay single five years? Well, didn't you hear me say that my career today was in the movies. Sure I'll get married again, some day, when I find the right man! But why limit me to five years?"

BOY IN STEEL 'LUNG' DIES

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Herbert Fuchs, 15, who recovered from infantile paralysis after lying for 270 days in an airtight steel respirator, died early today of a heart attack.

He died in the respirator, to which he had been returned for a week suffering from bronchial pneumonia. He was recovering from the pneumonia attack and was to have been released today.

After spending approximately nine months in the respirator, Herbert was taken home May 29, last year. His parents promised him a trip to Europe as soon as he was strong enough to travel. He had been making excellent progress, his doctors said, until he contracted bronchial pneumonia recently.

PROTEST 'EXILE' OF 40 IN RAID AT BEAVER

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 23.—Judge A. H. Sayers today planned to protest to Gov. Pinchot the alleged dumping of 40 Negro prisoners from Beaver County on Gordon Hill, near the West Virginia state line on Saturday night. Washington County is expected to join in the protest, as half of the prisoners stopped in Washington while en route back to Beaver.

The Negroes, arrested in a raid on a resort near Beaver Friday night, were said to have been loaded in three trucks after they are reported to have been unable to pay fines assessed them Saturday and hauled across the county line into Greene County, where they were told to "get into West Virginia."

Late Saturday night 20 of the Negroes, including four women, trekked into Waynesburg, where they were given lodging over night. The others were reported to have continued in the direction of West Virginia and today were somewhere in the neighborhood of Morgantown.

After spending the night in Waynesburg the "travelers" resumed their journey yesterday morning, reaching Washington last night. Generous citizens of Waynesburg provided bus transportation for the women.

Incensed over the summary action, Judge Sayers declared yesterday he planned to protest to Gov. Pinchot and ask a full investigation. The prosecutor of Washington County also announced he intended to make an investigation to determine the legality of the move by Beaver County authorities.

Many of the victims of the so-called "shanghaling," which critics said, parallels the method by which the entire population of two Russian towns were exiled into Siberia, said they were property owners in Midland, Industry and other Beaver County settlements. They were employed on the Montgomery Dam construction project.

FIRE SUSPECTS LEAVE CITY

Four Cleveland detectives left here today with Paul Childs, 29, druggist, of 3834 Beechwood boulevard, and Samuel Neaman, 42, insurance adjuster, of 2241 Brownsville road, for Cleveland, where they are charged with murder and arson in connecttion with the Ellington apartment fire which claimed 13 lives. They were traveling by automobile.

Childs and Neaman surrendered to homicide detectives here Friday night after Cleveland had wired for their apprehension. They are alleged to have conspired with Ben Hirsch, of Aliquippa; L. J. Kamins, now serving a term in Rockview Penitentiary, and Ray L. Turk, who has been arrested in Cleveland, to fire the Ellington apartments.

Childs and Neaman, through their attorney, Charles Margiotti, announced yesterday they would waive extradition.

Columbiana County Wants Arson Suspect

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Jan. 23.—Columbiana County authorities today will ask both Pennsylvania and Ohio authorities to hold Abe Redlich, serving an arson sentence in a Beaver (Pa.) jail and wanted as a "key" witness to the Ellington apartment fire. Redlich, indicted by the grand jury for arson in a fire which damaged the Albert Pearce grocery store here, jumped a $2,500 bond after pleading guilty last May 11, Clerk of Courts John A. Noble at Lisbon said.

HAS FEW FRIENDS

Naturally, getting all these privileges, and his perpetual "crabbing" against his fate and everything else hasn't tended to make him very popular with the other inmates. He has a small clique around him that toady to him for cigars, cigarets, extra food and other things that make life in there more endurable.

The prison commissary even put in his own favorite brand of cigars. He buys them by the box.

When he first came down everybody was curious about him for he was supposed to be "the biggest shot" ever sent down. Everybody was prepared to be friendly, too. But he sort of patronized everybody. And prison is a poor place for one man to be patronizing to another. This and his airs and his privileges have made him rather unpopular, and now he gets a good deal of "razzing." He can't take it very well, either.

They call him "grease ball" and "wop" and "macaroni bender" and make obscene cracks about his being "a big shot."

And he will yell at them:

"Shut up, you muggs, I've handled more dough than you and all your families ever saw."

Plenty of profanity is mixed up in it.

No, Al isn't very happy in there. Still, nobody is.

He has been trying for some time to wangle a transfer to the new federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa., to which most of the Italians have been sent. But he hasn't had much luck yet.

Capone 'Brickmen' Wreck 18 'Speaks'

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Shattered fronts of 18 speakeasies today attested to the Capone syndicate's latest enforcement technique—brick hurling.

Police learned that proprietors of the resorts had refused to buy Capone alcohol. The bricks shattered plate glass windows in all 18 places.

IMPORT FLOOD CITED BY DAVIS

"Buy American" was advocated by Senator James J. Davis last night, here to speak at the closing meeting of the two-day conference of the Disabled American War Veterans at the Fort Pitt Hotel. He said:

"With millions of dollars of products from other countries competing without agricultural and manufactured goods, it is time now even if we have to put an embargo on them, to keep American markets for American goods."

He said hundreds of thousands of tons of coal are imported from Russia and China, while American miners are idle and reduced to starvation. The same thing, he added, is true of the steel, pottery and other industries. He declared:

"Nearly every one of our basic industries have been destroyed by products from low wage paying countries."

There is something wrong, he pointed out in a society in which men go hungry while farmers are unable to sell the products of their bursting granaries and in which men sleep under bridges or on park benches while carpenters, bricklayers and stonemasons are idle. He said:

"It looks to me as if we must follow the Hearst newspapers, Buy American plan or else declare an embargo on foreign goods."

Victim of Mystery Illness Improving

Roger Morgan, Freeport lad, whose illness had puzzled physicians for more than a month, was reported improved today in the Mercy Hospital. Physicians have been subjecting him to two blood transfusions weekly to keep him alive while they diagnose his case.

Death of Woman, Lye Victim, Probed

The Coroner today was investigating the death of Mrs. Anna Harha, 51, of 1302 Overcliff street, who died in her home yesterday. According to a report to the Coroner, she swallowed lye in mistake for medicine last Friday.

'Buy American' Wins Support in Dormont

Society Girl Spurs Drive in Oliver Building

Dormont businessmen and women, at the behest of the Dormont Chamber of Commerce, have inaugurated a "Buy American" campaign.

The campaign followed the indorsement of the national "Buy American" campaign sponsored by the Hearst newspapers. Traders in Dormont have agreed to use posters and stickers, and encourage residents of the borough and its environs to enlist in the movement with the hope of giving orders to factories and aiding employment.

SOCIETY GIRL'S IDEAS

Likewise, Miss Katherine Kuhn, society girl, who started a "Buy American" sticker business in the Oliver Building, summed up her ideas on the campaign as follows:

"Why not help each other?

"Give Americans a chance to prove their ability; to work out of the abyss of fear and despair that grips the nation.

"We can do it if we try!

"Our worker is the most efficient in the world. Our artists, in every field, compare favorably with the foreigner who has centuries of training behind him.

"In every walk of life we have men and women who can do our work and do it well.

"American designers are capable of giving us clothes and jewelry, trinkets and treasures, that will stand the tests of style and beauty and originality.

"If we buy American goods created by Americans the wheels of industry will turn once more; the unemployed millions will earn again; and those who have lost all hope in a future prosperity will take courage and begin to build again.

WHY HESITATE?

"Why should we hesitate?

"Loyal subjects of the British empire are rallying to the cry 'Buy British.' They are making the campaign a success. And they are absolutely right. First and foremost, home industries should be protected.

"Consul General Kenna told the American Chamber of Commerce in France: 'Comment in this district (Lille) was to the effect that the attitude of the local population toward international trade is most discouraging. There is no longer any necessity for a "Buy French" campaign as the idea of protection of home industry has so spread that none but a few of more courageous agents are interested in American products.' Loyal Frenchmen have created this condition for the benefit of the national business.

"Let us emulate the national loyalty of our friends across the sea. Let us be wise enough and brave enough to insist on Buying American."

World War Nurse Dies in Hotel Here

Heart disease was blamed today for the death of Kathryn Fannin, 40, a war nurse, of Ridgway, who died yesterday in the Pittsburgher Hotel shortly after she had left the Marine Hospital to consult a specialist.

Miss Fannin was suffering from a lung infection caused by a gas attack while she was serving as a nurse in France during the World War. The American Legion claimed her body, and will be in charge of services prior to her funeral tomorrow in Ridgway.

THUGS TORTURE 'WRONG BRIDE'

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(Universal)—Two torture bandits were sought by police today after having tormented Mrs. Inez Howe, 35, a bride of three months.

But it was apparently the wrong bride.

As she stepped into the corridor from her apartment, she was seized, thrust back into her home, gagged and bound. The radio was turned on full blast to drown her moans and the voices of the two assailants, Mrs. Howe told police:

"They said they knew there was a lot of money in the apartment. There wasn't, but I couldn't convince them. They struck me, twisted my arms, and threatened to burn my feet with matches. Finally they found my purse, which had only $5.35 in it. Then one of the men said he guessed they had the wrong woman."

They left her on the floor, gagged and bound. Her husband, Louis, an engineer, found her three hours later.

Stricken at Work Auto Washer Dies

A post mortem examination was to be made today to determine the cause of death of Willis Ward, 37, of 2502 Hallett street, who collapsed early today while washing automobiles in the Manor Garage at 2130 Murray avenue. He died in Homeopathic Hospital.

Stove Fumes Kill South Side Man

William Patchin, 66, was found dead on the bathroom floor of his home, 1803 Carson street, early yesterday. A coroner's report said he had been overcome by the fumes of a small heater. His relatives are being sought.

MILLS IN DRIVE ON SLUMP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—A four-point program to bring about the "beginning of the end of depression" was laid down today by Secretary of the Treasury Mills before the House Banking and Currency Committee. Summed up, Mills recommended these steps:

1—Balance the budget.

2—Pursue a vigorous policy through the Federal Reserve system to allow easy credit.

3—Stabilize foreign exchange through removal of some of the barriers interfering with free movement of trade.

4—Deal with the various categories of debt, class by class, rather than attempt a wholesale cure.

SURVEY SHOWS NINE MILLIONS LACK SCHOOL

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Approximately 9,500,000 American children are being deprived of essential schooling today.

The welfare of millions of others in states throughout the Union is being threatened.

Traditional methods of financing public schools have broken down, and disaster will follow unless immediate steps are taken by state legislatures to revise present methods of taxation.

These were among the 35 findings published today by Prof. Paul R. Mort, director of the School of Education at Teachers' Colege, Columbia University, following a national survey of school finances.

Mort said that "vast barren areas" exist in the United States where schools have gone quite out of existence or are distinctly inferior.

Among other findings of the survey are:

A fundamental change required is the transfer of the burden of support of education from local communities to the entire state.

The property tax is overburdened. More use must be made of other forms of taxation.

Directors of State To Fight 'Scuttling'

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Alice D. Scattergood, president of the State School Directors' Association, in a statement today said school directors "will stand solidly against any false legislative economies that will tend to scuttle the public school system or retard its progress."

EINSTEIN BROADCASTS :-: 'Rosey' Rowswell Makes Debut With Eskimos :-: RADIO NEWS, GOSSIP

Three Mystery Thrillers On Air

Dr. Albert Einstein's only radio address of his present visit to this country goes on a coast-to-coast network tonight.

The noted scientist and author of the theory of relativity, now in the United States as visiting professor of theoretical physics at the California Institute of Technology, is to be the principal speaker during a broadcast on the subject, 'America and the World Situation," heard over NBC's blue network including KDKA at 11:15 p. m. Other speakers on the program, to be introduced by Dr. Robert A. Millikan, famous scientist, are Henry M. Robinson, banker, and Dr. William B. Munro, historian.

Dr. Einstein

"Rosey" Rowswell, popular Pittsburgh humorist and philosopher, makes his debut as toastmaster of the new Eskimo show featuring Gay Ellis (Annette Hanshaw) and Harry Reser's orchestra over the same facilities at 8 o'clock. For their new series, the Eskimos go on a new network and new schedule—NBC-KDKA Monday at 8—and substitute an informal spirit for the night club atmosphere which has marked their programs heretofore.

Tenors Rivals For Torch Singer

Tommy McLaughlin and Phil Regan, both tenors, are reported rivals for the affection of Edna Rush, CBS torch singer . . . Giovanni Martinelli, Metropolitan tenor, is to sing on next Sunday's Circle program . . . Edgar Morris, KQV tenor, celebrates his first anniversary on the air today . . . Those Vic and Sade sketches presented by Van Harvey and Bernardine Flynn have been given a night spot—10:15 o'clock—on the NBC-WJZ net in response to numerous requests, most of which came from parents. The series, heard heretofore on KDKA, will not be carried locally, however.

Miss Flynn

Kate Smith, who has just returned to New York from Hollywood following the completion of her film, "Hello Everybody," starts a coast-to-coast tour next week that will end in the movie capital and another picture in the spring . . . It's to be a dramatic war story with Kate playing the role of a singing war nurse.

Hard-working boys, Les Reis and Arty Dunn . . . They rise each morning at 7:30 a. m., go to the Columbia studios and rehearse for a 9:45 a. m. broadcast, have breakfast and head theaterwards for five shows daily. Between the dinner shows and afterwards until 3 a. m. they appear in the New Yorker Hotel grille . . . and in addition, they have three night broadcasts each week. Altogether, they sing 45 songs every 24 hours.

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

It's in the air. The only positive sign of spring. Love! How do I know? I got a valentine. A little girl sent it, enclosing a German stamp and a piece of candy. We still have the stamp.

What's in a name? Here is John Livengood, Salisbury's noted figure, celebrating his 96th birthday in his blacksmith shop making cake turners and butcher knives which he gave to his friends in honor of the occasion. John is a Civil War veteran who intermingles tales of battle with his unique experiences as a 'coon hunter. He is the Rockefeller of Salisbury on a 10 per cent basis, having given more pennies to children than the other townsfolk.

Mrs. F. K., Industry, Pa., a marathon reader of long standing, hasn't missed an edition since 1897 and has been following consistently the serial "Heart of a Wife" for the last 20 years . . . Her angora cat guards the flock of redbirds and robins that she has been feeding for the past seven years, protecting them from annoyance of other animals.

Being twitted about my ignorance of the color of the infant Reynold's eyes, Mrs. McDonald writes me that all baby eyes are blue for at least six weeks. Later when I boastfully aired this piece of recently acquired knowledge to a proud young mother she countered with:

"But my little Jimmy had brown eyes."

Let sleeping babies lie, says I.

2 DIE IN HOLDUP OF SPEAKEASY

CLEVELAND, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Two men were shot to death yesterday when four masked robbers attempted to hold up a place police said was a speakeasy, occupied at the time by more than 70 men and women.

The dead are John Vecchio, 22, one of the robbers, and Michael M. Bobey, 23, said by police to have been a patron of the place.

Vecchio, witnesses said, was left alone to guard patrons on the lower floor of the building, while the other three went upstairs. Bobey, Detective Lieut. Alfred Jones was told, thought the holdup was a joke and started a scuffle with Vecchio, which ended when Bobey was shot.

George Jacobs, described by police as one of the proprietors of the place, then drew a revolver and shot the robber. Patrons and the three remaining robbers fled.

OUT-STATE CAR TAGS CHECKED

State highway patrolmen were continuing their investigation today in an effort to learn whether Pennsylvania autoists are using tags of other states, which can be purchased cheaper and easier than in this state.

Plates for a 25-horsepower car cost only $7 in Ohio, as compared with $10 in Pennsylvania.

Officials of the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh expressed doubt that the practice of Pennsylvanians purchasing Ohio tags was carried out to any extent among owners of cars above the 25-horsepower class. Above this classification, which includes the Ford, Chevrolet and Essex, Ohio licenses cost more than Pennsylvania's.

Babe, One Week Old, Undergoes Operation

AURORA, Ill., Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Although just one week old, Eugene Robert Viola today was reported by physicians to be recuperating satisfactorily from a blood transfusion and a major operation to remove an obstruction from the outlet of the stomach.

The operation was performed Saturday in St. Joseph's Hospital here, Leon Viola, the infant's father, giving the blood for the transfusion. Another transfusion may be necessary, doctors said.

Defends 'Stop Alien Representation' Plan

The "stop alien representation" amendment to the Constitution, as proposed in the Sparks-Capper bill, was upheld by Dr. William H. Anderson, general secretary of the American Christian Alliance, speaking in Bridgeville Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday. He said:

"This amendment raises no religious, racial or partisan issue. Alien influence in opposing it is trying to prevent the loss of its political power."

Wilkinsburg Vets Give Sunday Show

A benefit movie was held last night by Wilkinsburg Veterans of Foreign Wars, despite the reading in many Wilkinsburg congregations of a resolution opposing Sunday shows. Burgess William M. Turner, who had informed the veterans he would not issue a permit for their performance, but would not interfere as long as it was for a worthy cause, attended the show.

True Love Lives On in Spite Of Crippled Bodies

Can a cripple be happy?

A cruel question—one that should never touch a sensitive young life. And yet that question hangs like a cloud over thousands of lonely hearts, hungering for romance and adventure.

There was little Ella, with her twisted hand. Plenty to Ella besides that twisted hand—a pretty face, a sweet disposition, a bright brain and a friendly spirit. But Ella could see nothing, think of nothing, but her deformed fingers, until at last that misery obscured everything else, and she shut herself up with her sad thoughts and let the world go by.

We told her to come out of the darkness and into the light, where she belonged; told her that a twisted hand couldn't deprive her of happiness, unless she let it.

And, reading that, Lee wondered. Lee has found love—but can she keep it?

ANOTHER CRIPPLED GIRL

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I have been reading your column for a long time, and I have at different times found much-needed help in it. Now I want to ask for some advice, too.

I have just read Ella's letter and your answer to her, and I am wondering what you will think of my case, for I, too, am a cripple. And I have nothing so simple as a maimed hand. I have a bad spine and hip, and a broken kneecap. Of course, that makes it necessary for me to use a crutch.

But in spite of this, I get around just as the other girls do, and enjoy life a lot. I am 20 years old.

Of course, the problem is—I am in love. A year and a half ago I met Jim at a party. He is 24. From the first time he laid eyes on me, till the very last minute of the party, he showered attention on me, and did not leave me once during the evening. Possibly that was because I am always cheerful and smiling. People tell me that my smile is my chief attraction, and it certainly does draw people to me.

WANTS TO MARRY

I love Jim very much, and I am sure he loves me. His friends say he was very wild before he met me. I can well believe that, because I had a hard time with him for three months. Then I told him we were through, and we were—for a week. Then he came back, and promised to be different.

I gave him another chance, and he has kept his promise and settled down, for settled he is. He comes to see me three times a week. He takes me to parties and shows—and glowers when anyone seems to take too much interest to me. So he can't be ashamed of me. Here's hoping, anyway.

He has asked me to marry him. I want to, very much. But I wonder if he wouldn't grow tired of me, when the "romance" wore off? I've asked him over and over if my being crippled didn't make a difference. He says that he wouldn't be going with me if he didn't care about me—not for a year and a half, anyway.

Do you think I could make him happy? And is he really settled? I think so, but do you?

LEE.

HANDICAPS CONQUERED

Do I think you can make him happy?

Yes, I do—if you'll make yourself happy.

Already you have drawn him to you; drawn him so powerfully that he has been willing to change all his habits for you. How was that possible? It was possible because you gave him something.

You gave him the lovely things which every man looks for in every woman's laughing lips, trusting eyes and understanding heart.

Because you, yourself, have conquered your own handicap, you were able to help Jim conquer his handicap. And so you seem both sweetheart and saint to him.

And you'll always seem like that to Jim, if you'll always act like that with yourself. If you'll be true to yourself, Jim will be true to you.

That's the secret of love, little girl, and that's the secret of life. In the long run, we always get what we give. Life and love do not fail us unless we fail them. And that doesn't go "just for cripples." It goes for everyone. For, in some sense, we are all crippled. Yet never was there a human being, however warped his body, who could not live and love straight, if he wished.

Men Should Be Fair In Their Flirtations, Declares Fay King

I NEVER SUSPECTED THAT HE WAS MARRIED.
THEY NEVER DREAM THAT ANY HARM CAN COME OF A FLIRTATION
THEIR NAMES FOUND BY THE POLICE IN THE ADDRESS BOOK OF A CROOK
FAY KING

By FAY KING

When girls are young and romantic, and youths are gallant and square, there are bound to be happy, harmless flirtations that lead to friendship, love and marriage.

It is indeed a pity that harm, unhappiness and even tragedy should ever result from this natural attraction of youth for youth.

But, unfortunately, many girls have found that some young men are not as nice as they seemed.

Some perfectly innocent girls have suddenly found themselves questioned by the police when their names were found in the address books of young men under arrest.

Not a few girls have had unpleasant scenes with the wives of men they met romantically, and somehow neglected to mention that they were married.

Men especially should be fair in flirtations, for romantic girls believe the best of everyone.

The Beauty Box

Prince Charming would have a tough time these days finding his Cinderella. Shoes are getting bigger and better, foot troubles are less common. The Cuban heel is displacing that spiked affair that has so bad an effect upon posture and the health of inner organs.

Brilliantine is a blessing to extremly dry hair; it doesn't make it oily, merely imparts luster and sheen. It can be applied by forcing a few drops between the teeth of the comb or by spraying over the coiffure with an atomizer.

Hints for the Household

Colored handkerchiefs require a little more care in washing than plain ones. They should first be soaked for 10 minutes in a basin of tepid water to which a teaspoon of turpentine has been added. This will insure their retaining their color, and after the soaking they can be washed in the usual way.

Stale cake crumbs sprinkled over the top of custards before putting into the oven to bake give the top a delicate brown and the custard a different flavor.

Brixton Is Struck Down by an Unidentified Assailant

There was dismay in Noel's voice as he saw that it was a boy's bicycle standing beside me. But I had no time to deal with objections. There was but one thought in my mind—to catch up with Ronald where he was trailing the lonely route of Samuel Brixton.

"You're wasting time, Noel," I told him the next second, making my voice stern. "Every second we wait here makes a longer time for me to ride this thing with you on it, you know. So let's get started."

He obeyed, and I pedaled out of the driveway, slowly at first, and then, when I got into the deserted main road, smooth as a billiard table, I made my feet go faster and faster until we were making very respectable time indeed over the level road.

When the road began to rise, as it does in any direction out of Sackettsville, I did not feel the strain at first, I was so excited, but when part way up the hill Noel indicated a side road that gave me level going again for a little way, I realized from my pumping heart and labored breathing what I had let myself in for. When the road began to rise again, Noel said suddenly:

"Stop a minute, please. My foot is caught."

MEET RONALD

He slid off, as I obeyed, and took hold of the handle bars.

"I've let you go as far as I dare with this," he said. "Mr. Graham would be justified in shooting me if he knew. Now you sit still and I'll push this thing for awhile until you get your breath again; then when it gets too steep to make any speed, we can walk till we reach the top. We can coast down the other side, but I think we'll come up to Ronald before then. We've made corking good time, thanks to you."

He was a true prophet. We had not quite reached the crest of the hill when Ronald stepped out of the undergrowth at the side of the road.

"I ducked under here until I was sure who it was," he whispered. "You've made good time."

"How far ahead is he?" I asked.

"Less than a quarter mile," he answered. "I'm glad you brought the bicycle. On this dirt road, wherever we can use it, there won't be half the chance of his hearing it that there would be of footsteps."

Noel turned and stared at me.

"That's why you brought it!" he said, a boyish admiration in his voice.

"That, and speed," I acknowledged casually. "Now, Noel, you must hurry back. Ronald and I mustn't let Mr. Brixton get too far ahead of us."

"All right, I'm already gone," Noel retorted, turning away, and I put my hand upon the wheel again.

BRIXTON ATTACKED

"We'll take turns at this, Ronald," I told him. "I'm going to be selfish and let you take most of the uphill work."

"I should think so," Ronald said, bridling.

"But we mustn't get separated from each other," I went on," at least not for more than a few minutes at a time. Let us agree upon this. The one who is ahead upon the bicycle will turn into any road that Mr. Brixton takes, but will only stay on it long enough to see that he intends to travel along it, then come back to the point where the road forked. The walker, behind, will wait at the first fork, the road for the cyclist to come back. Is that clear?"

"Yes, indeed," Ronald answered, and carefully, cautiously, afraid almost to breathe, we took up the trail of the unsuspecting man ahead.

That Sam knew exactly where he was going was evident. Turning at almost every fork into a new road, he came at last to a stile where the road ended. It was too dark to see what was beyond the stile, but we were close enough behind him to hear him climbing it. A glimmer of starlight, for we were on the top of the mountain gave us a dim outline of his figure at the top.

Then, without a sound, a shapeless something rose beside him, there was the sound of a swishing blow, and without a moan Samuel Brixton crashed to the ground.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

At a Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it necessary for a girl to ask her escort if he would mind if she danced with a gentleman whom her escort does not know?

Please explain the proper procedure in a case like this.

M.

The young man who wishes to ask a girl for a dance comes up to her and her escort, asks her for the dance, and then, politely turning to her escort, says, "Do you mind?" Then the young lady says to her escort, "Will you excuse me?" as she would in any other case when she is leaving.

Proper Call to Make

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

After a young man has taken a girl out for over a year and shown her many kindnesses by way of entertainment, would it be considered proper, if the young man was sick and living in his mother's home, for the girl to telephone and inquire about him? R.

Yes, this would be proper and friendly. Indeed for her not to do so would, under the circumstances, seem thoughtless and ungenerous.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: 'Pears to be a wild report that Police Commissioner Mulrooney is to be the new head of the Secret Service, etc. I called him to check on it and he was very nice. He said to tell you to pay no attention to it. That an Albany reporter first started it when he visited there recently . . . Sidney Kent, the Fox executive head; Jack Warner, of Warner's, and other top movie magnates flew here the other day for the confab that you first predicted, which may result in several of the flicker firms consolidating under one tent . . . Charles L. O'Reilly, president of the Theater Owners' Chamber of Commerce, is on the verge of becoming the silent Paramount power—without even the formality of accepting any official berth. His duties will be to safeguard downtown millions, which arrived in time to prevent that rumored receivership. Will Hays is busy applying the pulmotor to two other movie companies.

A. B. C. stopped in to leave a pearl on your desk—to-wit—"People who want to get married should do so young—so they will have plenty of time to regret it!" . . . Arthur Barton, who finally made Donald Flamm's "Amusements" the breeziest of the Broadway guides, is back on the job. He was South for a fortnight to finish "Winesburg, Ohio," a play, with Sherwood Anderson . . . Have you any idea how a letter can reach Pat M. Chisholm, who wrote that lovely piece to the editor of The Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch? . . . Clifford Oldham died Jan. 12. He liked you.

Jack Osterman and Frances Fayne, of the Richmond Club, responded for Mr. McCooey's benefit . . . Frank Hultgren called. Said that columnists were queer cusses — they get their stuff from the people who really live life—and then peddle it back to them at a few cents a copy! . . . The gold shield men of the Detective Endowment-Ass'n will hold their annual affair at the Astor on Feb. 15. The proceeds go to the Welfare Fund . . . Dennis J. Mahoney, who is the president of the ass'n, by the way, has been elected by unanimous acclamation for 9 consecutive years. . . The G'wich Village Casino called. Said it will feed as many performers as it can, gratis . . . I saw the preview of that authentic war picture, "The Big Drive" — it is thrilling and tragic . . . Wonder who that unidentified Catholic priest was who walked serenely through the bullet-storm and clouded battlefield with men falling like rain all around him? What a scene that is—with the priest helping the fallen and blessing the dying . . . Ted Lloyd held by Jersey cops . . . The H. M. Tuckers (Elizabeth-Ann Victoria) are blessed eventing. It will be christened "Cloie" whether it is boy or girl.

One of these vaudeville booking agents has finally been caught in the act of clipping gullible actors and is doing 60 days in the workhouse—hurray! . . . I can't find that Shiela Lord, she left no address . . . The G'wich Village Ball on the 27th, which Cynthia White always runs, will donate part of the profits to the Unemployment Fund.

"Where Are You Tonight?" is a new Mrs. Jesse Crawford-Nickenny tune which is recouping losses for the DeSylva, Brown & Henderson firm . . . A puppet of you will be used in the production of "Caesar Julius" by the Yale Puppeteers show . . . I thought Ben Hecht and Charlie MacArthur owned that show, anyway! . . . Colvin Brown could have had the post of Chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, but Washingtonians think he'll spurn it . . . Jules Levine describes the Main Stem as a street of abandoned hope and hopeful abandonment.

Here's another chance to debunk something. Everybody who praises the lovely Margaret Lindsay in "Cavalcade" (she's the girl who sinks with the Titanic) reports that she is another "English actress" . . . She's from Dubuque, Ioway! . . . They know that technocracy is perfectly harmless and doesn't stand a chance . . . James Fenwick of Madison Sq. Garden called. I told him you had a play to cover and couldn't see the fights. Jaever hear of a sports magazine for millionaires only—that sells for $500 an issue? That was one query that stuck me today . . . A listing of the three major hits on the air (by that ad agency report) are Cantor, Wynn and Vallee . . . Meaning that Rudy is back in the one-two-three division, and if you publish that fact Rudy'll probably choke from the shock . . . Weissmuller is in the skies winging East to Lupe . . . Oh, well—Velez said about it, the better . . . G'by! — Your Girl Friday.

Leading Men Need of Films

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23. Give us more leading men, cry the producers of Hollywood.

The shortage is so acute at RKO that Joel McCrea probably will be drafted to play opposite Ann Harding as well as Constance Bennett. This was admitted by Radio officials who have scanned Hollywood for a suitable masculine lead in "Declasse."

Joel fills the bill, of course, but there was the question of conflicting schedules between the pictures of two leading feminine RKO stars. With Connie Bennett still working on "Our Betters," however, the studio heads figure they can finish with Joel in "Declasse" before he is needed for "Bed of Roses."

Mr. McCrea actor a bit. He is enjoying a brief vacation here in Los Angeles.

The prospect of so much work isn't bothering the tall young

* * *

His literary labors of six months completed, Charles Chaplin sends his completed book east this week. Written from rough notes made on his travels, it will be called "A Comedian Sees the World." Next month Charlie plans to go to the mountains for winter sports. Then he will tackle his new picture.

* * *

Though Marlene Dietrich goes to Germany soon, she will return to Hollywood later to make pictures. This from the German star, who starts to work any day now in "The Song of Songs."

Mr. Brenon

* * *

Don't know what happened, but Herbert Brenon never showed up at Universal to make "Oliver Twist." That makes only one version of the Dickens classic. It'll be made by Monogram.

The waitresses at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer commissary were very much interested in George Raft, who visited the Culver City plant the other day for a talk with Jimmy Durante and Gary Cooper. Later they went out to see Howard Hawks direct Joan Crawford in a scene for "Today We Live."

* * *

Here's an item. They have not given up "Sanctuary," after all, at Paramount. To the contrary, it will be a special, and will start in a fortnight. Mirian Hopkins is to have a role, and there is a strong ligelihood that Fredric March will play a lead.

Ernest Truex Collects Old Lanterns

Ernest Truex, New York stage heading the cast of "Whistling in the Dark," in which he starred on the New York stage, at the Metro-Goldwin-Mayer studios, collects old lanterns as a hobby.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The second and final week of "The Sign of the Cross", photoplay feature in the Nixon, began today. The two weeks of screen fare in our only active legitimate theater will be followed next Monday by the opening here of George White's new musical show, "Melody," to be presented at the usual six night and two matinee performances. Everett Marshall, who has experience in the Metropolitan opera as part of his musical background, will sing opposite Evelyn Herbert in one of the principal parts of Mr. White's new production. Jeanne Aubert, French star, whose only appearance here was in "America's Sweetheart," will be another prominent member of the company that includes Hal Skelly, the popular dancing comedian who has been featured in vaudeville and musical comedy, and was starred a couple of seasons ago in "Burlesque." Opposite him in that play was Barbara Stanwyck, who since has become one of the most popular stars of the films. "Melody" has a book by Edward Childs Carpenter, lyrics by Irving Caesar and music by Sigmind Romberg. The sale of seats will open Thursday.

* * *

The seat sale is now on at Mellor's for the coming one-day appearance here of Eddie Cantor in his unit vaudeville show, in which Mr. Cantor's chief aid will be George Jessel. The company will appear Thursday afternoon and evening, February 2, in Syria Mosque, under the local management of May Beegle.

* * *

Incidentally Miss Beegle announces that she has received many requests for encore numbers by John McCormack when he appears here for his first concert in four years. Songs requested include "Ave Maria," "Rose of Tralee," "The Boys of Wexford," "Dark Rosaleen," "The Jackets Green," "Molly Brannigan," "The Little Silver Ring," "Old Refrain," "The Heather Glen," "Just For Today" and "Eventide." Mr. McCormack no doubt will sing as many of them as his regular program of classical and popular songs will permit.

Jim Thorpe in Film As an Extra

Lionel Barrymore met an old friend on the "Sweepings" set at the RKO Radio studio. It was Jim Thorpe, the famous Indian athlete, whose career has been more colorful than those of most actors or imaginations of most writers. Thorpe, Barrymore found, was working on the set as an extra. He played an Indian in an early sequence of the picture. John Cromwell is directing "Sweepings."

Crooks, Love In Davis

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"Afraid To Talk," photoplay of what happens when politicians truckle to racketeers, is one of two features being presented in the Davis. In it principally are Eric Linden, Sidney Fox and Louis Calhern. It is melodrama, with murder, double-crossing, third degree, and election ballyhoo all mixed up.

Linden and Miss Fox are a young married couple, and Eric is "framed" for a murder after he has identified the real murderer, whom the police have to turn loose because it will be too bad for the bosses if he should make public the number of checks that have passed between them and gangland. Calhern's part is that of a crooked district attorney, Tully Marshall appears as one of his assistants.

The second feature of the bill, "Second Hand Wife," supplies the romantic balance for the other half of the program. It features Sally Eilers, Ralph Bellamy and Helen Vinson, a triangle in which the latter two form the marital sides. Miss Eilers is a stenographer in a firm in which Mr. Bellamy is an officer, and things begin to thicken when she substitutes for his secretary, and his wife shows interest in a music teacher.

John Gilbert Has Lead In 'Rivets'

John Gilbert and Mae Clarke have been selected for the leading parts in "Rivets," forthcoming Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production based on an unproduced play by John W. McDermott. Gilbert's last picture was "Downstairs," and Miss Clarke's films include "Waterloo Bridge," "The Front Page" and "Frankenstein."

The Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association presented another unusual concert last night with capacity audience. The program was in the hands of the Gretchaninoff Trio featuring the famed Russian composer who gives his name to the ensemble.

Mr. Lissfelt

The music was in the main from Gretchaninoff's works and now we have every reason to believe we understand just how he wants them played and sung. The tenor offered also a group of songs from English, French and German writers, most of them well known to us all.

Gretchaninoff is an astonishly simple and handsome fellow. He makes no show of his talents as pianist and remains what we have known him to be, a writer of fine songs. Whether he takes his texts from folk lore or from the anthologies where song writers are wont to look for inspiration he always makes a good choice and finds in his lyrics not only apt tunes, but extremely clever harmonic patterns.

Of his piano works played last night the sketches, "Fleeting Thoughts," are made for young players and show his sympathy as great as Schumann's—for youth. His two-piano (Poeme and Cortege) must be heard again, for his usual partner at the second piano had to be replaced at the last moment, and the two players were not always sure of each other.

The tenor, Albert Rappaport, is a clever singer and pantomimist. In vocalizing he has a variety of methods which in classic songs do not always give the best of the composer. But in Gretchaninoff's works, which he fortunately sang in the original Russian, his outbursts and falsetto, which are legitimately taught in Russian singing, made thrilling effects. As with the Russians he has a vast fund of expression and there was doubtless variety in his long program.

Charlotte Wilson assisted Gretchaninoff at the second piano and played some accompaniments for the singer.

Broadways of the World

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

HOTEL ESPLANADE, BERLIN, Germany—Well, I've only been in Germany about long enough to turn around, but, believe me, I'm sold on one aspect of Berlin. It's the cleanest town I ever saw. The streets are as tidy as my mother's kitchen floor, and that was always spotless. Try and toss an empty cigaret package in a Berlin gutter and then listen to the cop. He's polite enough, but firm—very firm.

"Das himwerfen papier ist verboten, guetter Herr," grins the man in a shiny helmet. I get him right away. He's pointing where I tossed the paper. He keeps on pointing, so I pick up the package and keep it until I come to a depository for litter. Neat? I'll say.

* * *

Berlin is a friendly town. Its tempo isn't as swift as that of Paris, but that doesn't worry me. What I need is time to look around. Not that Berlin is slow. There are spots, I'm told, where one may imagine one's self in Port Said or any other tough hole, but they have to be hunted. For the present a big mug of Muenschener and a lot of good music at the price of a Paris couvert charge intrigue me plenty. The truth is I'm a man of few wants, easily satisfied.

* * *

Believe it or not, my pal Jimmy Walker sold himself to the good burghers of Berlin horse, foot and dragoons. I hadn't been registered at the Esplanade an hour before there arrived a stout comfortable-looking bird who insisted on seeing me right away. By Gosh! He asked me to his home out in Schoeneburg, an exclusive suburb, explaining he had entertained Chimmy and Chimmy told him I was a friend of his. Right away I liked this guy. He typified Germany. Ever hear of a Frenchman asking a stranger home to dine? No, you didn't.

Now most of the cars I observed parading up and down Unter Den Linden, from the ex-Kaiser's palace to Schlesische Tor, are European built, Horsch, Mercedes, Daimler, Adler, but look you, please! My new found pal had a big Chrysler waiting and that filled out the occasion for me. "Hop in, Mark," counseled the owner of the big machine, and off we went.

My German isn't any too good, and Herr von Schlegel's English isn't much better, but language isn't important when friendly spirit exists. We slowed up at the Potsdammer for a cocktail, and the bar there was a sight for sore eyes. Sparkling a sight for sore eyes.

The main squeeze, a massive kidder from Kopenic, shook up a manhattan that reminded me of Broadway's one-time specialty. This chap had all the earmarks of financial security, but he confided in me later that his pay was 200 marks a week, I'm trying to figure out how much that is in American money, but, whatever it is, Heinrich ought to get twice as much.

Leaving the Potsdammer, we made a run-around of Friedrichstadt and out Leipzigerstrasse to the Domhoffsplatz, all swell stuff, rich as mud, apparently, and new looking. Finally we arrived at the Von Schlegel villa, and what a welcome! No flunky at the door, but Frau von Schlegel with her three little girls, the latter all in white with ribbons in their hair and happy smiles on their pink and white faces.

Boys and girls, let me assure you this was a real home. Out back was about an acre of garden with a greenhouse covering about one-third of it. I'll bet there were 50 canaries in that glass house, all fluttering about mid flowers and shrubs, singing their yellow heads off. The whole flock were Hartz Mountains yodelers. Later I found out my host knew how to yodel, too.

* * *

"Chimmy Walker," my host informed me, talks German almost like a native. If that's so, Jimmy has been holding out on me all these years, because Mr. Walker's German is a line I never knew about 'til now.

"The reason we Germans liked Herr Walker," said Von Schlegel, "was he made himself right at home among us and had a good time wherever he went. German women admired him for his invariably good nature and the fit of his clothes.

"Men liked him because he ways had a lot of new stories and told them well. Also Herr Walker could dispose of as much Loewenbrau as any good Deutscher and knew when to laugh at German jokes. That," added Herr Von Schlegel, sententiously, "is an important point. Ask a Scotchman, if you don't believe it."

Now about Jimmy Walker telling funny tales in German I leave it to home judgments, but I got a line on it that's interesting. James had his best stories translated into Berlinese and then told 'em in the vernacular, which cost him hours of patient practice. As my pal of the Potsdammer explained, Walker's tales were mostly short ones with a cracker on the tail which he mastered perfectly and so got over big. Who was it characterized genius as an infinite capacity for taking pains?

* * *

I have an idea some of you paraders won't like this column because it hasn't anything in it about Broadway, Berlin, but give a fellow a chance. The night life here, so Von Schlegel tells me, is pretty carefully managed to please foreigners.

So far as I have been able to observe up to now, the class of entertainers doesn't differ much from that encountered in Paris. Simple enough, too. These hoofers cover the whole European circuit and turns are about the same, mostly lousy. The best entertainment I've had here was orchestral to the accompaniment of a tall seidel and a blonde aproned siren with delft blue eyes. Also, b' gosh, her name's Greta.

If Germany is as hard up as we in America suppose her to be, the poverty is carefully concealed from visitors. Resorts of ordinary everyday folk, where a good big stein of the best beer is to be had for a few pfennigs with an overture thrown in, all seem well patronized.

These people don't guzzle their beer. I've seen a whole brood of mother, dad and the kids sitting two hours with a big half-gallon scuttle of suds in the middle of a green table taking a sip of beer now and then, but apparently more interested in Lohengrin.

I nearly lost Herr von Schlegel. The dinner I had at his house was so darned good I ought to have mentioned it before. We had soup and fish and roast partridge and goodness knows what else, but every mouthful a poetic effusion from an absolutely splendid kitchen. There was plenty good wine, too, with each course, but let me urge in concluding this spiel that if any of my readers ever get a chance to sample Herr von Schlegel's Liebfraumilch, 1911, let 'em grab it. Friends of my youth, what a wine! . . .

MOTHER ADMITS KILLING CHILD

KIOWA, Col., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Despite an alleged confession she smothered her 13-month-old daughter to death and slashed the neck of a 4-year-old son, officials today had not determined whether to prosecute Mrs. Hazell Howe Spicer for murder or seek her commitment to an insane asylum.

J. Nelson Truitt, deputy district attorney, who Sunday said the 48-year-old woman had confessed the slaying to him and Sheriff G. R. Brown, expressed the opinion Mrs. Spicer was deranged. She was held in jail.

The district attorney said Mrs. Spicer, in her signed statement, related how she smothered little Doris on the squalid Spicer homestead and then rammed a piece of apple down her throat to mislead her husband, Frank, into believing the child strangled.

She slashesd the neck of George several days later, she related, so Spicer would take him to a doctor "and we wouldn't have to come back to the ranch." The boy was not injured seriously.

Dog Vainly Awaits Food; Butcher Dead

EMLENTON, Pa., Jan. 23.—A lonely mongrel dog waits out in front of Johnson's meat market. He can't understand why John A. Johnson, the proprietor, doesn't throw him one of those big bones which had come to be a daily ritual with both of them for years. But Mr. Johnson died several days ago.

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Urticaria, or 'Hives,' Is Often Due to Infection

"Urticaria" is another name for "hives," or "nettle rash." It is a baffling and annoying condition.

Dr. Copeland

Urticaria is characterized by the sudden appearance on the skin of a firm, whitish patch. This is surrounded by a reddish area. The disturbance resembles the swelling caused by a mosquito bite.

The swellings may cover the entire body. They cause itching or a stinging sensation. The rash may last from a few hours to a few days.

I receive many letters requesting information about this annoying condition and advice as to its treatment. Cure can be obtained by finding and removing the cause. There are many causes. To find them requires careful investigation and study.

Sufferers from urticaria are sensitive to certain substances. The condition is caused or aggravated by certain foods, drugs, acute or chronic infections, faulty elimination, or emotional disturbances. The exciting substances may be found in clothes, furniture, and the materials used in certain occupations.

The underlying cause may be insignificant and difficult to find. Sensitivity to drugs as a cause of hives is often overlooked. This is illustrated by the following story:

A man suffered from hives and noticed that his attacks always occurred when he had a headache. While every effort was made to determine what food he was sensitive to, no relief was found. The sufferer neglected to tell his physician that he always took a headache tablet to relieve his headache. When that particular headache tablet was discarded the hives disappeared, but I do not know whether he still suffers from headache.

One attack or more of hives may be traced to an acute infection of some sort. If the infection becomes chronic, there are apt to be numerous attacks. All focal infections, such as come from infected teeth, tonsils, nasal sinuses, appendix and gallbladder, should be removed.

In seeking a cure for hives, I cannot over-emphasize the importance of correcting constipation. This disturbance may be overcome by proper diet and the use of mild laxatives.

Avoid foods to which you are sensitive. Omit from the diet fried and greasy things, as well as excessive quantities of salt, pepper, spice and condiments. Drink six to eight glasses of water daily.

Relief may be obtained from the itching and stinging pain by the use of a solution of hyposulphite of soda. Dissolve a tablespoon of the soda in half a glass of water and use the solution locally as a wash. Baking soda dissolved in a tub of water is another soothing and helpful agent.

These measures are merely temporary in their effects. Permanent relief can only be obtained by a successful search for the cause.

Answers to Health Queries

C. M. E. Q.—What should a girl of 20, 5 feet 2 inches tall weigh?

A.—She should weigh about 119 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

Today I have more news of the pleasant social life at Pinehurst, where there is always a colony of Pittsburghers.

Among the entertainments of the past week was a luncheon given by Mrs. E. C. Bliss for members of the Silver Foils Golf Society. The guests included such folks, you know, as Mrs. W. C. Fownes, Jr., Mrs. Halbert Blue, Mrs. Hugh Carter and Mrs. George Magoon.

Active in Southland

At another luncheon, given by Mrs. E. C. Keating, Pittsburgh guests included Mrs. Thomas McGraw, Mrs. A. F. Burke, Mrs. Charles K. Fisher and Mrs. George Orcutt.

The H. C. Fownes II, have arrived to visit his parents, the junior W. C. Fowneses.

Other new arrivals are the Thomas McCutcheons, who are stopping at the Chalfonte Hotel in Pinehurst.

Mrs. Graham Johnston has left the Pinehurst colony to take a motor trip to Baltimore and New York.

The chief attraction at the resort this week is the St. Valentine's Golf Tournament.

Ex-Pittsburgher, Youngstown Girl Marry

A Princeton professor and a former Pittsburgher, Charles William Bray, of Princeton, son of the Thomas J. Brays, of Youngstown, O., formerly of Pittsburgh, and Katherine Owsley, daughter of the Charles F. Owsleys, of Youngstown, O., were married at noon Saturday in the homes of the Richard Joneses III, New York.

Only members of the two families and a few intimate friends attended the ceremony, followed by a simple reception in the home of the Joneses, formerly of Youngstown.

There were no attendants. After a brief wedding trip, the Brays will be at home in Princeton, where Mr. Bray teaches psychology in the university.

The father of the bride and the junior Thomas J. Brays, of Sewickley, attended the ceremony.

Miss Evalyn Moss Betrothed to C. J. West, Jr.

From Ohio comes the engagement announcement of a former Pittsburgh girl, Mr. and Mrs. Charles MacLean Moss, of Lakewood, O., and formerly of Pittsburgh, announce the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Evalyn MacLean Moss, to Charles Peyton West, Jr., of West Hutchinson avenue, Edgewood, son of Mrs. Grace C. West, of Brookline, Mass.

The wedding will take place in early May.

Edgewood Woman's Club Interchanges Programs

The program arranged for Wednesday and that for February 8 for the Edgewood Woman's Club will be interchanged. So, instead of the play which Mrs. W. H. Garrett was directing for this week, the women will hear the two book reviews originally scheduled for next month.

Mrs. Carl S. Lamb is to discuss Benjamin Franklin's autobiography and Mrs. Richard Weibel will take Gertrude Atherton's life story. The meeting, of course, will be in the Edgewood Club.

Soho Little Theater Club to Give 3 Plays

Lucile Virginia Lewis Marries in Roanoke, Va.

An announcement that is of interest in Pittsburgh, where the bride has been making her home for the last few years, is that of the marriage of Miss Lucile Virginia Lewis and Ralph McDonald, which the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lewis, of Roanoke, Va., are announcing today. The marriage took place quietly on Saturday in Roanoke. The bride is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. James McFall, of Ellsworth avenue, with whom she made her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilsman, of Castle Shannon, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Esther Marie Wilsman, to Henry Alexander Gill, son of Mrs. A. J. Gill, of Aspinwall. An early May wedding is planned.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

There was a bit of drama before the play even began Friday night in the little theater in the home of Mrs. Albert M. Pettit and her sister, Miss Sophie Keenan, of Forbes street.

The leading lady, Mrs. Alexander Logan West, one of our most attractive young matrons, was interrupted in her dressing for her part because her young son was choking.

After the mother had removed much of the newspaper the baby was chewing up, the play went on, though a bit late.

Miss Keenan wrote the play of the evening, by the way, "The Torn Cap," with a Spanish setting.

Privilege entails responsibility, Judge Sarah Soffel told the Federation of Girls' School Societies at the recent annual luncheon.

The Federation, made up of social registerites, must agree with her, for the members aid the Harmarville Home for Convalescent Women and Children, and the different schools have all sorts of private philanthropies, notably soup kitchens.

And nearly all the Federation girls work on hospital boards and aid with every welfare project I can think of.

NEW BEIGES OF LIGHTER TONE USED FOR SPRING MODELS

DESIGNERS ARE making much of the all-beige costume as an advance spring fashion. Introduced in midwinter, the first beiges planned for 1933 were of a darker tinge than usual. Many of them had a greenish cast, or were crosses between beiges and grays.

* * *

THE CURRENT popularity in beiges leans toward lighter, paler shades. Many of the beige costumes shown in the better dressmakers are actually a deep cream color, or lean toward pale yellow. One of the favorites is a very light beige that approximates the most delicate tones in baby lynx furs.

* * *

THE OUTFIT in today's sketches is entirely of beige—dress, coat, fur, trimmings and all. The dress itself is silk, the knit on the blouse and skirt garnished with bands of knit in the same tone as the dress; are of a coarse weave, while the bands on the sleeves are in finer stitchings.

* * *

THE COAT, of soft, spongey woolen, is in the same tone as the dress, and gets its design mainly from the way the fabric is "worked" to adjust the cordings in the weave turning in one direction or another. The belt, attached to the coat at the back, and loose at the front, fastens with a buckle and hook device at the extreme right, under the arm. The scarf-collar, of beige fox, is of the type which is tinged with black at the very ends of the hairs.

* * *

THE ENTIRE costume is one of the new, lighter beiges, but is not extremely pale.

MORE TO PAY INCOME TAX THIS YEAR

This is the first of a series of articles analyzing the Revenue Act of 1932 and discussing the problems of income tax payers.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

To meet its expenses the federal government is dipping deeper into the pockets of individuals. The Revenue Act of 1932 has reduced the exemptions which made it unnecessary for a large share of the population of the country to file income tax returns or to pay taxes in the past. The government, in addition, has increased the rates which must be paid on taxable incomes.

The changes have been made necessary by the fact that the big money makers who paid most of the taxes in the past have not had large earnings recently.

To provide for the loss in revenue, the tax base has been broadened to include individuals with incomes which were not taxable in the past. In addition the levy on taxable income has been materially increased.

But these are not the only changes in the income tax law. Methods of computing taxes and classifying the various types of income have been changed. The provisions under which losses may be deduced from income have been modified to the greatest extent.

This has produced a new series of technical problems which, if known, may save money for taxpayers or may avoid future difficulties from filing returns incorrectly.

In any discussion of income tax law a few fundamental bits of information must be considered.

The taxes cover income for the calendar year of 1932.

Returns must be filed before March 15.

Taxes may be paid in four installments on March 15, June 15, September 15 and December 15.

Details of the new tax law will be discussed in future articles.

'Husband for Sale' Offer Brings Replies From Hundreds of Girls

573 in Day Agree To Give Home to Jobless Man

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"FOR SALE—A HUSBAND!"

And Ripley thinks he's cornered the choicest Believe-it-or-nots. Just wait until he reads this!

There was a young man. A nice young man. An educated young man who had worked hard, earned good money, but had been unable to find employment for months. After long thought, he turned to this column.

HE OFFERED TO MARRY ANY NICE GIRL WHO WOULD GIVE HIM A HOME.

(Is this really a true story? It is.)

In return for that home he promised respect, consideration, loyal affection—and complete support as soon as he could get a job. And he asked us to publish that letter, including his name and address.

We published the letter. Realizing the dangers of exchanging names of unknown correspondents, we did not publish the address. While the big presses pounded out the news, we took wagers as to whether the girls would, or wouldn't, come a-running. The staff agreed that it was a 75-1 shot that they wouldn't. Then they sat back and awaited results.

RESPONSE LARGE

AND BY RETURN MAIL, IN CAME 573 LETTERS FROM NICE, BRIGHT, HARD-WORKING AMERICAN GIRLS, SAYING THEY WOULD BE ONLY TOO GLAD TO TAKE THE CHANCE!

Nor did they merely agree to the proposition. Then sent pictures. Pretty photographs. And recommendations. Splendid references and recommendations.

AND THE AMOUNT OF THEIR BANK BALANCES!

And that was only the beginning!

Within a week, the numbers of letters from girls had risen to more than 1,000.

AND THREE HUNDRED MORE LETTERS FROM YOUNG MEN HAD ARRIVED, MAKING THE SAME OFFER, GIVING THE SAME PROMISES!

Now is, or isn't, that Sumpin?

'HE-MAN' OBJECTS

"A HUSBAND FOR SALE!" Once upon a time that announcement would have been greeted with sniffs of derision and roars of rage from every self-respecting citizen in America. As a matter of fact, a pretty fair-sized roar greeted it even in this year of our depression. As, for example, this he-man howl from St. Louis.

"Any man, anywhere, who would deliberately marry a girl simply because she could give him a home, has no moral character, no honor, no self-respect. Such a loafer could not be true to a woman 15 minutes. He's a tramp, a panhandler, a disgrace to his sex.

"And the horrible thing is, there are scores of creatures like him who dare to call themselves males. They, too, put up a big clamor about wanting to work, but the truth is they live on their parents or friends, sleep until nine in the morning, loaf around the street until five, and then are ready for a dance or gin party at eight. Surely no girl with an ounce of brains will consider this pup's offer."

But, as we stated before, they did. Listen to a few examples:

"I am greatly interested in this young man who wants to get married. I can understand his viewpoint, and I would like to correspond with him. I am a girl of excellent character, well-educated, of a good family, and have a nice home which I will gladly share with him until he gets a position—provided, of course, that he cares enough for me to marry me."

Then this, written to be forwarded to Mr. A. R. F.:

"I quite agree with you, A. R. F., that changed times have turned women into 'sturdy oaks' and men into 'clinging vines'—and that there is no dishonor to a man if he tries to make the best of the situation. I would be very willing to try my hand at being 'the sturdy oak,' had I a 'clinging vine' awaiting me at the end of every day's bread winning."

GIRLS OF EDUCATION

And so, on and on, into the hundreds. Letters from domestic workers; but far more letters from girls of education and position—clerks and stenographers—mature business and professional women—school teachers—nurses—librarians—college girls.

An amazing list? Yes.

But funny? NO! Not unless your sense of humor be cruelly twisted.

For every one of those letters was a cry from an honest, lonely girl. And many a bride whose wedding splendor blazes across the front page has not brought to her marriage one millionth part of the tenderness and unselfish comradeship which those unknown girls offered tht unknown man.

So who shall say that their offer was shameful, or even unwise? Who, indeed, shall decide that the man's offer was unworthy, or outrageous?

FOR WHAT ARE MEN AND WOMEN TO DO IN THESE UNUSUAL TIMES?

CODES OBSOLETE

Our wedding code, our romantic conventions—they are beautiful things, BUT THEY WERE MADE TO FIT OTHER TIMES, TO SERVE ANOTHER WORLD AS FAR REMOVED, IN ITS WORKING CONDITIONS, AS MARS FROM VENUS.

AND NO ONE HAS, AS YET, MADE A CODE TO FIT THESE TIMES.

But love goes on, and hearts are lonely—and youth must mate. Then what are we to do about it, when a girl holds the pocketbook and can provide the home, instead of the boy?

And, now that you've read the letters—what, do YOU think of the man who could write "HUSBAND FOR SALE?" And of the girl who could offer herself, her heart and her pay check in answer?

If a man made that offer to a helpless maid, you'd call it beautiful. But if a girl makes that offer to a helpless man—what then? Let's hear.

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

'What Do You Think?'

The Sun-Telegraph will pay cash prizes for the best four replies to Elsie Robinson's question "Should a young man offer himself 'for sale' as a husband?" It will pay $5 for the best answer, $3 for the second and $1 each for the third and fourth best replies.

These opinions must not exceed 50 words in length and must be postmarked not later than 9 p. m., Thursday, January 26, or turned in at the counter of the Sun-Telegraph Building or at the Downtown Sun-Telegraph office, Fifth avenue and Market street, not later than that time. Address your reply to the Question Editor of the Sun-Telegraph.

From time to time other questions will be raised by Miss Robinson. Watch for them. Her regular column entitled "Listen World" appears regularly on the editorial page of the Sun-Telegraph.

'He-Man' Protests on Disgrace to Sex In Letter

'FOES' SCORED BY PENNINGTON

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Commander John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, today was ready, he said, to "fight in the open the enemies who made the government spend thousands of dollars to uncover an $8.45 indiscretion."

Flinging back a challenge to Congressman Tinkham, of Massachusetts, who accused Pennington of using government facilities to print W. C. T. U. propaganda, the dry administrator said:

"The entire cost to the government so far as I was concerned was $8.45 for the paper on which was mimeographed recipes for non-alcoholic fruit drinks.

"You would think Mrs. Pennington and the W. C. T. U. came into my office with bushel baskets and walked out with them loaded down with money."

CASEY DENIES 'WHISPERS'

John F. Casey, chairman of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, yesterday took issue with County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, who on Saturday accused the association of fostering a whispering campaign against the Commissioners. He said:

"So far as the whispering campaign is concerned, I know nothing of it. I construe the Commissioner's remarks more of an attempt to boost his own organization."

The Emergency Association was refused an additional $500,000 work relief appropriation this year after the Commissioners decided to supervise their own unemployment program. In place of granting the request they voted $600,000 for road projects, supervised by themselves.

POGROM DENIAL ASSAILED

A statement by Dr. F. B. Starzynski, of the Central Polish Organizations, that mistreatment of Jews did not exist in Polish cities, was denounced by A. S. Mazer at a meeting of the United Workers' and Students' League at the Irene Kaufmann Settlement yesterday. Mazer said:

"Starzynski says there is no violence against the Jews in Poland. In Lemberg alone there are 500 to 700 mutilated Jews in the hospitals, and if he does not call that massacre then his understanding and my understanding of the word is different."

Resolutions protesting the alleged passive attitude of the Polish government in permitting pogroms against the Jews to continue and the oppression of national minorities were adopted.

Jobless Man Admits Two Library Thefts

FRANKLIN, Pa., Jan. 23.—Donald R. Edmonds, 30, of Oil City, who police say confessed to 11 robberies, is in the Venango County Jail today awaiting arraignment. Edmonds, former employe of a gas company, out of work, said he twice robbed the Franklin library.

Monessen Man Not In Plane Accident

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 23.—Richard Arthur, Monessen, Pa., steel company sales representatives, reported hurt in a plane accident at Matteson near here last Thursday, was not in the plane at the time it was damaged, it was stated today. Arthur had left the plane at an airport before a high wind tipped it over.

Unwed Mother Should Keep Child, Many Say

Should an unwed mother keep her child?

Pittsburghers answered that question for Elsie Robinson, the Sun-Telegraph feature writer, who offered four prizes for the best answers to the question which arose from a plea for advice from one of her readers. In the answers, 90 per cent of which were from mothers' advice to keep the infant predominated. The majority, however, failed to submit reasons.

That motherhood demands sacrifices if circumstances prohibit proper rearing for the child was the message of Mrs. Elizabeth Otterson, 742 Middle avenue, Wilmerding, awarded the $5 cash first prize. Her advice was:

"The child belongs, primarily, to the unwed mother, through her suffering and remorse. She should keep him, guard him—if she be absolutely sure her mistake will not militate against him. Otherwise, there are upright, intelligent persons to care for and love him. True motherhood sacrifices self for child."

COURAGE FACTOR

Mrs. W. B. Atwood, 910 California avenue, Avalon, was awarded the $3 second prize. Her opinion was:

"The answer depends upon the type of woman. Yes, if she has courage to face the world as her right. A beautiful companionship could result. If the birth of the child gives her an inferiority complex resulting in morbidness or undercover living, the effect on the child would be harmful."

The third winner of $1 was Mrs. Anna C. Edwards, 1717 Maplewood avenue, East End. She wrote:

"An unwed mother should keep her child and give it the care and protection that is its just right. She should devote her life rearing it to be a God-fearing, law-abiding citizen. Thus she will have done her duty and her child will profit in the long run."

LOVE WON'T PAY

Mrs. L. B. Myers, 230 North Craig street, East End, received the $1 fourth prize with:

"The child's best interests are the paramount consideration. An unwed mother's love will not pay for the world's cruel injustices toward such a child, and for this reason, she should uphold the tradition of unselfish motherhood and secure for her baby the advantages that only adoption can assure."

The replies were limited to 50 words. Many entries failed to keep within this limit.

Firemen Overcome, Saved By Comardes

Overcome by smoke while fighting a stubborn blaze that partly destroyed the home of Sam Rice, of 1838 Runette street, Penn Township, last night, Howard Bectold, 30, Penn Township volunteer fireman, was carried from the burning building by fellow firemen and given first aid.

Two families, including several children, were driven from their home when the fire, of undetermined origin, started in the roof of the two-story frame dwelling. Damage was estimated at $2,500 by Fire Chief John Gerthoffer, of No. 1 Fire Company.

"Such a Headache I could Scream"

"When I woke up in the morning I would have such a headache I could scream. My back ached, too, periodically, and I felt miserable and tired out. I had heard about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound since I was a little child, so I decided to try it. I feel stronger now, not so tired, and the headaches are better."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul; skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Home Rule Plans Up to Democrats

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—Democrats, at their weekly dinner tonight, will discuss a procedure to be followed in House and Senate in an effort to secure a greater measure of home rule for cities and counties. David L. Lawrence, Democratic county chairman of Allegheny County, will recite to the 50 or more Democrats who will be present some of the difficulties Pittsburgh and Allegheny County have suffered because they must come to the Legislature for authorizations which should be inherent in the local communities.

Mr. Shields

Democratic — and Republican — members of other sections have had the same experiences, but all efforts to pass broad enabling acts have failed. The result has been to make government remote from its source and to bring greater centralization.

Gov. Pinchot, an outstanding apostle of centralization, as exampled in the terms of the state administrative code, is speaking for home rule in this session, particularly with respect to salaries of local officials paid by local taxing bodies. He would have county salary boards fix compensation.

Pay of Employes Fixed By Legislature

This principle would not apply to elective officers, independent of the County Commissioners, such as the Controller, District Attorney and Register of Wills, but it would apply to their subordinates. For example, the pay of assistant district attorneys and county detectives must be found by the Commissioners as the county taxing agency.

But the compensation of these employes of the District Attorney's office—and their number, too, as I recall—is fixed by statute of the Legislature.

District Attorney Park, for one, will oppose any move to change the existing system. He prefers getting his authorizations from Harrisburg. He explains that to permit the Commissioners to fix salaries and personnel would throw his office, including the county detective force, into politics.

Intimation that these agencies are not now connected with politics may be news to some, as surprising as the man biting the dog.

Reed Is "Huey Long" Of Harrisburg

Washington correspondents say that all visitors to the Capitol ask to have pointed out to them Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, the showman of the national legislature.

Our Capitol has its focal counterpart in the interest of visitors. Practically every one who visits the Senate wants to be shown Senator George Reed, of Dauphin County, who took the national as well as state spotlight by his attack on Mrs. Pinchot. And no one knows at what moment he may arise and loose another in his series of barrages at the Pinchot administration.

He has notified Senate Republican leaders that he has much more ammunition, that he intends to explode it, and they, while enthusiastic about any attack on Mr. Pinchot, are perceptibly perturbed. He had a speech last week which was a corker, but it was not delivered, because leaders persuaded him to let them tear it up.

Mansfield Gets "13" License By Strategy

Senator William D. Mansfield this year has as his automobile license plate "Legislative 13," just what he wanted. But the manner in which he received it is entertaining. The McKeesport Senator wanted the jinx tag, but he did not ask for it, on the principle that one wish from him and something else would be done.

Legislative plates ordinarily are awarded on the basis of seniority. Last year the plate belonged to Senator Henry Lanius, of York, who came into the Senate at the same time Mansfield did. Retirements moved both up, but the "thirteen" tag was offered Senator Herman Baumer, Democrat, of Johnstown, junior to Mansfield in service.

Baumer declined. He figured he had been extremely fortunate to win re-election, against a Pinchot-Grundy Republican in Cambria County, and did not wish to trifle with his luck.

Then the plate went to Mansfield, who has been tossed about so much by the Senate leaders that a jinx more or less means nothing.

Another interesting incident touches legislative plate No. 5. Senator Charles W. Sones, of Lycoming, a veteran, had this until he retired from the Senate in 1929. Then it went to Senator Morris Einstein, of Pittsburgh. Sones came back this year, and though he lost all claims to seniority by his "vacation," asked for his old committee places—and his old license plate. He was insistent, too.

So Senator Einstein handed it back in a generous mood, thereby quieting the Democrat from Williamsport.

McKeesport Man Shot, Hold Suspect

Joseph Kamsky, 35, of 203 Market street, is in the McKeesport Hospital today with a bullet wound in his left thigh, and John Kuray, 38, same address, is held by police for questioning following an alleged fight in a McKeesport rooming house last night.

Work in Law Office Helped Coolidge to Be Admitted to Bar

CHAPTER VIII.

The books in the office soon appeared too ponderous for my study, so I bought a supply of students' text books and law cases on the principal subjects necessary for my preparation for the bar. These enabled me to gain a more rapid acquaintance with the main legal principles, because I did not have to read through so many unimportant detail as was contained in the usual treatise prepared for a lawyer's library, which was usually a collection of all the authorities, while what I wanted was the main elements of the law. I was soon conversant with contracts, torts, evidence, and real property, with some knowledge of Massachusetts pleading, and had a considerable acquaintance with the practical side of statute law.

I do not feel that any one ever really masters the law, but it is not difficult to master the approaches to the law, so that given a certain state of facts it is possible to know how to marshal practically all the legal decisions which apply to them. I think counsel are mistaken in the facts of the case about as often as they are mistaken in the law.

Worked Diligently

All my waking hours were so fully employed that I found little time for play. My college was but eight miles distant, yet I did not have any desire to go back to the intercollegiate games, though I was accustomed to attend the alumni dinner at commencement. There was a canoe club which I joined, on the Connecticut, about a mile over the meadow from the town where I often went on Sunday afternoons. I was full of the joy of doing something in the world. Another reason why I discarded all outside enterprises and kept strictly to my work and my books was because I was keeping my monthly expenditures within $30 which was furnished me by my father. He would gladly have provided me more had I needed it, but I thought that was enough and was determined to live within it, which I did. Not much was left for any unnecessary pleasantries of life.

Soon after I entered the office Mr. Hammond was elected District Attorney and Mr. Field became Mayor of the city, so that I saw something of the working of the city government and the administration of the criminal law.

The first summer I was in Northampton came the famous free silver campaign of 1896. When Mr. Bryan was nominated he had the support of most of the local Democrats of the city, but he lost much of it before November. One of them sent a long communication to a county paper indorsing him. This I answered in one of the city papers. When I was home that summer I took part in a small neighborhood debate in which I supported the gold standard. The study I put on this subject well repaid me. Of course Northampton went handsomely for McKinley.

Admitted to Bar

With the exception of a week or two at home in the summer of 1896 I kept on in this way with my work from September, 1895, to June, 1897. I then felt sufficiently versed in the law to warrant my taking the examination for admission to the bar. It was conducted by a county committee of which Mr. Hammond was a member, but as I was his student he left the other two, Judge William G. Bassett and Judge William P. Strickland, to act on my petition. I was pronounced qualified by them and just before July 4, 1897, I was duly admitted to practice before the Courts of Massachusetts. My preparation had taken about 20 months. Only after I was finally in pos-

Einstein May Be Correct But We Can't Eat Theories

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We're starting to see daylight. But not enough to get sunburned.

The Washington lawmakers are finally realizing that the District of Columbia ain't an island entirely surrounded by saps.

The people of the people and by the people are squawking loud and long. They want something done and they've tired of having it done to them.

They want common sense to be recognized as a major industry. We ain't going anywhere with this technocracy business hatched by college professors.

Let Einstein nurse the theories and we'll take something you can bite. Our water wings have been punctured and we need swimming lessons.

You can't fry talk. You can't boil theories. And right now a single drop of real gravy on the national chin would be the Niagara Falls for a new industrial honeymoon.

THEFTS LINKED TO DOUGHNUTS

Police today were investigating the activities of James Hoffman, 21, of 309 Oakland avenue, and Arthur Grubb, 22, of 150 Almond way, who were arrested Saturday night in connection with the ransacking of the residence of Leo Fetzer, 368 South Atlantic avenue.

Jewelry valued at several hundred dollars was found in the residence of Grubb, who was implicated by Hoffman after the latter was arrested in the Fetzer home, according to a police report.

Police reported Grubb sold doughnuts in homes during the day and informed his accomplice of the valuables in the houses he had visited.

TAXOCRATS AIM AT ECONOMIC 'CURE'

Secret Group Urges Levy on Machines Displacing Labor

The Taxocratic Society of Pittsburgh, a secret organization with radical plans for tax revision, was circularizing the nation today with plans for solving the economic, industrial and financial crisis of the world.

Their identity hidden behind a title and a number, the writer of the letters prefers to be known as Taxocrat No. 1. Letters were sent to President-elect Roosevelt, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Louis A. Johnson, commander of the American Legion; Senator George W. Norris and others.

The organization urges taxation of all labor-displacing machinery to establish a national unemployment fund; taxation according to commercial value of special grants and privileges and taxation of all "watered" stocks to the "point of extinction;" equalization of man's handicap in competition with the machine; use of taxation to regulate and encourage industry and abolition of all unemployment and poverty.

Headquarters of the organization have been established in the office of Harry Bastow, president of the Allied Boards of Trade. Mr. Bastow said he was not a member of the society. He declared his office was used only as a mailing address. While he would not divulge the identity of Taxocrat No. 1, he obligingly communicated with him by telephone.

Taxocrat No. 1 was quoted today as being in favor of a tax of $2 a day for each man eliminated through the use of labor-saving machinery. The revenue from such taxation, according to No. 1, would be $20,000,000,000 a year.

Membership of the taxocrats is said to include businessmen, industrialists and engineers who do not wish their identity revealed for fear of losing their jobs.

Ergs Become Dollars As Girls Do Own Housework

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Jan. 30.—If President-elect Roosevelt or the Allegheny County Commissioners need any expert advice on balancing the budget, Westminster College can give it.

With a new plan of co-operative housing, more than a score of the girl students have sliced $3 a week from their boarding expense and before the semester is out, they boast, they will have found ways and means of saving even more.

That's good news for the fathers of these girls—especially in times like these, but it's better news for the coming crop of younger fellows looking around for wives and needless to say this group of young women are the most popular on the campus.

The girls, under the attentive eyes of a resident director in their co-operative lodge, situated on the campus, do their own marketing, cooking, housecleaning and whatever else goes into making a home for themselves.

Duties are apportioned out to the various members of the group which includes nearly a dozen girls from the Pittsburgh district. One group washes the dishes, another cooks the food and serves it and the others divide their time in making beds, cleaning and tidying up the place. The average cost per girl is $5 a week. Regular boarding charges at the college for campus dormitories ranges from $7 to $8.50.

The girls go about their duties jokingly. Said one:

"We're technocrats in a sense, you know. Instead of money, we're putting our ergs into it."

Which opened the way for a typical Westminster co-ed wisecrack:

"Don't put all your ergs in one basket."

Two Men Perish In Desert Blizzard

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Bodies of two men missing on a blizzard-swept Nevada desert have been found where they fell battling snowdrifts.

A search party found the victims, Kent Wood and James M. Sorells, miners, frozen to death a few miles from Goldfield. Their companion staggered into Goldfield and reported Wood and Sorells became exhausted five miles from town after their motor car stalled in the snow.

CHILD, 7, KILLED BY AUTO

Seven-year-old Tewalla May Fisher, of 2727 Kingwood street, Overbrook, was dead today, the victim of an automobile that struck her as she crossed Library road near her home. Police said the car was driven by A. F. Trench, 35 of Taylor street.

Trench drove the child to a physician's office, where she was pronounced dead. He told police she ran down a terrace into the path of his machine.

Jean Follette, 9,, of Larimer, Westmoreland County, was in St. Francis Hospital today from a head injury suffered when the automobile of her father, Frank Follette, crashed with another automobile at Penn avenue and Main street. The other car was driven by Rudolph Forlina, of 644 East Main street, police said.

2 Sisters Accused After Water Battle

Agnes Morrison, 24, of 421 Sandusky street, was being held in North Side Police Station today after she is said by police to have thrown a pan of warm water into the face of her 64-year-old sister, Elizabeth Burgess, in a quarrel yesterday afternoon.

The younger woman was charged with being a suspicious person and the elder with disorderly conduct. She was taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

RADIO MUFFLES SOUND OF PISTOL

Wife Absent When Jobless Man Shoots Self

Howard Ballard, Jr., 25, son of a McKeesport physician, shot and killed himself, according to police, in his small apartment while a radio in the room and the roaring wind outside drowned the sound of the shot and prevented discovery until this morning.

His wife was spending the night at the home of Dr. H. S. Ballard, father of the young man, she told police. Young Ballard was a former student of Washington and Jefferson College.

The radio was turned on when police arrived at the apartment, 511 Ringgold street, McKeesport, shortly after 8 a. m. The police said Ballard apparently walked or crawled about the room after he was shot.

Mrs. Ballard said her husband formerly was employed in the state highway department, but lost his job. He was despondent and nervous during the past two weeks, she said.

The body was discovered by Mrs. Stella Vanuels, the landlady. She said she heard Ballard in the hallway about 4 a. m., but no sound thereafter. A physician who examined the body said a bullet wound in the chest caused death about 5 a. m.

Dr. Ballard said his son and daughter-in-law were at his home for dinner yesterday, but the son left about 4 p. m., with a friend, and did not return.

The Ballard apartment consisted of a combined living room and bedroom and a kitchenette. Ballard's body lay in the living room.

TWO FLEE AMID POLICE FIRE

Three youths were arrested and two others escaped in a volley of pistol bullets early today, as North Side police surprised a group of five robbing a refreshment stand in West Park, they reported.

Those arrested said they were Fred DeNardo, 20, of 69 Steuben street; Earl Harshman, 18, of 30 Woodville avenue, and William Ritchey, 18, of 913 West Diamond street. They were found inside the stand, which had been entered through a window, police said.

As police under Capt. John Flavin answered a call to the stand, two youths, described as lookouts, fled. Patrolman John Bray fired two shots at them.

The alleged "lookouts" were arrested several hours later. They said they were Robert Thornburg, 17, of 200 East North avenue, and Joseph Santalucio, 19, of 159 Wabash avenue.

Gunwomen Rob Man, Motorist Held Up

Two Negro women held up Harry Kapturaskin, of 416 Armandale street, in Dasher street, early yesterday, and robbed him of $23, it was reported to police. The women, the victim said, were armed.

Two men for whom he stopped his car to give a "lift," held up Thomas Enscoe, of 164 Annabelle street, early yesterday, and robbed him of $32 and his automobile in Woodville avenue, according to a police report. Enscoe told police he stopped when the men asked him for a ride.

Body of North Side Man Found in River

The body of Edward Pechewski, 47, of 1215 Ridge avenue, was recovered from the Ohio River below Beaver avenue yesterday. Bruises on his face indicated to homicide detectives that he probably had fallen down steps above the river bank.

SCOT CLAN TO HONOR BURNS

Poet Hero Invented His Own Coat Of Arms

Even the Scots of Clan Cameron, who will celebrate the one hundred and seventy-fourth anniversary of Robert Burns' birth with a concert of songs, dances and recitations, Friday night, for the most part do not know that their hero of humble birth boasted a coat of arms.

But Burns had one all right. He made it up himself.

The incident, typical of the genial humor of the great poet, is revealed in a letter he wrote to his friend Cunningham. In the letter Burns explains he wants to replace a seal he has lost, and has found a stone on which he wants arms cut. He says:

"I have invented arms for myself; so, you know, I shall be chief of the name, and, by courtesy of Scotland, entitled to supporters."

The motto he chose means,

BURNS' COAT OF ARMS

"Better a small bush than no shelter."

Well, it may have been imaginery in the world of heraldry, but Burns is still "chief of the name" to loyal Scotsmen and many others in Pittsburgh.

The program, arranged in his honor, will be held in Moose Hall, 628 Penn avenue.

The following will entertain: Highland dances, Miss Jean Wood, 7, and George Keillor; Estelle Healy Close, soprano; Isabelle Wood Miller, contralto; Alexander Roy, tenor; John W. Lowther, baritone; Catherine Sharrer, pianist; David Flockhardt, piper; James Brown, elocutionist, and Harry Walker's orchestra.

The entertainment committee is headed by Ebenezer Reid.

Incident Typical of Famed Bard's Humor

Bandits Show Magician Cash Vanishing Act

A pair of holdup men taught L. J. Jenkins, druggist and amateur magician, a new disappearing trick when they escaped with $40 from the cash register of the Saybrook pharmacy, Ophelia street and Kenneth square.

Jenkins was putting the finishing touches to a new rabbit vanishing act when the two men entered the store and bought some candy, became interested in the trick and launched a dissertation on magic in general.

Suspicious, Jenkins went to a rear room on the excuse of getting a screw driver and removed a considerable sum of money from the safe.

He returned to face pistols held by the bandits, who forced him to reopen the safe. Foiled, they took the money from the cash register and drove away in an automobile, Jenkins told police.

Store Credit Experts Scan Field of 'Risks'

Persons With Steady Incomes Held Reliable

According to H. E. Wilson, manager of Gimbels department of accounts and past president of the Credit Association, a young married couple with a steady income of $40 a week is the best credit risk.

He says persons with indefinite incomes, single men, and certain types of traveling salesmen should not be allowed credit. The first type, he says, is unable to pay the bills, the single men are irresponsible and the salesmen are difficult to get in touch with.

ANALYSIS NEEDED

Col. Franklin Blackstone, one of the organizers of the Retail Credit Men's Association of Pittsburgh, and credit manager of Frank & Seder, when asked about the best credit risk, said:

"The designation of any classification of occupational or professional men and women as the best credit risks should be done only after an analysis of the paid and unpaid accounts of stores representing various kinds of business, such as department stores, grocers, butchers, druggists, jewelers, specialty shops and renting agencies. One classification of occupational or professional employment may be very prompt and rate very high with one merchant and be very slow and rate very unsatisfactorily at others.

"At the present time, the credit rating of everybody depends upon willingness to pay and availability of income: the more regular the income the greater the possibility of payment and the consequent higher rating. The vast majority of our people are credit conscious and have proper pride in paying their just debts. In this depression it is the inordinate or inherent honesty of the people that has preserved the conveniences of charge accounts. I say this in full knowledge of the fact that there are many persons hereabouts who have the means to pay but who are shirking their duty to pay and hiding behind the cloak of selfishness, using as a reason the known inability of their less fortunate fellows who would pay if they had the least means to do it.

CITES BEST RISKS

"The best credit risks are included in all classifications of employment from the working girl to the clergy and from the clergy to the police force, and those that are so designated always budget their incomes and live within them."

As a test Col. Blackstone instructed a clerk to bring the 10 nearest trays for analysis. There were 206 accounts long overdue, and the occupational classifications were as follows:

Railroad employes	13
City and county employes	4
Electrical workers	7
Newspaper employes	5
Accountants	4
Automobile mechanics	3
Brakemen-Millyards	4
Clerks, miscellaneous	13
Truck drivers	5
Insurance agents	5
Laborers	7
Miners	2
Business partners or owners	21
Sales representatives of town corporations	16
Unemployed	5
Salesmen miscellaneous	14
Mill workers	28
Artisans, carpenters, plumbers, etc.	14

DAVIS PLEDGES AID TO VETS

Continued support of all relief measures for disabled ex-soldiers of all wars was pledged by Senator James J. Davis at the closing session of the two-day convention of the Disabled American War Veterans in the Fort Pitt Hotel last night. He told the veterans:

"I have always felt that a cash payment should have been made in the first place since it was clear that this money must have been due these men, or it would not have been enacted into law by Congress and passed over the veto of President Coolidge.

"But such a cash payment should not exceed the original computation of $1 per day for home service and $1.25 per day for foreign service."

Attorney Robert J. Doran, of Wilkes-Barre, was elected state commander of the disabled men at their closing session yesterday. H. E. Beck, Altoona, was chosen senior vice commander and Henry Cross, of Sharon, junior vice commander. The Rev. James R. Cox will be succeeded as chaplain by the Rev. C. W. Johnstone.

A membership campaign was inaugurated at the meeting.

A concert and literary evening, sponsored by the Jewish Culture Club, will be held at the Y. M. & W. H. A., Bellefield avenue, at 8:30 p. m., Sunday. The Jewish Male Folklore Quartet will sing. There will be other musical selections and a play.

MISS MARION ROSSANA

TRAVELS 1,000 MILES ALONE

UNIONTOWN, Jan. 23.—Without the love and protection of a mother, little Carletta Fisher, 10, and her sister, Kathleen, 6, traveled more than 1,000 miles alone to find a home with their grandfather, William Fisher, of Coolspring, near here.

Carletta made the trip by motor bus several years ago and Kathleen has just completed her journey by train. She wore a tag on her coat which said:

"Will matrons please take care of this child along the way."

Kathleen's mother died in bringing the little girl into the world. Carletta was then only 4 years old. The father, a mail carrier, of Omaha, Neb., was unable to care for them and the two were put in a home.

When Kathleen arrived here she was unable to give any information other than the name of her grandparents.

Miss Lucy Jane Shaffer, clerk for the railroad company, made a telephonic survey of the Fishers and located the ones living in the mountains. Kathleen said:

"I wasn't a bit afraid. Everybody was so nice to me. It wasn't anything to travel a thousand miles alone. I wouldn't be afraid to try an ocean trip."

STORE PLACES BIG ORDER HERE

Plans were being rushed by Montgomery Ward & Co. today for a $1,000,000 order of goods, authorized yesterday by 24 store managers from Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia, at their annual spring merchandising conference at the Keystone Athletic Club.

Regional executives from the New York headquarters of the company said their December sales increased greatly and were optimistic regarding business condition during the coming months. P. C. Baker, regional manager, said:

"We are most optimistic for spring without any good reason for being so. We enjoyed an increased business during December, and if we can have the same results in January and February we will be very happy."

W. C. Herr, divisional buyer of men's clothing, said:

"We are optimistic as an institution and think we are doing a great job. Our business has improved and we are looking for an even brighter future."

The latest styles in men's, women's and children's wear were on display at the conference for the 200 persons who attended. Leaders at the meeting said most of the million-dollar order would be manufactured in the Pittsburgh area.

Other speakers and leaders of the spring conference were E. C. Randell, divisional buyer of men's furnishing goods; E. H. Moorman, divisional buyer of shoes; A. Weinstraub, regional retail manager, and T. R. Slattery and C. C. Austin, district supervisors.

URGE JUVENILE COURT JUDGE

Gov. Gifford Pinchot has been asked to fill the present vacancy on the Allegheny County Court panel by appointing a person who will accept permanently the post of Juvenile Court Judge. The Public Charities Association and the League of Women Voters made the proposal.

The penal affairs committee of the charities association also is drafting legislation for a separate juvenile court, on the theory that if a judge could be either elected or appointed to this particular post to serve permanently, the court would function more effectively.

At present judges of the County Court sit in Juvenile Court in rotation and, according to the Public Charities Association, none of the judges likes the job and not all of them are well qualified for it.

Although not indorsing any particular candidate for the court position, the League of Women Voters has offered to submit to the Governor names of persons they believe are qualified.

Find Man Drowned, Feet Tied By Rope

His feet tied with rope, the body of Theodore J. Pilgrim, of 16 Vilsack street, Etna, was found in Pine Creek, Shaler Township, late yesterday, according to a Coroner's report, which said Pilgrim had ended his own life.

Coroner's deputies said they had been informed Pilgrim left his home Friday after bidding goodby to his daughter, Salvina, 12. He carried a rope.

BLUE LAW FIGHT HITS GAS SALES

OIL CITY, Pa., Jan. 23.—Informations charging violation of the blue laws were to be filed today against 15 or 20 gasoline service stations, as a retaliatory measure by those favoring Sunday movies. Two men, who said they were acting for the Venango County Tolerance League, yesterday made purchases of gasoline at all stations.

The Drake and Lyric theaters, which since early in December have been holding Sunday movies and were prosecuted each week, were closed yesterday, due to a new anti-Sunday movie ordinance. The owners deny they were behind the prosecution of the service stations.

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dull Teeth Become White

For over SIXTY YEARS—dentists everywhere have prescribed Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Dr. Lyon's is the only dentifrice old enough to prove it can be safely used for life. Free from all grit or pumice, it cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

In use over 60 years

Lasts Longer-Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

BENEFIT MOVIE NETS 20 TONS OF FOOD

It required four 5-ton trucks, loaded to capacity, to move the food donated for the Father Cox Sunday benefit show at the Enright Theater yesterday. The attendance of the day was approximately 16,000 men, women and children and the donations consisted mostly of canned goods. There were, however, several thousand bushel bags of potatoes brought in, a sprinkling of hams and bacon and loads of cereals. Many came to the show with big baskets of food in which were tucked away luxuries such as homemade jellies and jams. This mountain of food will be distributed to the poor by the Father Cox relief organization.

It was a popular show—"Blessed Event"—and the crowds were nicely handled by Manager Frank E. Roberts and his assistants who donated their services. The motion picture operators and stage hands gladly worked without pay, and Warner Brothers, as usual, donated the theater and the show.

Father Cox, in Mercy Hospital, was advised by the Sun-Telegraph late yesterday afternoon about the huge success of the benefit and he said:

"Thank everybody for me. This splendid aid from my friends and the general public and the Warner Theater management will do me more good than medicine."

In the meantime, the Father Cox-Sun Telegraph subscription drive is still on. For every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page, the Father Cox Unemployment Relief Fund gets a liberal cash commission.

HOLDUP GANG BINDS VICTIM

Forcing the proprietor of a Hill Crest gasoline station to lie face downward on the floor of a rear room, three armed men bound him with rope and looted the station of a small amount of money shortly before last midnight, according to Constable Ben W. Smith, of Bethel Township.

M. Burgander told police he was alone in the station when the men entered and asked to purchase a quart of oil. When he turned, he said, one of the men jammed a gun in his back and ordered him into a rear room. He was tied with a clothes line and forced down upon the floor while the men took his wallet containing $15 and looted the cash register of a small amount of money, Smith said.

Burgander hobbled from the building following the robbery and a passing neighbor untied his bonds.

'MOIST THROAT' ENDED HIS COUGH!

"I had coughs all winter, till I learned about 'moist throat,'" writes R. G., of New York City.

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny "bottles" continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these pores clog. Phlegm collects—dangerous germs find a breeding place. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when you increase the flow of your throat's natural moisture, loosening the phlegm so it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely "deaden" the nerves . . . but don't get at the real root of the trouble!

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of throat moisture and brings quick relief naturally.

If your throat's the least bit raw or dry, take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN now. It's absolutely safe, even for children. At all drug stores, 60¢.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

BUSINESS RISE AWAITS MAJOR ADJUSTMENTS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Business has been proceeding at about a level about 15 per cent above the low point attained last summer.

It has been holding its own since the first of the year, but is waiting for the working out of some of the major adjustments, such as balancing debt structure against current gross volume and prices.

Mr. Rukeyser

The decision by the President and President-elect to invite Great Britain to send over an envoy to discuss the British debt to the Treasury shows the way the wind is blowing. Many think that from the standpoint of business it is especially important to deal with domestic debt—of farmers and business men. Mr. Hoover has made some useful suggestions to Congress for facilitating voluntary debt scaling down where a majority of creditors agree.

FARM BILL'S FLAWS

Fundamental trade indicators show slight improvement, but the basic problem of restoring purchasing power through farm relief and re-employment of the idle in the cities will doubtless wait over for the next administration. The Jones bill for farm relief, which passed the House, is before the Senate, but even if the upper House acts on it, it is expected that it would be vetoed by President Hoover.

Even among the advocates of price-raising measures there is far from agreement that the Jones bill has been satisfactorily drafted. As an indication of its slovenly character, it contains an anti-chain store joker, which has no direct bearing on the objective of the proposed law.

Furthermore, although the farm leaders themselves are opposed to their inclusion, the House added peanuts and rice to the commodities which are to receive bounties. Butterfat was also added, but the farm leaders are non-commital on this item.

Senator Wagner and others are thinking in terms of recasting the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in order to deal more effectively with farm relief.

PESSIMIST HOPEFUL

Perhaps there is reason for encouragement in the mild optimism expressed in the annual number of the Annalist, which has for a number of years been sounding a gloomy theme. In fact, one well-known economist once remarked to his confreres that he reads the Annalist so that he can get an idea how bad things can possibly get. In its forecast, the Annalist concludes:

"Definite forecast of the business course of 1933 is made impracticable by complete uncertainty as to what will finally be done to meet such major problems as settlement of the war debts, trade and tariff readjustments, banking reform, the budget, taxation and others. It seems not impossible, however, that such solutions will be found as to make possible some well-based gains in business during the coming autumn. A sharp drop in the commodity price level marks this week's records."

STOCKS OF OIL AT '27 LEVEL

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Stability in the petroleum industry is dependent on a sound conservation program which must include the preservation of the 350,000 small wells of settled production, drastic limitation on new pools which will discourage wildcatting under present conditions, and the limitation of existing flush pools to the requirements of the market, says C. B. Ames, president of the American Petroleum Institute.

These conditions require the co-operation of only three or four states, according to Mr. Ames.

In a statistical analysis to support his views Mr. Ames shows that total stocks of oil have been reduced to the level of 1927. The cash position of many companies is such that they have been retiring funded debt prior to maturity, and there is no longer any reasonable doubt about the ability of the principal oil-producing states to control production pursuant to a sound conservation program, he says.

IRON FIREMAN SALES GAIN

Automatic coal burners are finding an increasing market in Pittsburgh according to R. M. Rush manager of the Rush machinery division of the Dravo-Doyle Company. Mr. Rush said:

"We sold nearly 300 Iron Fireman in Pittsburgh last year and that is nearly twice as many as in 1931. We feel that the depression has actually helped our business. The Iron Fireman saves money fast enough to pay its first cost in one year. Business concerns and home owners are looking for money-saving devices."

The Dravo concern reports a number of important contracts closed since January 1. Among these is a complete boiler plant for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Estimates indicate that the complete cost of this plant will be saved in less than three years, as compared to purchased steam.

METAL MARKET UNCHANGED

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Copper remained quiet but steady last week with domestic buyers generally reserved and producers not pressing offerings. Electrolytic was unchanged at 5 cents, delivered in the Connecticut valley, although export quotations were easier. Custom smelters were said to be disposing of their output abroad. Indifference of domestic consumers is credited to poor demand for finished products, one large electrical manufacturer reporting 1932 orders 52 per cent under 1931. Reports of forward inquiry for metal have not resulted in placement of orders.

Tin quotations fluctuated irregularly with London but a steadier tone at the close of the week attracted better inquiry from automobile manufacturers and other consumers. World's tin production in 1932 was preliminarily estimated at 94,800 tons against 147,200 in 1931, on ore basis expressed in terms of recoverable metal.

Demand for lead was spotty. Zinc remained dull. Although importers held antimony quotations at the recent advances owing to the Chinese embargo on shipments, failure of demand to improve has attracted some second hand offerings at concessions.

SPALDING'S '32 LOSS SECOND ON RECORD

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Notwithstanding a decline of 45 per cent in volume in the past two years, A. G. Spalding & Bros. has maintained its competitive position. While in some lines the company's percentage of pieces sold was not as large as in previous years because of the relatively large volume of merchandise thrown on the market at distress prices, in the more profitable items Spalding has held its own.

The demand for athletic goods, due to the general business depression, has declined to an unprecedented extent. This condition has necessarily resulted in quantities of distress merchandise appearing on the market.

The imposition last June of a special federal sales tax of 10 per cent on athletic goods further aggravated the situation, having made necessary a sharp readjustment in prices in the middle of the most active season.

Although a considerable saving in expense as a result of operating changes was effected during 1932, the full effect of the reorganization cannot be realized until 1933, and in some instances, 1934. The management is continuing intensive efforts for further economies. Personnel changes and salary reductions have also reduced expenses.

While readjustments of rents have been more difficult, substantial reductions in a large number of leases have been obtained. It is the expectation of the management that further rental reductions will be procured.

For the second time in its 40 years history, A. G. Spalding & Bros. reported an operating loss as the result of its year's activities. Reflecting a decrease in sales of 32.6 per cent, the operating loss for the fiscal year ended October 31, last, was $2,535,793. After the adsorption of other charges, such as interest, the reduction of net current assets in foreign countries to October 31 exchange rates, and miscellaneous items — including provision for loss in investments and other capital assets—the net loss totaled $2,660,260. This figure compared with a net loss of $1,011,266 in the preceding fiscal period.

AMERICAN FIRE UNITS REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Insurance companies of the American fire group, in their balance sheets as of January 1, show that the two largest increased their assets during past year while, of the remaining five companies, four had slight declines and the fifth, the smallest, gained slightly.

Total assets of the Continental Insurance Company rose to $84,856,092, from $82,765,177 from the previous year and those of the Fidelity-Phenix Fire Insurance Company were up to $67,242,175 against $65,553,659 a year earlier. The Maryland Insurance Company, smallest member of the group, increased its assets from $2,730,336 to $2,768,105.

The Fdelity and Casualty Company reported a decline in assets from $39,209,224 to $34,652,486; Niagara Fire Insurance Company from $22,410,842 to $21,316,509; American Eagle Fire Insurance Company from $13,030,392 to $12,452,389, and the First American Fire Insurance Company from $4,016,647 to $3,930,890.

Columbia Gas to Earn $1.05 a Share For 1932

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

COLUMBIA GAS AND Electric Company will report $1.05 a share earned on the common stock for the year 1932. In addition the organization will show that its bank loans were cut in half during the year.

The company is the largest organization in the natural gas business. During the period of expansion, it contracted large bank loans which under ordinary conditions would have been refunded through the sale of securities. The depression, however, made it impossible to do this. Bank loans amounted to $66,645,971 at the end of 1930. They were reduced to $44,176,185 at the end of 1931. The report for the year ended December 31, 1932, is expected to show loans of about $22,000,000.

New Dividend Policy Betters Cash Position

A FACTOR OF major importance in the improvement in the current financial position is the policy of paying dividends on the common stock in a new class of 5 per cent convertible preference stock which was inaugurated early in 1932. The stock is on an annual dividend basis of $1 a share. The policy of paying this in preference stock is making it possible to liquidate the company's heavy volume of unfunded debt.

No particularly great changes will be shown in the amount of funded debt outstanding. With the exception of financing by one subsidiary organization Columbia Gas funded debt will not be materially changed.

Development Work Not Shown in Net

THROUGH ALL THE depression period Columbia has been extending its pipeline facilities, adding to its gas producing resources and expanding the territory served. For the past three years industrial consumption of gas has been declining rapidly, and there has been a moderate reduction in residential consumption. While Columbia has been making enormous expenditures for expansion, the effects of the industrial depression have prevented the extended operations from reflecting themselves in earnings.

Through the depression period Columbia Gas has been plowing tremendous sums of money back into its physical properties and up to the present time it has received little remuneration. But when the newly acquired consumers of gas are restored to a normal rate of activity, Columbia's gross and net income may be expected to show sharp increases.

Bank Check Volume Takes Upward Trend

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Debits to individual accounts (checks drawn) as reported to the Federal Reserve Board by banks in leading cities for the week ended January 18 aggregated $6,342,000,000, or 3 per cent above the preceding week and 23 per cent below the corresponding period of last year.

Aggregate debits for the 141 centers amounted to about $5,887,000,000, as compared with $5,672,000,000 the preceding week, and $7,669,000,000 in the week ended January 20 of last year.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Lead Against a Slam

The proper lead against a Slam contract is a question that has been the subject of frequent discussion. Generally speaking, if an Ace is the only trick in a hand and the contract is no-trump, most players consider it bad policy to lay down the Ace, as that, they argue, is the equivalent of giving up any hope of the defeat of the contract, provided it is a contract of only six, whereas, if the Ace is held, it is almost certain to take a trick and may also be able to capture an adversely held King. All experts will agree that a low lead from an Ace against a Small Slam contract at no-trump, is bad. However, such a lead may present opportunities for interesting and unusual plays, as it did in the case below:

South—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A J 10 9 8 2 ♡ A 8 3 2 ◇ J 5 ♣ Q
♠ 7 5 4 ♡ Q 10 7 ◇ A 10 9 6 4 3 ♣ 2	North West East South	♠ K Q ♡ 6 5 4 ◇ 8 ♣ J 10 8 7 6 5 3
	♠ 6 3 ♡ K J 9 ◇ K Q 7 2 ♣ A K 9 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 N T	Pass	5 ♠	Pass
6 N T	Pass	Pass	Pass

Obviously, North's bid of two spades is entirely too strong. He has no fit in diamonds, his hand contains only slight plus values over 2½ honor-tricks, and such a bid should result in disaster. Equally strong criticism may be made of some of the subsequent bidding.

Perhaps the dizzy bidding by North confused West, but, in any event, the choice of an opening lead was the diamond 6, which South won with the Queen. The first spade finesse now lost to East's Queen, and as his only diamond had been played on the first trick, he elected to return to a club, which was won with Dummy's Queen. Probably a heart would have been a stronger play at this point. South was far from happy, but felt greatly encouraged when he led the Ace of spades and the King dropped. The four remaining spades were played, and South discarded the 9 of clubs and his three remaining diamonds. West discarded three diamonds, and East four clubs. South had been so lucky so far that he now saw hopes of making the hand, and wisely chose to play for the squeeze in preference to the heart finesse, so led a small heart from Dummy and went up with the King. He now led the Ace of Clubs and West discarded the diamond 10. The squeeze was complete when South led the King of clubs, West was helpless and unable to prevent the capture of all the remaining tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION

How would you bid the following hand, if vulnerable, in a Rubber game, holding:

♠ K 10 8 6 5 ♡ K ◇ A K Q J 10 4 2 ♣ —

Answer—One diamond. The hand does not justify any higher opening bid, and the diamond suit should be preferred to the spade suit because of the great difference in length and strength.

VET HURLER IDEAL FOR RELIEF ROLES

THE SIGNING OF Waite Hoyt is another bit of evidence that the Pittsburgh club is overlooking no bets and leaving nothing undone that may help the pennant chances of the Pirates. And don't imagine for an instant that Hoyt isn't a good bet for relief roles. He is only 33, and far from being through, despite an odd record that shows that he was with two different clubs in each of the last three seasons—Yankees and Tigers in 1930, Tigers and A's in 1931, and Dodgers and Giants in 1932. Those shifts were not due to loss of ability, and Freddie Lindstrom, a teammate last year, is one good judge from whom you can take it that Waite still has a wealth of stuff.

Waite Hoyt

Bill Terry admitted last fall that Hoyt, the handicap of a sore finger notwithstanding, had not pitched a bad game for New York, and was one Giant certain to be retained. It was only because the club had to cut expenses that Waite was let go. The Bucs had two demonstrations of Hoyt's ability at Forbes Field last year. He finished a game and beat them, 4 to 3, on July 7, allowing only one hit in the three innings he pitched, and he beat them again by the same score in a full game on August 22. He looks like an ideal relief man who ought to save many a game. And world series have a habit of following Hoyt. He has been in seven of them.

THE TROUBLE THAT led to the sudden change in the Cub managership while the Bruins were on an Eastern trip last August started in Pittsburgh during a two-game series on July 22 and 23, Rogers Hornsby says. And he blames it on a catcher and an infielder whom he accuses of having carried tales out of meetings to the front office.

Suspecting the two of having disregarded his instructions not to disclose what had gone on at the club's morning meetings, Hornsby is said to have called a meeting here on the second day of the series without notifying the suspected pair. That afternoon, the story goes, President Veeck asked why a meeting had not been held, which convinced Hornsby he had made the right guess about the leak.

"I DID HOLD a meeting, but I didn't include those two iron heads," the Rajah replied to Veeck. "I held the meeting with Pat Malone." Malone had pitched against the Pirates the preceding day.

After the game that second day, Hornsby, boiling over, asked the Cubs to give him their attention for a few minutes in the dressing room, and when they had assembled he asked Malone what he would think of a player who informed the front office that the manager had not called a meeting.

AFTER MALONE HAD given his opinion of such a person in vigorous language, Hornsby turned to the suspected catcher and demanded: "What would YOU think of a fellow who was an informer?" There was no response. Wheeling on the infielder whose loyalty he doubted, Rogers flung the question once again, but this player also failed to reply. Hornsby's ensuing remarks may be imagined. He says he followed up by charging Veeck with responsibility for the situation, and that this led to the big explosion and change of managers on August 2.

Mark Koenig

A SUPERIOR PUNCH may win for Mark Koenig the 1933 starting assignment at shortstop for the Cubs over Bill Jurges. There is no doubt that Jurges carries the greater speed. He is one of the fastest shortfielders in the majors. But Koenig has the sock, and it's likely to land the job for him.

There was the wide difference of 100 points between the batting averages of the two last year. Jurges hit only .253 in 115 games, while Koenig turned in a mark of .353 for 33 games. So unless Jurges shows a vast improvement in stickwork on the training trip, Koenig probably will be in there at the bell.

THOUGH BABE RUTH'S salary has gone down, his home-run hitting will have to go up, as compared with the last two seasons, if he is to realize this year his ambition to reach the 700 mark in homers.

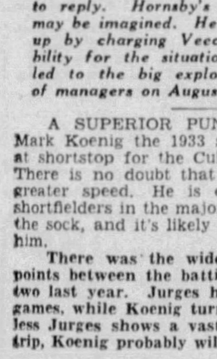
For against the 46 boundary belts which the Bambino registered in 1931 and the 41 he cracked out in 1932, he needs 48 more to round out a total of 700, as his collection to date, exclusive of world series engagements, aggregates 652. Ruth has led the American League 12 times in homers and tied for the top once with Clarence Walker.

GIRL ATHLETES WHO felt greatly encouraged about their chances for a trip to Berlin in 1936 as contestants in the next Olympic Games may be disappointed. There is said to be a strong chance that events for women will be dropped from the program, at least in the track and field division. Competition by women is contrary to Olympic tradition. Originally they were not permitted even to be spectators. Since the games of 1932 the subject has come in for considerable quiet discussion among the Olympic officials in various countries, with the result that at the next session of the international congress, which will be held in 1934, it may be decided to eliminate track contests for female performers.

DURING THE MONTHS following the Los Angeles carnival, Count de Maillet Latour, president of the International Olympic Committee and the biggest individual figure on the official side of the picture, has made numerous speeches in which he voiced his disapproval of participation by women.

Avery Brundage, of the American committee, also has expressed his opposition, and Great Britain, Italy and the Scandinavian countries are decidedly cool on the subject. The women get their support from Central Europe, but it is questionable whether Germany, Poland, Holland and two or three other countries can keep the door open.

WHILE UNDER THE direction of Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, who recently confessed that he knew nothing about hockey, the Chicago Blackhawks rarely lost a game at home, and when they did it was by only a narrow margin. For a long time it was said the best a visiting club could get in Chicago was a tie.



Paul Berlenbach

And yet, in their first game under Tommy Gorman, one of hockey's wisest generals, the Blackhawks received the worst home beating of their career, a 5-to-0 lacing at the hands of the New York Rangers. Bob Dunbar is adding it to a pile of evidence that "Life is that way."

FROM THE HEIGHTS of a world ring championship and the position of a man of wealth who earned purses aggregating $350,000 during his fistic career, Paul Berlenbach has fallen to the necessity of advertising for a job. In the classified columns of New York newspapers, the former holder of the light-heavyweight title, asks for a position as athletic instructor with a private family and adds that he will also act as chauffeur. The depression has left Berlenbach flat. A $35,000 Pelham Manor home went first, and then two houses at Atlantic Beach had to be sold. Lawsuits took a toll, wrestling and boxing comebacks were failures, bonds continued to fall, and now Paul confesses that he is broke. "I'm bond poor, like a lot of other people," he explained. "But why sell bonds that have depreciated from $100 face value to a market price of $8? So I've got to find something to do to keep going. I'm 32 and too old to fight or wrestle any more. But I'm neither too old nor too proud to work."

KEEN RIVALS MEET AGAIN AT GARDEN

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Ted Yarosz vs. Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, 10 rounds; Alabama Kid vs. Jack Deerenberg, 8 rounds, and Max Elling vs. Freddie Edwards and Carl Montebano vs. Mickey Solomen, 6 rounds each, Motor Square Garden.

Henry Firpo vs. Jocko Walters, 10 rounds, Coshocton, O.

Tiger Jack Fox vs. Umberto Arce, 10 rounds, Terre Haute, Ind.

King Levinsky vs. K. O. Christner, 10 rounds, St. Nicholas Arena, New York.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, undefeated in 62 professional bouts, and one of the ranking boxers of the world in the welterweight class, believes he has solved the riddle that is Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis, and will defeat the latter decisively in their third meeting, in Motor Square Garden, tonight.

The bout means much to Teddy. He has a match signed with Andy Callahan in Boston's huge Arena, one week from tonight, and another pending in New York's Madison Square Garden, where he recently was held to a draw by Wolfe, after having won a close decision over Eddie in Detroit.

EXPOUNDS THEORY

Ray Foutts, manager of Yarosz, speaking for his man, expounded his theory today. He said:

"Both Teddy and I have given this match a lot of thought, and we have some ideas which we believe will work out. Back of them is the realization that Wolfe's success in his two bouts with Teddy so far have resulted from his ability to make Teddy box into his hands. In other words, Yarosz has been fighting to Wolfe's pattern instead of making Wolfe fight his own sort of a fight.

"In their New York fight, a combination of circumstances handicapped Yarosz. It was Teddy's first bout in the big city and he was anxious to make good. He wanted to knock out Wolfe, and was gambling throughout with right-hand leads which were short or over the mark, leaving openings through which Wolfe scored effectively. Teddy, instead of looking good through his aggressiveness, was made to look bad. Late in the bout, he steadied down and came on in the last two rounds to gain a draw and keep his record of no defeats intact.

MAPS HIS FIGHT

"Teddy should be right at home before a familiar crowd and in a familiar setting tonight. He will fight a careful, conservative fight, aiming to make Wolfe fight to his demands, and not fight into the groove of his opponent. It sounds good in theory, at any rate. We'll have to wait until the bout to learn how it works out in practice."

Alabama Kid, the colorful Negro southpaw welterweight, of Dover, O., returns to fight a newcomer, Jack December, of Michigan, in the eight-round semi-final; Freddie Edwards, of Chester, W. Va., boxes Max Elling, of the Hill, in the second bout, and Mickey Solomen, of New Castle, returns against Carl Montebano, of Braddock, in the opener.

QUINTERO AFTER YAROSZ

Manuel Quintero, the Spanish welterweight, of Tampa, Fla., has not given up hope of landing a match with Ted Yarosz. He hopes to turn the tables on Billy Holt when they meet again in the windup of the reopening show at the Moose Temple, Wednesday night, and to flash such form as to make a pairing with Yarosz a "natural."

Max Juster, manager of Quintero, today was considering an offer from Promoter James J. Marshall, of Detroit, for a bout between Quintero and Jimmy McLarnin on Friday, February 10.

Eddie Bojack, of Cleveland, has been signed to oppose Tiger Joe Randall, Elizabeth Negro welterweight, in the main bout at the Arena, on the North Side, Friday night.

George Panka, Homestead heavyweight, has gone under the management of Irish Kane.

MEYERS BOWL TO BE SOLD

For sale—One large sheet iron and frame boxing bowl.

The Meyers Bowl in North Braddock, none other.

The arena, built some five years ago, will go under the hammer at a constable's sale to be conducted on the premises Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The sale will be conducted by Constable John J. Duhom to recover $1,455.25 due in rent and taxes from I. D. (Apples) Meyers, the promoter.

TO HIGHEST BIDDER

Carl C. Baldridge, the owner, said today he will sell the Bowl to the highest bidder and make a satisfactory lease for the ground upon which the arena was erected by the three Meyers brothers, one of whom has died since the structure was put up.

Among those mentioned today as likely bidders for the up-for-sale arena were William Tracy, Braddock sportsman; Jim McGirr, McKeesport and Moose Temple promoter; John L. Hernon, promoter at Hickey Park, and Joe Mazer, Motor Square Garden impresario, as well as Victor Greene, of Swissvale, and Jules Beck, the Motor Square matchmaker.

FORMER MONEY-MAKER

The sale will be conducted on a landlord's warrant. In the event no satisfactory bids are received, Baldridge may buy in the property himself and make other arrangements for the conduct of boxing in the Bowl next summer. The history of the arena is that it was highly successful financially during its first several seasons and then suffered a big drop in patronage. It suspended business after only a handful of shows last year. Baldridge said today:

"My only interest in the proposition is to recover the sum due me and to see that a capable promoter takes over the plant. I want to see it successful again, and I think it can be made so."

KORNICK HOLDS LEAD

Bob Kornick, Perry High forward, continues to lead the City League scholastic stars in scoring with a total of 75 points. Bill Jesko, of South, is second with 52 points.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The other day, Willie Davies, veteran bantamweight boxer, of Charleroi, issued a denial of a widely circulated report that he had quit the ring . . . "Not at the age of 26," he said . . . Elaborating today, Willie said: "I feel I still can beat most of the men of my weight, and I don't see why I should hang up the gloves under these conditions . . . In my last bout, on December 1, I defeated Ross Fields at Youngstown, and you saw what a fine fight Fields put up against Mose Butch at the Arena last Friday night . . . There is only one man in the bantamweight class whom I regard as a really tough assignment for me, and he is Al Brown, the world champion . . . The reason I say he would be tough is because he has so much height and reach on me, as he has on most of the bantamweights . . . But I would not hesitate to fight him . . . I would prepare accordingly and would give everything I have, as I always have done in all of my bouts . . . I have been boxing professionally for nine years, and my fondest memory is that in all of that time I never have heard the boos of a crowd for my work."

Willie no longer resides in Charleroi, where he got his start . . . He lives in Saluvia, Pa., near Bedford, where he has a camp and a service station . . . He is happily married and the father of a junior Willie . . . He lives a clean life, much of it in the outdoors, and believes this fact has been largely responsible for his longevity in the ring.

Davies is a student of crowd psychology as well as of boxing . . . He remarked his bouts with Mose Butch, Jimmy Thomas and other young boxers of the district and called attention to the reactions of the fans . . . "I am more or less of a fixture around here," he said . . . "They take me for granted; they know my ability and are most concerned about how the youngsters will fare against me . . . If they do well, the crowd is duly impressed; if not, well—Davies is a veteran and should beat them . . . Thus, subconsciously, they are inclined to minimize my efforts and exaggerate the good points of my opponents . . . It's an entirely human trait, and I'm not complaining . . . I think I always have been a good sport. I think I can lose as graciously as the next fellow. I'm merely stating a fact . . . During the last year or so, I have noticed some criticism of my work along the lines that I am not quite as speedy as I formerly was . . . That's to be expected . . . I'm older and heavier now, and, consequently, slower, but I don't think I'm any slower than the average good boxer of my weight . . . Time was when I could make the flyweight limit of 112 pounds easily . . . Now I have to work hard to make 118 pounds, the bantamweight limit . . . But there are some compensations . . . One of these is that I am able to hit harder."

The Chicago Stadium, immense sports palace, goes into a receivership . . . There's nothing significant about that other than that this case is typical of most large sports arenas . . . The overhead is so great that they find it difficult to show a profit . . . Only when it is possible to have something going on all of the time is it possible to produce the revenue needed to carry on such an enterprise . . . Where the field is restricted, the building becomes a white elephant.—HARRY KECK.

Y. M. H. A. to Play In West Penn Loop

The Y. M. H. A. basketball team will compete in the West Penn League from now on and will make its league debut Thursday evening against the Goose Goslins.

In a preliminary, the Y. M. H. A. B team will meet the I. K. S. B passers.

COOPER TAKES ARIZONA OPEN

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Lighthorse Harry Cooper, Chicago stylist of the links, with a score of 281 over the 72-hole distance, won the second annual $1,500 Arizona Open golf championship from an imposing field yesterday. He took $400 top money.

Closely contested all the way, Cooper was tied by Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., and Paul Runyan, of White Plains, at the end of 54 holes.

Smith, however, ran into trouble on the final 18 and had to be satisfied with a tie for second place with Ray Mangrum, of Los Angeles, who came from behind to pull abreast of the Oak Park iron specialist, with 283. They split second and third place money.

Runyan dropped back to a tie with Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., for fourth. They each had a score of 284.

Charley Guest, Deal (N. J.) pro, finished in sixth place with another par-busting 69.

The result was in doubt until Mangrum dropped his final putt as the shadows were lengthening across the course. Cooper's first three rounds sent him to the final 18 holes four under par and, although he missed a putt on the eighteenth green that would have given him a par for the round, he still wound up three strokes under par.

By JESS CARVER

The good old college basketball campaign rather bogs down this week as the collegians turn their attention to mid-semester exams, but what the city program lacks in numbers it more than makes up in class.

After a more or less hectic time last week, during which time Geneva grabbed off a strangle hold on the Tri-State Conference title; Pitt gained added prestige by whipping both Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame; Westminster won itself three ball games and Waynesburg served notice that it will be the team to be beaten out for the Conference title, the boys roll into the present week with two games listed in the city and only one in the Conference.

CONTEST IMPORTANT

Tonight, Carnegie meets Geneva in a contest that may eventually have great bearing on the settling of the district championship. The game will be played in Beaver Falls, and originally was carded for tomorrow, but the Beaver Falls High School gym, site of the struggle, could not be obtained for tomorrow evening, so, after a hurried conference yesterday, the contest was moved up to tonight.

The Covenanters right now appear to be, and probably are, the strongest team outside of the city. Tech will be no better than an even choice, if that, tonight, and will find the going rough. Coach Max Hannum will start the same team that lost to Pitt last week, except that Rigg will go at guard instead of Seigal. George Silverman remains on the hospital list with his shoulder in a cast.

The value of Claire Cribbs to the Pitt team was demonstrated Saturday night as the Panthers took Notre Dame. Cribbs failed to hold his man, Moose Krause, during the first half, but Krause is just good enough to be a scoring threat against any college player (or Johnny Freund, either) can mention. But Claire's handling of the ball, and his all-'round play made Pitt look like a different team, even better than it looked in beating Carnegie on Tuesday.

CROWE BOOED

The game was a thriller, was the fastest seen in the city this year and brought together a pair of primed teams. It was hard but cleanly fought, and the only untoward incident being Leo Crowe's exhibition of questionable sportsmanship in refusing Capt. Don Smith's proffered hand when he, Crowe, was ejected from the game in the second half on personal fouls. Smith wasn't trying to razz the Notre Dame man; Smitty shakes hands with all opponents when they leave the game, as a captain should, but Crowe turned and muttered something to him and sulked from the floor. The crowd let Crowe know just how they felt about it, too.

Pitt went into a tie with the Dukes for first place in the Intercollegiate Boxing Conference Saturday night by beating Temple, 4 to 3, the same score by which the Dukes outpointed Wash-Jeff Friday night.

SMITH TOPS SCORERS

In the race for scoring honors among the three city teams, Capt. Don Smith, of Pitt, who rapidly is winning regard of being the leading collegiate performer in the district, swiped the lead from a teammate, Don McCamant, and today has 63 points to his credit. McCamant is second with 60 and Skippy Hughes third with 46. Bob Smith leads the Tartans with 42 and Birsh heads Duquesne's squad with 43.

DEMPSEY ADMITS TUNNEY HIT HIM 'HARDEST BLOW'

GENE WRITES OF RECOVERY, VICTORY

SYNOPSIS

Having decided to avoid letting Dempsey close in on him after arising from the so-called "long count" at Chicago, Tunney got up just as the referee raised his hand to signal the "Ten and Out!" toll. Gene was determined that he would catch Jack's dangerous left "and not be sucker enough to walk into it again." It's still the seventh round . . . the scowling "Tiger Man," scenting the returning of his old crown, comes on, his right arm up on guard and his left all but dragging along the floor until he could get in striking distance . . . the champion is circling to the right to foil al' "Iron Mike's" T. N. T. . . .

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

After circling the ring once and avoiding eight or nine swings, I realized that I could circle him faster than he could follow. I bided my time, remaining physically relaxed. Presently, I decided it was time to try to nail him. I slowed up until he got within hitting distance; suddenly I lunged forward with a straight right that hit him on the temple. This was unexpected. His knees buckled a bit.

Gene Tunney

We exchanged five or six blows in close before the referee separated us. I then circled to his left side. He made several futile attempts to catch me with long swings. Slowing up again, I lunged forward with another right-hand punch and hit him on the cheekbone. Again his knees buckled. We clinched. The referee separated us. I renewed circling to his left. He sensed that if he kept up this futile chase, he would be knocked out. Either of the two blows that I hit him had sufficient force for a knockout if placed on a more vulnerable spot.

DEMPSEY DISCOURAGED

He then decided on a grandstand gesture. The ridiculousness of the situation can be most appreciated by a professional boxer. Here was I, just up from a count, and, while avoiding his attempts to put me down again for keeps, being beckoned by my opponent to come in so that he could land the finishing punch or punches!

I thought this gesture an acknowledgment of discouragement; so, cautiously moving about, I got what I thought was an opening for a right at his body. I lunged forward with the same power of the other two blows and hit him under the heart. He grunted.

I want to say here that Dempsey's actions after this blow proved to me that he possessed the stick - to - it - iveness that makes him great among champions. He made no attempt to go down but, bending forward, his arms close to his body, weaved until the bell rang.

DEMPSEY IN CONFESSION

In the spring of 1929, while coming north on the train after promoting the Sharkey - Stribling fight at Miami Beach, Dempsey went into the compartment of Roy Howard and Ray Long, the publishers. After talking a little while about the Chicago fight and, in particular, that seventh round, Dempsey exclaimed:

"The right-hand punch under the heart that Tunney hit me when he got off the floor in the seventh round was the hardest blow I have ever received. It was not a question in my mind of being knocked out—I thought I was going to die. I could not get my breath. A second rubbed away the congestion around my heart when I came back to my corner; but for that I would not have been able to come out for the eighth round."

Gus Wilson, his worshiping trainer, has told the same story.

Following the knockdown at the opening of the eighth round, Dempsey again demonstrated the kind of courage he has. Every newspaper account of those last three rounds describes Jack as a human punching bag. Yet, aside from the knockdown in the early part of the eighth, he never was off his feet.

"GOOD FIGHT, GENE"

When the decision was given, I walked across to Jack's corner. He advanced to meet me and said:

"Congratulations, Gene! It was a good fight! I did the best I could."

Back in the penthouse of the Sherman Hotel after the fight, a group of friends gathered. We staged a party. Learning that Mayor Thompson was living at the same hotel, I went down to ask him up to our celebration.

"Sure I'll come up—would love to, Gene!" was his reply.

During the course of the evening, after many toasts had been drunk, Mayor Thompson said:

"I will admit I bet $8,000 on Dempsey, but that is because I had not met you."

Big Bill always was a good politician.

The following day, Eddie Sullivan, alderman for my old Greenwich Village district, and Jimmy Eagleton ran into Al Capone at the railroad station. Al had come down to see some friends off for New York. Eagleton had been to his hotel, the night before the fight, where Al was showing to the out-of-town visitors the warm and generous hospitality of Chicago.

CAPONE HEAVY LOSER

Capone said to Eagleton and Sullivan, who were about to board the train:

"I lost $45,000 on the fight, but I don't give a damn because Tunney is from New York. Before the fight I heard Tunney was up in his training camp with a lot of lavender boys in golf clothes and that they did not know what it was all about. I couldn't understand fellers like Gibson and Tunney coming from New York being so dumb. So I says this to the guys that told me to go and bet as much as I wanted on Dempsey and that everything was O. K. One of these guys tells me: 'They're all saps. They gotta couple college guys up there with them runnin' the camp. Tunney's too busy wid his books. I tell yer!' So against me best judgment, I bet against Tunney.

"At 5 o'clock I had word that the Commission had switched the referee. I did not have time to get off, but what the hell! These mugs in Chicago think New Yorkers are all suckers. Why, I came out here from Brooklyn seven years ago and they ain't made a sucker of me yet."

TALK OF THIRD BOUT

There was talk of a return match. There still was a question in the minds of many as to who was the better man.

Tunney will conclude this story of his fighting years tomorrow by describing his knockout of Tom Heeney—"the most skillful performance of my career" when "everything clicked in unison." Gene comments on the "killer instinct" hooey in sports in explaining why he backed away from Heeney in the eighth round upon thinking of the grim ring fate that befell Gene Delmont, an A. E. F. buddy.

Soccer Play?—No, It Isn't 'Cricket'

A SWELL NECK TACKLE . . . . . BUT IT DOESN'T GO IN THE BOOTING GAME, AND A FOUL WAS CALLED ON THE TACKLER

Unusual action in soccer game at Greenlee Field yesterday when the Curry team advanced to the second round of the national open cup competition by defeating the Shamrocks, of Cleveland, 4-0. Cimmerolli, inside left of the Curry team (right), is seen tackling Goalie Smoygi, of Cleveland, as the latter was clearing a shot from Buff Donnelli, the Curry star, who later scored two goals. A foul was called, giving the Cleveland team a free kick to clear its goal. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

MEL OTT SIGNS WITH GIANTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Mel Ott, clouting outfielder from Gretna, La., has agreed to salary terms for 1933, the New York Giants have announced.

Ott, returning his signed contract by mail, informed Giant officials at the same time that he was in excellent shape and ready for the new season. Ott, a holdout last year, amassed an average of .318 in 1932 and tied Chuck Klein, of the Phillies for the National League home run championship, each hitting 38.

So far the Giants have failed to locate one bona fide holdout. Fred Fitzsimmons, star right-hander, has balked at terms, but will be ready to talk business when the Giants go into training at Los Angeles late in February.

The Yankees spent an idle day yesterday and failed to reduce their list of holdouts which includes such notable figures as Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Lefty Gomez. Gehrig conferred with Ed Barrow, Yankee business manager yesterday, but failed to reach an agreement over the size of the cut in his salary check.

The Dodgers today announced receipt of the signed 1933 contract of Tony Cuccinello, regular second baseman.

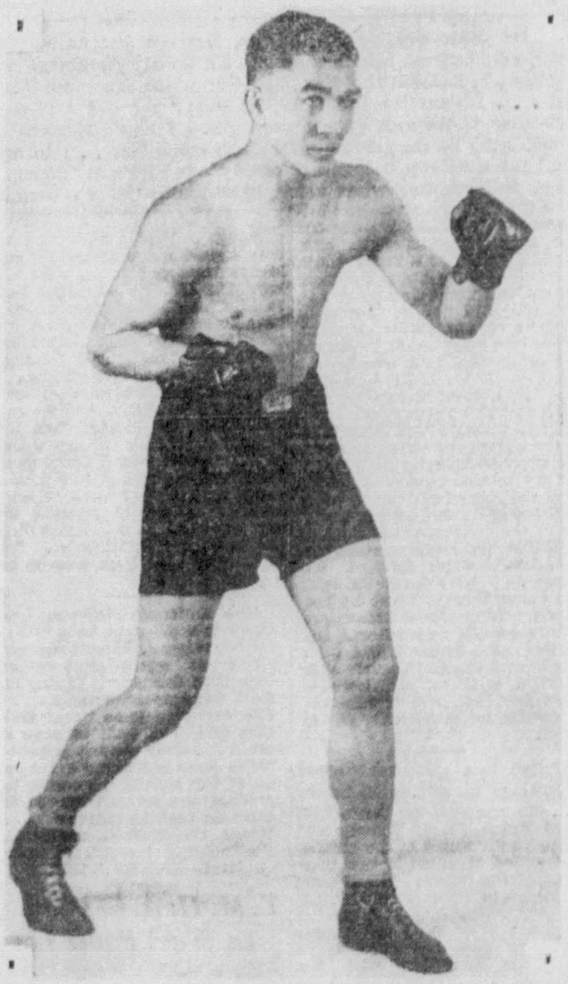
BOXES YAROSZ AGAIN



EDDIE (KID) WOLFE . . . . IT'S THEIR THIRD MEETING

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try aagin." That must be Wolfe's motto, for, after losing a close decision to Yarosz in Detroit and then holding him to a draw in New York, he'll still be trying to win over the undefeated welterweight, of Monaca, when they meet a third time in the windup at Motor Square Garden tonight. Wolfe hails from Memphis and already has boxed Tony Herrera and Pee Wee Jarrell here.

Coast Loop May Cut Ticket Prices

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Proposed reduction in baseball admission prices is one of the major problems which will confront directors of the Pacific Coast League at their annual schedule meeting here today.

"Two-bit baseball" was the slogan of directors on hand for the meeting, who favor cutting the price of bleacher tickets from 50 to 25 cents. Joe Bearwald, president of the San Francisco Missions, announced he was in favor of the cut.

PACKERS LOSE TO ALL-STARS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Ernie Nevers' Pacific Coast All-Stars, a team assembled during the last two weeks, furnished a surprising upset here yesterday by defeating the Green Bay Packers, formidable professional football eleven, 13-6.

Led by Nevers, former Stanford all-America fullback, the Coast boys plunged and passed their way to victory over a team rated as one of the strongest in the National Pro League.

Harold (Red) Grange, former Galloping Ghost of Illinois, opened at left half for the Packers and played about 15 minutes, but did not have much success. He packed the ball five times for a total loss of four yards.

The charity game, sponsored by the Knights of Columbus, supplied thrills for a crowd of some 20,000.

The Packers went into the lead with a touchdown early in the second quarter. Hinkle, former Bucknell fullback, whipped a 26-yard pass to Tom Nash, right end, and the latter ran 20 yards to score. Grove's place kick on the try for point was low.

The All-Stars followed with a touchdown and added the extra point to go into the lead in the same period. Bonnie Belden, sub left half, passed 30 yards to Harry Ebding, end, and the latter scored. Nevers' place kick sailed through for the extra tally. Near the close of the third quarter, the All-Stars scored again. Nevers throwing a seven-yard pass to McKalip, left end, who ran 10 yards. The try for point failed. The lineup:

Cubs to Take 28 Players to Camp

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The National League Champion Chicago Cubs' roster, which originally includes 32 names, will list only 28 when practice starts on Santa Catalina Island next month.

In order to obtain George Stainback, a young outfielder, from the other Wrigley club, Los Angeles, of the Pacific Coast League, for 1934 delivery, the Cubs had to put out money in considerable quantities, and four players. The money was reported to have been $75,000. Three players have been named to sojourn on the Coast next year—Outfielder Mike Kreevich, Marvin Gudat, allround handy man, and Pitcher Ed Baecht. The other will be named later.

The first squad will leave Chicago February 20, and will include batterymen and young infielders. The rest of the party will take off for the island February 25. The squad includes a dozen pitchers, three catchers, nine infielders and only four outfielders.

CURRY VICTOR IN NATIONAL CUP PLAY

By TOM BIRKS

The Curry Soccer Club, of the Keystone League, has successfully gained the second round of the National Open challenge cup competition. Yesterday afternoon the Curry booters defeated the Cleveland Shamrocks, National amateur champions, 4 to 0 at Greenlee Field, with 3,000 fans crammed into the stands.

It was a battle in which youth and stamina outlasted age and experience.

Curry won the toss and took advantage of a heavy wind blowing down field. The going was heavy at the hospital end of the field, the rainfall of the morning making foothold hazardous.

TOMAN PLAYS WELL

Curry put on pressure right from the start, but in Toman, the Shamrocks' veteran right back, the locals ran into the cleverest defender in the Buckeye State. Toman successfully matched his skill against that of Buff Donnelli. The Clevelanders made a few spasmodic sorties, Curry monopolizing the play. The half arrived with no score.

The Buckeye followers were jubilant at the start of the second half, with the wind still blowing strong, but, led by Donnelli, Curry placed the Shamrocks on the defense. Sherwood worked heroically to stop Mike Bookie and Donnelli. Toman gradually was losing out in his test with the speedy Curry youngster, Molly, and, following some great work between Bookie and Donnelli, the ball was flashed out to Molly. He easily tricked Crawford, and his shot landed in the far corner of the net.

This was the beginning of the end for the champions. The defense cracked, Buff Donnelli tangled up the defense to score the second and third goals and then, just before the finish, Cimerolli completed the rout with an overhead kick that scored the fourth and final goal.

CURRY MERITS VICTORY

Curry fully deserved to win. The national champions were outclassed. It was only a miracle that saved the Buckeye goal on many occasions in the first half.

Mike Bookie, Donnelli and Molly were the outstanding players in the victors' front line. All the halfbacks, especially Kirk, were good, and Cyle, the former Heidelberg fullback, certainly had a merry time with that Cleveland left wing. Toman, Sherwood, Marogary and Crawford were good for Cleveland.

It was one of the greatest soccer games presented here in years and the large crowd went home thrilled. The lineup:

Curry.		Shamrocks—0.
Stanko	G.	Smogi
Cyle	R.B.	Toman
N. Cimerolli	C.B.	Cowan
Kirk	C.	McNab
Powell	C.H.	Sherwood
Busko	C.H.	Crawford
Innocenti	O.R.	Litnak
Bookie	I.R.	Nelson
Donnelli	C.	Magrory
Z. Cimerolli	I.L.	Chambers
Molly	O.L.	Cooney

Score at half time—0-0. Referee—Pete McArdle. Linesmen—Pat O'Connor and Mike Boylan. Time of halves—45 minutes. Goals scored by—Molly, Donnelli 2, N. Cimerolli.

CARAFFI BOYS STAR

CLEVELAND, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The Slavia Soccer Club, of Cleveland, advanced to the second round of the national challenge cup competition yesterday by defeating the Buffalo Germans, 4 to 1. George Caraffi, who made two goals; Ralph Caraffi and McManus scored the points for the Slavia club. Cosgrave tallied for the visitors after a penalty award.

CHICAGO, DETROIT TIE

DETROIT, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The Sons of Malta and the Macabee All-Stars, of Chicago, fought to a 2-to-2 tie here yesterday in the first round of the national cup soccer series.

BRITONS FIGHT GOLF CHANGE

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Great Britain's elder statesmen of golf today expressed indignation over Gene Sarazen's advocacy of a larger golf hole. Harry Vardon, six times British open champion, said:

"Tommyrot. The very idea makes me angry."

Old Sandy Herd, who's made 18 holes-in-one, chimed in with:

"Ridiculous. You couldn't miss an eight-inch hole unless you were blind."

J. H. Taylor's comment was:

"If there's to be a change, make the hole smaller, not larger. But I think it's just right now to produce a player's best skill."

The same sentiment in different words was voiced also by James Braid, 63 years old and playing golf most of them. Braid said:

"It would be almost impossible to keep the eight-inch hole in condition. The larger walls would crumble, causing endless trouble to the greenkeeper. If anything the hole should be smaller."

Charles Whitcombe, the Ryder Cup captain in 1931, joining the oldsters in their criticism, said:

"Sarazen's suggestion is absurd. The golf hole is just right now. Don't tinker with it."

Sarazen, the America and British Open titleholder, ill in bed and with nothing else to do, recently suggested that the present cup size of 4¼ inches be increased to eight inches to add interest to the game.

CONGER IN COMEBACK

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Ray Conger, king of the indoor milers from 1929 to 1931, will attempt a comeback in the Wanamaker Mile of the millrose A. A. track and field games at Madison Square Garden February 4.

Big Cups Fail To Impress In Test Play

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The 8-inch golf cup, recently proposed by Gene Sarazen, was tried out by a representative group of golfers at the Pinehurst Country Club, but it didn't make any converts.

The tests were made on a perfectly level sand green, and the testers included W. C. Fownes, Jr., former president of the United States Golf Association; his son, H. C. Fownes; Donald J. Ross, golf course designer; Emmet French, Southern Pines pro, and Halbert J. Blue and Richard S. Tufts, ranking amateur golfers of the Carolinas.

Tufts and French, selected as the poorest putters in the star group, kept on even terms with the best, sinking them from all distances.

It was found that strong putts did not hit the back of the cup and bounce out.

HOYT LIKELY TO AID BUCS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

While the coming of Pitcher Waite Hoyt to Pittsburgh has not caused marked astonishment among Pirate fans, there is an undercurrent of feeling to the effect that the smart veteran of the slab will make the transaction worth while.

Fred Lindstrom pointed out in an interview with the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, that the Buccaneer slab staff has unusual pennant possibilities. Fred dwelt upon the side-arm deceptiveness of Gibson's hurlers and he also spoke about the smartness of the local pitchers. In the latter element of pitching Hoyt has always been a standout.

HOYT SMART PITCHER

We of the National League had scant chance to see Waite in the days he was helping to make baseball history in the championship reign of Miller Huggins' Yanks. A perusal of the records shows that Hoyt, in nine years of pitching for the Yankees, from 1921 to 1929 inclusive, won 155 games, or an average of 17-plus for the period.

In view of the power owned by the Huggins' crew it might be argued that a hurler did not need more than ordinary slab acumen to win consistently for Babe Ruth and Co., yet contemporary performers are almost unanimous in designating Hoyt as a highly intelligent flinger.

That Hoyt has lost some of his speed goes without saying. On the other hand there are many slabsters in the majors who possess speed, but who cannot be classed as "pitchers" in the strictest sense. These lads are "throwers."

MAY AID YOUNGSTERS

Hoyt remains a "pitcher" and there were times last season when he displayed fair stuff. Moreover, he has a change of pace pitch that helps him out. I would not wish to predict he would win consistently were he to be used as a starting pitcher, but I feel that he will be a big help in the relief role, provided he keeps in good condition.

One of the most attractive points as regards the Pirates might actually represent a weakness. The extreme youth of the regular lineup may retard it in the coming flag fight. Hence the arrival of Hoyt should have a stabilizing effect on the team. Surely his knowledge of pitching will work no harm to impressive boys like Bill Swift, Leon Chagnon, Hal Smith and one or two others.

COCHRAN TIES FOR CUE LEAD

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Welker Cochran, Hollywood (Cal.) cue star, has put himself back into a triple tie for first place in the world's three-cushion billiard championship tournament. Last night he defeated Otto Reiselt, Philadelphia veteran, 50 to 46 in 61 innings.

By winning the evening's only match, Cochran scored his third victory in as many games, and tied for the leadership with J. N. Bozeman, of Vallejo, Cal., and Clarence Jackson, Detroit, Mich. It was Reiselt's fourth straight loss, putting him out of the running for the title.

Cochran had a high run of 5 to 4 for the Philadelphian. In the first three innings Cochran tallied 10 points, and when 10 innings had been completed the score stood 16 to 4 in his favor. This margin was maintained until the fifty-seventh frame, when Reiselt opened up with runs of 3, 1, 2 and 4, the only time during the game he threatened the Californian.

STOCK PRICES TAKE SMALL DROP

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. (AP.)—The stock market was a bit fidgety today and prices slid off a little.

Important liquidation failed to appear, however, and most declines were fractional. The list recovered partly, after a setback in the first hour.

Senator Borah's statement that the budget could not be balanced and that reflation was necessary, again set financial quarters buzzing over the prospect of reflation, and was presumably a factor in a sag of the dollar in foreign exchange quarters. Nevertheless, gilt-edged bonds were firm, and in some quarters this was regarded as clear evidence that well-informed quarters did not believe that any dangerous form of inflation would develop. Most quarters in Wall street express doubt that any form of currency tempering which might inspire gold hoarding would be tried. In the meantime, money rates have continued to decline, with shorter term bankers' acceptances today quoted on a yield basis of 3/8-1/4 of 1 per cent. Banking authorities point out that the present reserve situation would provide for a sharp expansion of commercial credit, if the wheels of industry could be started.

Selling of Borden and National Dairy was attributed in brokerage quarters to the recent reduction in retail milk prices, which, it was pointed out, could scarcely be passed on to the farmer, in view of the extremely low price which he now receives. Brokerage opinion was mixed, and somewhat less bullish than a week or so ago, in view of the market's recent inability to rally. Some quarters felt that any pronounced signs of seasonal pickup in general business activity might be a signal for renewed bullish activity. In this connection, it was noted that bank debits to individual accounts in leading cities as reported by the Federal Reserve for the week ended January 18, showed a rise of 3 per cent above the previous week, possibly indicating some increase in commercial activity.

PRESSED STEEL STAY ASKED

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—A stay by the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals of a receivership of the Pressed Steel Car Company, ordered by the Chancery Court, was sought today by Albert C. Wall, counsel for the railroad equipment concern.

He said he would ask the court to order the receivership proceedings withheld until the May term of the Court of Errors, when an appeal was scheduled for hearing.

Wall asserted the company was not insolvent as concluded by Vice Chancellor John C. Bigelow, who ordered appointment of receivers. The company listed assets of $44,922,930 November 30, the vice chancellor said in his decision, but had operated at a loss of $100,000 a month for the last two years.

U. S. Enters Air Line Receivership Case

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The federal government, through the Interstate Commerce Commission has intervened in the Seaboard Air Line Railway receivership to protect its rights as a large creditor of the company.

The move is designed to insure conservation of assets and avoid excessive expenses by protective committees.

It was said the move is not to be construed as the government taking over the road, nor as a preliminary thereto

Wholesale Prices Reach New Bottom

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The wholesale commodity price index of the National Fertilizer Association reached a record low figure of 56.9 for the week ended January 21 or a decline of 10 points from the figure for the preceding week. A month ago the index number stood at 58.1 and a year ago at 64.0.

MARKET ACTION MANIPULATED EXPERT SAYS

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The action of the stock market looks artificial and manipulative. Probably the final test of the strength of powerful sponsors will be reached during the current week.

As I see it, there was some very good buying in the latter part of December during the tax selling period. The "right people" bought stocks.

Now the question is, did they buy at the wrong time? They have not given up yet, and there has been little distribution. So either the buyers continue to hope for a further rise, or they have been kept too busy supporting the market to allow much selling. Certainly there has been much "washing" and churning.

Personally, I am inclined to think that too much stock was taken, and too soon. It seems that there has been too much talk about what the market is going to do on the up side. There is too much of a "paper" following.

On the other hand, I doubt if there is the right kind of a short interest to help a move of this sort. It seems that a good deal of stock is met on bulges, considering the thinness of the market.

BULLS PLAN WELL

But it must be admitted that the bull operators have been skillful. They have done more than generate a paper following among market letters writers. They obviously knew just how the specialists' books stand and just where the short positions lie. So they make drives at the right stocks and succeed in keeping the selected leaders going.

Although I recognize this and see many irregularities and divergencies, I am inclined to interpret the bulge of the last three days as being a sort of "solder" in a technical reaction. Similar bulges occurred in the October and November reactions. That would mean lower prices before the end of the week.

We should know very soon now, if my present thought is right. Today should be the last day of strength or possibly show some weakness, and reaction be under way by Thursday. If the surmise be wrong, the market should fiddle around in a very narrow range, preparatory to an attempt at a stiff Feburary mark-up. (An expansion in brokers' loans might indicate this alternate.)

We should remember, however, that a period of government financing now begins, and this factor may bring support to the securities market.

MIXED MOVEMENTS

The mixed character of stock price movements is notable. At the same time that American Can, Union Pacific and Allied Chemical act unnaturally cocky, Consolidated Gas, American Telephone and U. S. Steel act "sour."

Many weak spots have cropped out, such as dairy, food and store stocks, and Chrysler, Procter & Gamble and Consolidated Gas.

The caliber and number of such cases are considerable enough to keep from getting unreservedly bullish.

I find it difficult to accept the claim that this is a market in which "accumulation" is going on. There has been entirely too much evidence of attempts to bid prices up to allow that interpretation. One sees too many "strings" of rising quotations—½, ⅝, ¾, ⅞ in a row. Such a thin, nervous condition is not conducive to taking on fat!

If I were running the market to stage a good "spring rise" in February and March, I would certainly let them down this week, unless I were afraid that a good reaction would go too far.

On the whole, I am inclined to agree with those who see no departure from the trading range of recent months except on some important news, which is not yet in evidence.

WAGE 100 TO 1 FIGHT FOR BABE

HASBROUCK HEIGHTS, N. J., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Medical science pitted its skill against admittedly long odds today in a battle to save the life of a 4-day-old infant, born in the Hasbrouck Heights Hospital with a closed esophagus.

Dr. Harris Cohan, chief of staff at the institution, said the case was "unprecedented." The child was born Friday, and when its was unable to take food in the normal manner, X-Ray pictures and other examinations disclosed that the esophagus was closed at the third rib.

It has been kept alive by a diet of water and sugar, administered by injections through the abdomen into the stomach.

Doctors at the hospital say the child has only one chance in a hundred to survive. It has not yet been decided whether an operation is feasible.

The name of the child's parents was not revealed, beyond the fact that they are residents of Ridgefield Park.

8 Killed as Storm Floods Famed Beach

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 23.—(CINS.)—Eight persons were killed today when a violent storm flooded streets and part of the famous Coogee Beach sea front. The storm swept away a dam at Stanwell Park, causing a mighty deluge that swept over a group of week-end campers.

An entire family camping in the area was swept to sea as the father heroically struggled to save his drowning baby.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Further firmness of United States government loans was an encouraging feature of the bond market today, although elsewhere the investment pulse was a trifle irregular. Foreign obligations were mixed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Calvin Coolidge's Life Story

session of my certificate did I notify my father. He had expected that my studies would take another year, and I wanted to surprise him if I succeeded and not disappoint him if I failed. I did not fail. I was just 25 years old and very happy.

It was a little over 11 years from the time I left home for the academy in the late winter of 1886 until I was admitted to the bar in the early summer of 1897. They had been years full of experience for me, in which I had advanced from a child to a man. Wherever I went I found good people, men and women, and young folks of my own age, who had won my respect and affection. From the hearthstone of my father's fireside to the courtroom at Northampton they had all been kind and helpful to me. Their memory will always be one of my most cherished possessions.

Preferred Practice

My formal period of education was passed, though my studies are still pursued. I was devoted to the law, its reasonableness appealed to my mind as the best method of securing justice between man and man. I fully expected to become the kind of country lawyer I saw all about me, spending my life in the profession, with perhaps a final place on the bench. But it was decreed to be otherwise. Some power that I little suspected in my student days took me in charge and carried me on from the obscure neighborhood at Plymouth Notch to the occupancy of the White House.

It is one thing to know how to get admitted to the bar but quite another thing to know how to practice law. Those who attend a law school know how to pass the examinations, while those who study in an office know how to apply their knowledge to actual practice. It seems to me that the best course is to go to a school and then go into an office where the practice is general. In that way the best preparation is secured for a thorough comprehension of the great basic principles of the profession and for their application to existing facts. Still, one who has had a good college training can do very well by starting in an office. But in any case he should not go into the law because it appears to be merely a means of making a living, but because he has a real and sincere love for the profession, which will enable him to make the sacrifices it requires.

When I decided to enter the law it was only natural, therefore, that I should consider it the highest of the professions. If I had not held that opinion it would have been a measure of intellectual dishonesty for me to take it for a life work. Others may be hampered by circumstances in making their choice, but I was free, and I went where I felt the duties would be congenial and the opportunities for service large. Those who follow other vocations ought to feel the same about them, and I hope they do.

Own Office Opened

My opinion has been formed by the high estimate in which the bench and bar were held by the people in my boyhood home in Vermont. It was confirmed by my more intimate intercourse with the members of the profession with whom I soon came in contact in Massachusetts after I went there to study law in the autumn of 1895. When I was admitted to practice two years later the law still occupied the high position of a profession. It had not then assumed any of its later aspects of a trade.

The ethics of the Northampton bar were high. It was made up of men who had, and were entitled to have, the confidence and respect of their neighbors who knew them best. They put the interests of their clients above their own, and the public interests above them both. They were courteous and tolerant toward each other and respectful to the court. This attitude was fostered by the appreciation of the uprightness and learning of the judges.

Because of the short time I had spent in preparation I remained in the office of Hammond and Field about seven months after I was admitted to the bar. I was looking about for a place to locate but found none that seemed better than Northampton. A new block called the Masonic Building was under construction on lower Main street, and when it was ready for occupancy I opened an office there February 1, 1898. I had two rooms, where I was to continue to practice law for 21 years, until I became Governor of Massachusetts in 1919. For my office furniture and a good working library I paid about $800 from some money I had saved and inherited from my Grandfather Moor. My rent was $200 per year. I began to be self-sustaining except as to the cost of my table board, which was paid by my father until September, but thereafter all my expenses I paid from the fees I received.

Had Little Business

I was alone. While I had many acquaintances that I might call friends I had no influential supporters who were desirous to see me advanced and were sending business to me. I was dependent on the general public; what I had, came from them. My earnings for the first year were a little over $500.

My interest in public affairs had already caused me to become a member of the Republican city committee, and in December, 1898, I was elected one of the three members of the common council from Ward Two. The office was without salary and not important, but the contracts were helpful. When the local military company returned that summer from the Cuban campaign I did my best to get an armory built for them. I was not successful at that time, but my proposal was adopted a little later. This was the beginning of an interest in military preparation, which I have never relinquished.

During 1899 I began to get more business. The Nonotuck Savings Bank was started early that year, and I became its counsel. Its growth was slow but steady. In later years I was its president, a purely honorary place without salary but no small honor. There was legal work about the county which came to my office, so that my fees rose to $1,400 for the second year.

I did not seek re-election to city council, as I knew the city solicitor was to retire and I wanted that place. The salary was $600, which was not unimportant to me. But my whole thought was on my profession. I wanted to be city solicitor because I believed it would make me a better lawyer. I was elected and held the office until March, 1902. It gave me a start in the law which I was ever after able to hold.

The office was not burdensome and went along with my private practice. It took me into court some. In a jury trial I lost two trifling cases in an action of damages against the city for taking a small strip of land to widen a highway. I felt I should have won these cases on the claim that the land in question already belonged to the highway. But I prevailed in an unimportant case in the Supreme Court against my old preceptor Mr. Hammond. It is unnecessary to say that usually my cases with him were decided in his favor. The training in this office gave me a good grasp of municipal law, that later brought some important cases to me.

SLUMP BRINGS EINSTEIN TO U.S

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The depression and not relativity is the problem that pulled Albert Einstein to the United States for his third annual visit to California.

This was made known today in the completion of plans for a mass meeting tonight devoted to the problem of the depression primarily from the phase of "German-American relations."

The Berlin professor of relativity is to appear on a program with Henry M. Robinson, banker, who served on the Supreme Allied Economic Council and the Dawes Reparations Commission; Dr. Robert A. Millikan, cosmic ray hunter and philosophical leader, and Dr. William B. Munro, professor of history and government at the California Institute of Technology.

Einstein has disclosed that his discussion tonight is by commission of the Oberlaender Trust of the Carl Schurz Foundation of Philadelphia, which is bearing the cost of this, his third visit to the United States. He likewise has made known that the theory of relativity is not applicable to the problems of the world today.

Classified Advertising Dept.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Attention: Mr. L. P. Olsen

Dear Mr. Olsen:

I suppose the Sun-Telegraph, like any other institution, enjoys an occasional compliment. Fortunately for me, I am able to congratulate you on the prompt effectiveness with which your Classified Ads produce real results.

Not only have I been able to secure many students through the Sun-Telegraph, but in addition, it has been the means of my being able to sell a surprisingly large number of instruments.

Keep up the good work for me and be assured I will co-operate in the way of further advertising.

Sincerely yours,

Louis DeFonso

Kim Announces Intention Of Leaving His Wife Once Again

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

"What can be wrong?" Mary Faith asked herself a hundred times a day. "What have I done, or left undone?"

And she knew that it was nothing she had done or had not done that was responsible for Kim's behavior. She knew that he was bored and out of love with her once more, just as he had been before. Well, he had always come back to her, hadn't he?

"What's the matter with him? He acts as if this place was a boarding house," his mother remarked frequently. "I declare, he runs around almost as much now as he did before he was married."

And so things went until the 15th of March.

Mary Faith was always to remember that day because of the three things that happened on it.

The baby made a whole sentence that day. "I see birdie." Mrs. Farrell announced that she was going to be married to Dr. Thatcher the next morning. And Kim broke the news that he intended to leave his wife.

The day started out beautifully, with sunshine and blue sky and everything going on in the flat just as usual.

BABY'S FIRST SENTENCE

A little after 10 Mrs. Farrell started on her weekly search for bargains. She did this every Friday and returned at nightfall, loaded with toys for the baby, dish towels that left lint all over the dishes, mayonnaise mixers that refused to work.

"Say 'bye-bye' to Nana," she said, kissing little Kim goodbye. She never spoke of herself as "grandmother."

"Bye," said the baby, and went on playing with his string of spools.

"Now, isn't it wonderful—the way he says that, Mary Faith! Kimberley walked and talked long before he was 2 years old, and this baby is as smart as he was!" She never gave Mary Faith any credit for producing a beautiful and precocious child.

"Hold him up to the window, Mary Faith, so he can wave goodbye to his Nana," she said, opening the front door.

But the baby had no eyes for her departing figure when Mary Faith held him up to the window. He went into raptures over two sparrows on the sidewalk, and it was then that he spoke the sentence that Mary Faith interpreted as "I see birdie."

She tried to make him say it again, but he struggled to get out of her arms and back to his beloved spools. But Mary Faith was positive, nevertheless, that he had said those three little words. Late that afternoon, when the flat was in order and dinner was under way, she sat down to make an entry to that effect in his silk-covered baby book. She began to write: "This morning the baby put three words together to make a sentence—" She had reached that point when she heard the sound of Kim's car, and she flung down her pen and started up from her chair.

Long afterward she was to open the book and find that unfinished entry, trailing a long streak of ink after it, like a dark cloud; and the very sight was to bring back the vivid and aching memory of this March afternoon—the yellow glow of the sun in the room, the smell of the geraniums on the window sills, the sound of the vestibule door slamming, and Kim's footsteps on the stairs outside.

It was only 5 o'clock. Kim hadn't come as early as this in months! Mary Faith was glad that she had just changed into a clean house dress of horizon-blue cotton crepe—the color that "set off" her blue eyes. The hope that had warmed her heart for months flared up once again as Kim stepped into the room. The hope that on one of these nights he would come home and be his old self—the companionable contented Kim of last spring and of last summer, instead of the sulky and remote man who had come and gone like a paying guest all these past 10 weeks.

He came in, and as she looked at his face her hopes died. It was hard and cold as if the regular beauty of it had been chiseled out of stone.

"Hello, Kim," she said.

"Hello." He did not look at her or at the baby, who was trying to reach the geranium blossoms on the window sill.

Then he walked out of the room. She heard him go down the hall to his own room and close the door.

MARY FAITH UNEASY

A moment later he came back. "Where's my mother?"

Mary Faith smiled. "This is her bargain day. She's still downtown."

Mrs. Farrell's passion for bargains had always been the source of much good-natured joking in the family. But now Kim saw no humor in Mary Faith's report of his mother's shopping.

His face was as hard as flint as he sat down by the sitting-room fire and bit the end from a cigar.

"I'm glad she's not here—I want to talk to you," he said, and something in his tone made Mary Faith feel shaky and sick. That was the way he talked when he came to Mrs. Puckett's house to tell her that he did not want to marry her; it was the way he had come home one night, almost two years ago, to tell her that he was going to leave her.

What was he going to tell her now, she wondered.

"What is it you want to tell me, Kim?" Mary Faith heard herself ask steadily. But her lower lip quivered as she drew back her breath and one hand grasped the edge of the mantel shelf, as if she were bracing herself. Before he spoke a word, she knew what he was going to say.

"I won't go on like this any longer," was what he did say, after a pause that seemed like eternity itself to her. "This business of living like two strangers under the same roof may be all right for you, but I expect something more than that from life."

TIRED OF WIFE

If they had been living like two strangers for the last three months, it was his fault, not hers. She tried to say so, but her throat seemed to have knotted itself all at once so that she was unable to speak a word. She stood staring at Kim and slowly shaking her head.

He went on:

"When two people reach the point where they realize that they've lost interest in each other, the only decent and moral thing for them to do is to part company. Lots of people do it. There's no disgrace in a divorce any more, and not much difficulty. You can stay right on here with my mother and the baby, and I'll send you your housekeeping money every week."

Evidently he had been making his plans for a long time, for he seemed to have all the details worked out.

"You've heard me speak of Morris Gill—fraternity brother of mine? Well, he has a law office across the hall from our office downtown. You'd better go down to see him in a few days and he'll fix everything up for you. Alimony and so on. I mean, I've told him I'm perfectly willing to turn over to you half of what I make."

Kim stopped then and looked at Mary Faith, clearly waiting for her to make some sort of answer. But she simply stood looking at him, silent and perplexed, with a look of pain in her deep eyes.

How could he come to her like this and casually tell her that he was through with her, tired of their marriage? How could he suggest that all he had to do was to pay her off, month by month, as if she were a pensioner, and that that would settle whatever debt he owed her and the baby? He was cruel and indifferent. She realized that, but it did not alter her love a bit, or lessen it.

"Jack and Claire Maldon have split up, and all she's taking is a third of Jack's salary," she heard him say. "She says she doesn't intend to make him pay through the nose all his life for the mistake they made in getting married. You don't expect more than half of my salary, do you?"

"What's the matter with him," Kim's mother remarked frequently.

Colds can be ABORTED

(with lemon juice)

Don't waste time with cold remedies that only relieve a cold. If you want to end your cold, abort it. The lemon juice treatment will do it. Squeeze two full-size lemons in a large glass of very hot water and drink without sugar. First, take three tablets of Pape's cold compound an hour apart. This clears the head, dries the nasal passages, reduces any fever. The lemon juice then drives all cold symptoms right out of the system. Bedtime is best. This treatment will abort the worst cold overnight. One cold compound tablet will check a cold at any time, for several hours; then when night comes you can get rid of it by abortion. Any druggist has Pape's cold compound. It's perfectly safe. Try it, and you'll never go back to half-way remedies.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

It was home-coming day at the Enright Saturday for the Sun Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club. This chapter had its meetings at the Sheridan Square Theater for several weeks, but owing to the better facilities for the dancing classes, it was deemed advisable to return to the Enright. Of course, lots of kiddies regret leaving jovial Manager J. O. Hooley, but their welcome was none the less warm for Manager Frank E. Roberts at the Enright.

And Manager Roberts made the home-coming a real event. Featured for the meeting were a pet show and a contest with prizes for members who brought the oldest coin or currency. This latter idea furnished home unusually interesting exhibits. Little William Kennedy exhibited a piece of scrip dated 1779 in the old denomination of $45.00. It won a prize. Jean Maroney displayed a 10-cent piece 113 years old—dated 1820, and Doris Weaver won a prize with a silver half dollar dated 1834. And just for that Doris was given two tickets for the "Silver Dollar," the picture featured at the Enright at this time.

PETS WIN PRIZES

The pet show created a lot of fun. Dogs predominated. Freddy Hill with a black police dog won the blue ribbon; Billy Priest, with just an everyday "mutt," captured the second prize ribbon. John Pateros had a very handsome shepherd dog, which got third prize, and Doris Weaver, with a cute bull pup, was given the fourth prize. Catherine Weinthaw entered two turtles, but they were not fast enough to win a prize.

Dancing classes preceded the regular meeting. Five children from one family—Pauline, Alvin, Billy, Leroy and Joe Caplan—were among the many who participated in these lessons. Among the others were Doris Cunningham, Betty Van Camp, James Boday and Albert Boday. And, by the way, Andy Hungerman, one of the big little boys who is always helping his chapter in their activities, followed the club from the Sheridan Square to the Enright.

SCOUTS GIVE PROGRAM

Manager Harry Thomas, of the Schenley, had an unique idea for his Komic Club meeting Saturday. Everything, including the theater, was in charge of the Boy Scouts of America. About 60 members of Troops 61 and 75 participated, giving a program of Scout activities including drills, setting up exercises, camp routine, the salute to the flag, and the regular order of Scout meetings. The meeting opened with a parade. "Scotty" Foreman had charge of the meeting for the Scouts, and the music was furnished by the Scouts drum and bugle corps. There was also an interesting and attractive Boy Scout display in the lobby of the Schenley.

Right Into the Shah's Lap

How is it that some luxurious American doesn't buy the Shah's porch rocker?

The thing is only worth $19,000,000 on the jeweled hoof. Five years ago that would have been a mere bag of lotas.

We haven't bid on the royal chair of Persia and it indicates that our millionaires are walking on their heels.

Back in 1928 there would have been 500 Americans bidding on the chair and demanding first refusal on the table, the chiffonier and the washing machine.

Now, it is different. And it looks as if the Shah must be forced to loll around the house in his broken down furniture.

If the Shah had only asked us during the boom we would have bought it ourselves. Not that we needed it, but it would have been nice for the cat to sharpen its claws on.

They were lovely days. We had our hands on a lot of money. We're taking the bandages off next week.

Just too bad that the Shah, if that's his name, waited this long. The wife would have been delighted to have gotten a diamond chair leg for Christmas.

They tell us the thing is ambushed with pearls, rubies and diamonds. The Shah is such a lover of perfect gems that he had the court jeweler grind facets on his bunions. Boys, that's living.

We can't take it off his hands now. But if the Shah will wait a few weeks we will proposition him. Our broker has another hot proposition in food products that he says will revolutionize the chain store systems. We have seen the stock certificates. Just the right size to paste on your windshield.

Emergency Tariff Must Exclude Alien Competition From U. S. Market

THE TARIFF question before the American people in 1933 is —SHALL THE UNITED STATES BE MADE THE DUMPING GROUND FOR THE OUTSIDE WORLD?

With few other countries on the gold standard and no other country with a comparably large home consuming power, the American home market more than ever constitutes the target for labor sweating foreign competitors.

Even before the depression, nearly half the world's trade took place within the borders of the United States.

Of late, on account of abnormal currency conditions, the United States has become to an accelerated degree the MOST attractive place for foreigners to sell and the LEAST attractive place for aliens to buy.

As long as 12,000,000 Americans hopelessly trudge the streets without employment, it behooves both political parties in the United States during the present crisis to suspend traditional partisan differences regarding the tariff.

The historic and now obsolete debate as to the relative value of free trade and a protective tariff has no bearing on the existing emergency.

WHILE we Americans were debating whether the tariff of 1930 was too high, the financial foundation for world trade collapsed, as forty-four countries deserted the gold standard.

Accordingly, debtors everywhere purported to find obstacles in the way of transferring funds to the American market.

In these circumstances, there is no opportunity for vastly expanding American exports, which at the peak constituted only six per cent of the gross national income.

Yet, if maudlin sentimentality interferes with effective tariff protection, a large part of the ninety-four per cent, representing the business of the home market, will be jeopardized by foreign dumping.

Existing tariff rates have been vitiated by foreign currency depreciation, which has opened up holes in our tariff wall.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has wisely advocated a compensatory super tariff to offset any temporary foreign advantage resulting from watering of the currency.

As long as the financial unity of nations has been interrupted by currency breakdowns, the ad valorem duty on foreign costs fails to safeguard the home market for Americans.

Either the compensatory tariff or a rate, based on the American cost of production, is needed.

In the last analysis, we, as consumers EMPLOY one another.

INSTEAD of scattering our buying power to the seven seas, we should during the existing emergency concentrate our purchasing power in channels which will give employment to Americans.

The role of patriotism is to "BUY AMERICAN" and refuse to buy foreign competitive products, made by pauperized labor in low standard Asiatic and European countries.

This does not mean a voluntary abandonment of foreign trade.

As in the past, we shall have a give-and-take in non-competitive products.

We shall continue to import tin, rubber, tea, coffee, and a variety of other products, and thus enable foreigners to get dollars to pay for our agricultural products and other exports.

But in regard to COMPETITIVE manufactured goods, we should not surrender our home market to the textile manufacturers of England, or the electric bulb makers of Japan.

We have no desire to reduce our wage structures or living standards to those prevailing overseas.

Any indiscriminate lowering of the tariff under present conditions is likely to give "RELIEF" ABROAD while extending POVERTY and UNEMPLOYMENT AT HOME.

Mapping the Ocean's Floor

Man Will Really Rule the Earth.

OFF PORTO RICO, WHERE THE OCEAN IS FIVE MILES deep, the Smithsonian Institution has sent a group of scientists, led by Dr. Paul Bartsch, to chart the floor of the ocean, more than 20,000 feet down. This has to do with the queer creatures that live far down, devouring each other, carrying their own electric machinery and lights.

Some day the ocean's floor will be charted, from North to South Poles, for business reasons. Submarines will be built, and suits for divers that will endure the pressure at terrific depths, and there will be systematic exploration, search for gold mines, oil wells, and the endless treasures that the waves conceal.

YESTERDAY MR. GODDARD, EDITOR OF THE American Weekly, published an important article by Prof. Rene T. Levenin, on "man's ability to change the universe to suit his needs."

Parts of the "universe," fifty or a hundred million light years distant, will never feel the power of man nor know that he ever existed. But on this little earth, before he departs, hundreds of millions of years hence, man will do all that he can imagine, and that is a great deal.

HE WILL HARNESS VOLCANOES, AS HE HAS HARNESSED Niagara, use surplus lava and ashes for desirable filling in, control great rivers, divert and preserve the masses of rich soil, now washed out to sea by the Mississippi and other rivers. He will reclaim vast territories from shallow parts of the ocean, use tides and sunshine for power, divert surplus heat from the equator to the poles, regulating the earth's temperature with a cosmic thermostat, as he now controls temperature in one room.

It takes little imagination to foresee that.

Man will also control himself, conquer his animal heredity. Apply genius to helping others, instead of everlastingly grabbing for himself.

Then, no more depressions.

THE FUTILE LEAGUE OF NATIONS HAS ABANDONED the effort to make Japan "be nice" to China. No more conciliation, says the League, which means that it will do nothing effective, because it CANNOT. Meanwhile, dispatches report "Japanese airplanes bomb Chinese."

When, if at all, will Japan take the hint of the Europeans, in their big war, start the use of poison gas, of the modern kind, and empty big Chinese cities with poison bombs from the air?

Bolivia will complain to the League of Nations that Paraguay is manufacturing poison gas for war purposes. The work is said to be under way in the botanical park in the Paraguayan city of Ascuncion "under the direction of a European chemist, while 500 Paraguayan women are busy making gas masks. The noble white races may some day have to vote on the question: "Shall we kill each other all off or not?"

IF THERE IS HAPPINESS IN GOLD, WE OUGHT TO BE happy. Thirty-two foreign countries sent us more than one hundred millions in gold last month. We are like Wagner's dragon, Fafner, lying on his golden hoard, but we are not at all contented.

Important bankers say they object to inflation, now widely suggested. They do not want more dollars, artificially made, but would like to see "a faster turnover."

That's like telling the farmer not to raise more little pigs, but make those he has run around faster, and thus appear more numerous.

FOR YOUR HEALTH'S SAKE REMEMBER THIS, infrared heat rays cause the nostrils to contract and prevent normal intake of oxygen.

Sir Leonard Hill, British physiologist, says that is why we feel uncomfortable and "stuffy" in an overheated room. In such a room infrared rays produce the heat. A much higher temperature, in the natural sunlight, would be not nearly as unpleasant.

Such heat is especially dangerous for those with breathing already affected. To create moisture in the air of heated rooms is highly desirable. The Westinghouse and General Electric Companies are devoting scientific attention to that work.

Oxygen is LIFE and the dry air of overheated houses shortens life in America and ruins the health of children.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Diary of a modern Pepys: A letter from George Ade. He has abandoned hotels for house-keeping in Miami. So, breakfasting and walking to Washington Arch, putting in at Bill Hamilton's and the Italian Prince di Savoia there; also, Dudley Malone, Lois Long, Jane Grant and others.

Thence, high on an omnibus, to my chambers, and Minnie Vesey, of whom I'm mightily fond, there. So, working, and later with my wife to Jean Dalrymple's clutter of celebrities, which included Tallulah Bankhead, Mervyn Le Roy, James Cagney, Brock Pemberton and Noel Coward.

Dinner with the Gene Crawleys, a merry what-ho, to which came the Jack Murrays, the Charles Merrills, the J. Robinson Duffs and the Peter Millers. Then on to a play, sitting next to the Herbert Fleishhackers, gracious folk of San Francisco. To bed, reading Archibald Henderson's biography of Shaw.

New York theater boxes usually go begging, save at first nights when they are filled with friends of the producer or star. Almost exclusively, they bracket complimentary visitors. In other days, to sit in a box stressed affluence. Today, it has the stamp of gratuity. In the new Music Hall, the usual space for lower boxes is devoted to runways for ballet spectacles.

The most confirmed first-nighter—since the shy little corset manufacturer, George Mayer—is a straw-blonde of middle years, extravagantly ermined, and known to the "Death Watch" as Mrs. Katzenberg. She is the wife of a clothing manufacturer, lives on Park avenue's Gold Coast, and always occupies A-1.

Trick clouds, twirling like a flying jenny at a county fair, give the Empire spire an appearance of being on fire, and bubbles of fear burst into scattering panics, bringing cordons of police and fire wagons. Swirling air pockets attract misty vapors at intervals, and, from the street, puffs of smoke seem to issue from high windows. Every month or so it clots a traffic knot.

Lew Fields' talented daughter, Dorothy, was received enthusiastically at her first stage appearance at Radio City. A becoming black gown lent a somber charm to her dark complexion, and raven tresses suggested balsam. She already has won favor as a successful lyricist, her most conspicuous hit being "I Can't Give You Anything But Love."

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Old Thoughts

Life is but a wheel of change,
All things new and all things strange;
Yet with naught of lack or loss,
Though time take away the dross;
That which was in truth its own
Never from the heart has flown.

Through the cycle of the year,
As the rose and snow appear,
Through the sunshine and the rain,
Through the rapture and the pain,
Something all this change resists,
Something, deep within, persists.

Silent, viewless and profound,
Changeless, while the wheel goes round;
Buried, as the live roots lie,
While the leaves, wind-tossed, must die,
This the self that none may see,
This the true identity.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Thoroughbreds—And Poor Sports

So often, the things for which a man picks a girl out before marriage are the very things for which he wants to THROW her out, after marriage.

* * *

If you have never been loved by a dreamer and an idealist, you don't know what Heaven is. If you have never been married to one, you don't know what the Other Place is.

* * *

These "right-after-the-honeymoon divorces" are just a form of emotional bankruptcy, through which "poor sports" may go, in order to renege on their debts, promises and obligations.

* * *

Getting out of a love affair is another thing in which most moderns seem to have lost all sense of sportsmanship or delicacy. A thoroughbred is a man who knows how to detach a woman as tenderly and effectively as he would detach a baby's fingers from the taffy.

It is not the shape, the paint or the upholstery, which distinguishes one car from another or makes one girl a "charmer" all her life and another girl a flat-tire. It's what's under the hood —or the permanent wave.

* * *

The bathroom scales and the camera are the only things which have the nerve or the bi.vado to tell the truth to a woman. Most husbands are either too kind—or too discreet.

* * *

The commandment, "Thou shalt not steal," doesn't appear to apply (in the opinion of lots of people) to the hotel towels of another woman's husband.

* * *

A modern girl is so afraid of being classed as a "sentimentalist" that she tries to insulate all her emotions and wears a coat-of-mail over her heart. But her vanity is just as vulnerable as ever.

Text for Today And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose.—Romans, viii:28.

Get Your New Automobile

And Live the American Life.

To see ANYTHING you need EYES. To see and appreciate your COUNTRY you need AN AUTOMOBILE.

Mr. Harding's admirable picture shows that clearly.

It is all very well to sing "I love thy rocks and rills," but you should SEE them, in addition to singing about them.

You ought to travel each year over a few thousand miles of the magnificent roads that this country owes to the automobile, see for yourself and know of your own knowledge what the United States of America is like.

The man without an automobile is like one of those prehistoric birds with vestigial wings, unable to fly.

And this is an especially appropriate time to talk about automobiles, with the great Automobile Show beginning, opening today at the William Penn Hotel.

Go, and TAKE YOUR CHILDREN; see with them what has been done to make "Seeing America" easy, pleasant, comfortable, luxurious and ECONOMICAL.

Apart from buying a car, it is the duty of an intelligent American to see what the greatest modern American industry is accomplishing, see the new models, the new beauty, the extraordinarily reasonable prices, due to diminished cost of materials and greater skill in manufacture.

Today for less than $700 you can buy a car that you could not have matched for speed, performance, economy of operation and upkeep for $1,500 (or for ANY PRICE) five years ago.

Automobile progress is unbelievable, the return on the investment incalculable.

An American family without a good automobile is to be pitied.

At least, SEE the new cars, study them at the Automobile Show with your children that are old enough to understand the great American institution on four wheels.

It is not so much the question of being "able to afford an automobile" as it is to be able to afford to DO WITHOUT AN AUTOMOBILE.

No price would buy your feet from you. The automobile multiplies your feet by 1,000.

Nothing is more important than the happiness of your family, and the happiness of every family today depends on A GOOD CAR. It keeps the family united in fresh air and sunshine and gives happiness to every member of the family.

The time was when many American families were satisfied to sit "in the front yard." The whole of the United States is the American front yard today.

Study Mr. Harding's beautiful picture, showing the car made in AMERICA, for use in AMERICA by good Americans determined to see and know their country.

Such a car is the American's SECOND HOME, the home that moves, taking him to the top of the steep road that leads up the mountains, to the hard sandy beach of the ocean's shore.

Mr. Harding shows the public school in his picture of the typical American family. And in the automobile he shows the American contrivance that makes the teachings of the public schools A REALITY in the children's minds.

Go to the Automobile Show, examine all the cars, try those that interest you, the opportunity will always be offered. And then, remembering that life is short, that the young must learn HOW, that the old must enjoy the last few years, GET YOUR AUTOMOBILE, ENJOY IT, AND IN TIME SAVED, HEALTH IMPROVED, IMAGINATION INSPIRED, YOU WILL MAKE THE MONEY TO PAY FOR IT.
